Probers Told Auto Dealer Made 100% On Trade-ins

Ourisman, Head Of Two Chevrolet Agencies, Admits $151,000 Deposits

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Profits on trade-in automobiles handled by Ourisman Chevrolet, Inc., averaged 100 per cent in the first seven months of this year, a House subcommittee investigating questionable trade practices was told yesterday.

The profit figure was presented by Subcommittee Counsel John T. M. Reddan near the end of a five-hour hearing on operations of two Washington Chevrolet agencies, both headed by Benjamin Ourisman. The second firm is Mandell Chevrolet Co., Inc., of 1800 Nichols ave. se. The Ourisman Co. is at 610 H st. ne. Ourisman disputed Reddan's figures.

Ourisman testified without counsel. He cited at the outset his record of 30 years in the automobile business here. He has been a Chevrolet dealer since 1921.

Ourisman, said "I have tried to build our business on policies that have resulted in enlarging my dealership into one of the largest in this country."

He protested the possible effect of the hearings, and the advance publicity about them, upon his goodwill and good reputation in business, and "my personal reputation for fair dealings in this community."

He said the fact his firms had sold 50,000 automobiles "is ample testimony to the confidence the people of our community have shown in the fairness of our business practices."

Priority Theme Stressed

The subcommittee, headed by Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.) called a dozen witnesses to tell about their car purchases this year from the Ourisman and Mandell firms. Main theme of their testimony was that having a car to trade in helped get them quick deliveries on new cars. A second theme was that the cars were equipped with expensive accessories—but on this point several witnesses made clear that they were satisfied customers.

Two subcommittee investigators, called as witnesses, testified that their examination of Ourisman and Mandell Co. records for June, showed that customers without trade-ins in general were getting cars they had ordered around 14 months before, while those with trade-ins were getting cars, on the average, in less than two months.

The investigators were Walton Woods and Arthur Pearlman.

In the 12 trade-in transactions by the Mandell and Ourisman firms, Reddan brought out that each car traded in brought a big profit from resale to other dealers. Biggest percentage markup was $193 on a car for which $5 had been allowed; the biggest cash markup was from an allowance of

'Ike' Inspected Horror Camp For Evidence on Brutality

XXIV

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

The Germans had now suffered an unbroken series of major defeats. Beginning with the bloody repulse in the enemy's abortive Ardennes assault, the Allied avalanche had continued to inflict upon him a series of losses and defeats of staggering proportions.

There was no atom of reason or logic in prolonging the struggle. In both the east and the west strong forces were now operating in the homeland of Germany. The Ruhr, the Saar, and Silesia were all lost to the enemy. His remaining industries, dispersed over the central area of the country, could not possibly support his armies still attempting to fight.

On March 31 I issued a proclamation to the German troops and people, urging the former to surrender and the latter to begin planting crops. I described the hopelessness of their situation and told them that further resistance would only add to their future miseries.

My purpose was to bring the whole bloody business to an end. But the hold of Hitler on his associates was still so strong and was so effectively applied elsewhere, through the medium of the Gestapo and SS, that the nation continued to fight.

Field Marshal Model commanded the German forces in the Ruhr pocket. He first attempted to break out of the encirclement by an attack toward the north, and he was defeated. A similar attempt toward the south was equally abortive, and the German garrison had nothing to look forward to except eventual surrender. Bradley kept hammering back the enemy lines, and on April 14 the Americans launched a local attack that split the pocket in two. Two days later the eastern half collapsed. On the 18th the whole remaining garrison surrendered.

325,000 Germans Captured in Ruhr

Originally we had estimated we would capture about 150,000 of the German army in the Ruhr. In the final count the total reached 325,000, including 30 general officers. We destroyed 21 divisions and captured enormous quantities of supplies.

Hitler must have hoped that the siege of the Ruhr would be as stubbornly contested as was that of Brest, but within 18 days of the moment the Ruhr was surrounded it had surrendered with an even greater number of prisoners than we had bagged in the final Tunisian collapse almost two years earlier.

April 12 I spent with George Patton. Before the day ended, the scenes I saw and news I heard etched the date in my memory. In the morning we visited some of Patton's scattered corps and divisions, which were pushing rapidly eastward in a typical Patton thrust, here and there surrounding and capturing isolated detachments of the disintegrating army.

There was no general line of resistance or indeed even any coordinated attempt at delay. However, some of the local enemy detachments stubbornly defended themselves and we saw sporadic fighting throughout the day.

Patton's Troops Find Huge Nazi Treasure

General Patton's Army had overrun and discovered Nazi treasure, hidden away in the lower levels of a deep salt mine. A group of us descended a shaft almost a half mile under the surface of the earth.

At the bottom were huge piles of German paper currency, apparently heaped up there in a last frantic effort to evacuate some of it before the arrival of the Americans. In one of the tunnels was an enormous number of paintings and other pieces of art. Some of these were wrapped in paper and burlap, others were merely stacked together like cordwood.

In another tunnel we saw a hoard of gold, tentatively estimated by our experts to be worth about 250 million dollars, most of it in gold bars. These were in sacks, two 25-pound bars to each

Draft Calls Due to Be Reduced As Army Faces Funds Cutback; 'Shrinkage' May Be 223,000

Quota for January Likely to Go Down; Strength of 677,000 Indicated for 1950

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Facing an expected heavy cutback in its 1950 enlisted strength, the Army General Staff has moved to sharply reduce draft calls beginning January 1.

Under the 15-billion-dollar defense budget ceiling imposed by President Truman, The Washington Post learned last night, Army strength will be limited to 677,000 officers and men next year. This is 223,000 below the 900,000-man Army for which Congress voted funds last summer.

Two Planned Divisions Scrapped

It will mean, said an authoritative source, that two of the new divisions scheduled to be formed by next June will not be organized and Army manpower will be stabilized at slightly above present strength. The Army has been slowly building up to the 900,000 total which Congress authorized it to reach by next June 30.

More important to thousands of draft-age men is the fact that many less men will have to be drafted this winter and spring to meet Army needs, if the 15-billion-dollar defense budget stands.

It is regarded as likely that the 20,000-man draft call already issued for January will be materially reduced. Further calls are expected to be "only a fraction" of the current (December) 15,000-man draft.

Draft Likely to Stay

Military chiefs want to keep the draft operating—even though only a few thousand men are inducted each month—for otherwise voluntary recruiting will fall off sharply, it is said.

If the President and Congress approve an alternative budget prepared by defense chiefs, said to total about 17 billions, the Army will be limited to 800,000 next year.

It would mean a cutback in fully usable combat personnel, however, of only about 50,000 men. The current goal of 900,000 officers and men includes 790,000 regular personnel and 110,000 18-year-old trainees. The latter serve for only one year and cannot be sent outside the continental United States.

Volunteer Plan Lags

The 18-year-old volunteer plan to date, however, has been anything but a success. During October, the defense office announced yesterday, only 1633 18-year-old youths enrolled in the Army for the one year of training. The October quota was 10,000. It is expected that the 1950 budget will provide for only about 50,000 such trainees.

Even if the defense budget is raised to 17 billions and the Army is allowed a strength of 800,000 officers and men, draft calls are expected to be considerably less than forecast last year when the draft bill was under consideration. Then, officials said that from 225,000 to 250,000 men would be inducted during the fiscal year ending next June 30, with calls reaching 30,000 a month during this winter and spring.

As of November 1, the Army had a strength of 645,067 officers and men, including some 13,000 18-year-old trainees. This was a net gain of 10,000 men during October.

Enlistments Drop

However, during October, only 33,562 men enlisted or reenlisted—some 12,000 under September. One major factor was the Army's decision to accept no more men with dependents.

Even if the Army is allowed some 750,000 officers and men, plus 50,000 18-year-old trainees, for next year, a much more moderate draft than originally contemplated should be sufficient, officials feel.

ECA Plans Reviewed By Truman

Marshall, Hoffman And Harriman Meet With President on 1949 Aid Program

President Truman yesterday reviewed plans for next year's push to put western Europe back on its economic feet.

He discussed the western European situation for 45 minutes with Secretary Marshall, Economic Cooperation Adminstrator Paul Hoffman and Special ECA Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

"We had a general talk about all the problems of western Europe and discussed a vigorous program for European recovery," Harriman told reporters afterward. The meeting was called at Hoffman's request in view of Harriman's departure, expected in about a week, to resume his ECA post in Paris.

All Optimistic

The three officials who met with the President have expressed optimism in recent weeks over the progress of the recovery drive. Harriman's use of the word "vigorous" indicated that there would be no slackening in 1949, although the amount needed from Congress is expected to be several hundred million dollars less than the $5,300,000,000 asked for the first year of the four-year program.

Officials here and abroad assume the new Democratic Congress will be friendly to ECA's second-year request, although it will want complete evidence that the Europeans are doing their utmost in self-help and are making the best use of of American funds.

Existing funds for ECA will expire April 3, but new funds will have to be provided by about the end of February to keep the pipeline of supplies for Europe filled.

Two Amounts Sought

In view of this February deadline, which will come early in the new session of Congress, officials are thinking of asking for a billion-doliar advance from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Congress could authorize the advance without waiting for the actual appropriations.

The same device, used last spring, in the original first-year authorization, prevented what would have been a disastrous gap in American aid to Europe.

ECA's problem is complicated by the fact that it is seeking two amounts for European recovery—one, an estimated $1,200,000,000 to carry the program from April 3 to June 30, and the other an amount roughly estimated at $4,500,000,000 for the ensuing 12-month fiscal year.

If normal procedures were followed, each of the two amounts would have to be authorized and and then appropriated after the usual committee hearings. This would involve harassed ECS officials and Congressmen in eight separate hearings—two each for the Foreign Policy Committees of the two houses.

Mme. Chiang's Chances to Get All-Out Aid Seen Doubtful

By The Associated Press

The U. S. rolled out the carpet for visiting Mme. Chiang Kai-shek yesterday, but her chances for getting all-out aid for her husband's government looked doubtful.

The generalissimo's wife is due here Wednesday, presumably to ask this country to underwrite the hard-pressed Chinese government's war against Communists.

There was no hint that the Administration looks with sympathy on her unofficial errand.

However, President Truman's former personal plane, the Sacred Cow, will fly her to the Capital from San Francisco on Wednesday. Secretary of State and Mrs. Marshall have invited her to be their house guest at their nearby Leesburg, Va., home.

The plans to receive her as the distinguished wife of the chief executive of a friendly government were announced without comment by the State Department.

Traveling across the Pacific in an American naval plane, Madame Chiang reached Honolulu yesterday, and is due at noon today, California time, at Moffett Field near San Francisco.

There she will be welcomed by the State Department's chief ceremonial officer, Raymond D. Muir, and piloted to the Capital by Col. Homer C. Munson, who formerly was Marshall's pilot.

There may be more official courtesies when she reaches the National Airport here, where she is due at 10 a. m. (EST) Wednesday.

As a special pleader for a national cause, Madame Chiang is put by top Administration officials on a par with Winston Churchill, Britain's war leader. But they have made it clear privately they lack enthusiasm for her new mission at a time when Mr. Truman and Secretary Marshall are facing a knotty and painful decision.

As Marshall has stated it, the

Berlin Reds Believed Out To Control City

Rally Set Today as West Sectors Prepare For Sunday's Election

Berlin, Nov. 29 (AP).—Russian-backed German Communists began massing their strength tonight for an apparent attempt to seize political control of all Berlin before the elections Sunday in the city's western sectors.

They announced a rally for Tuesday in the Soviet sector to "take decisive measures for the protection of a united Berlin" and called on all the city's elected bodies and party leaders to attend.

Anti-Communist leaders promptly rejected the invitation, denouncing the meeting as a "scheme to establish a Red dictatorship."

The Soviet-licensed news agency ADN said the Communist-led Berlin trade unions have appealed to all workers to put down their tools at noon Tuesday and join the mass rally.

Meanwhile, Col. Frank L. Howley, United States commandant in Berlin, warned the Communists that "there is not going to be violence or revolution." He conceded there may be some minor trouble during the voting Sunday.

Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet military governor, accused the Western Allies of allowing the elections in the western sectors solely for the purpose of "splitting" the city.

Although Berlin's constitution provides for regular municipal elections December 5, Soviet authorities have forbidden voting in their sector. Western sources said the Communists fear a sharp drop in their voting strength.

In letters to the three Western military governors, Sokolovsky said that Germans who wanted the voting were engaging in "dangerous activities."

Commenting on Sokolovsky's protest, Gen. Lucius D. Clay told newsmen in Frankfurt that the western Berlin elections "are a German affair which we neither encouraged nor discouraged."

The American military governor pointed out the Germans were carrying out the provisions of their own constitution. That constitution was approved by the United States, Britain, France and Russia. It provides for automatic elections every two years "unless disapproved by the unanimous vote of the occupying powers," Clay said.

Makes One Condition

'Cordial' Reception Foreseen By Connally for Arms Pact

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee probably will be "cordial" to the coming Atlantic defense treaty, prospective chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said yesterday.

The Atlantic pact, linking the United States and Canada with at least five countries of western Europe, will be the most important piece of legislation to come before the committee in the new Senate.

The so-called Western union countries of Europe — Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—have just completed a tentative draft of what they think such a treaty should contain.

Now their draft will be examined by the State Department, discussed informally with congressional leaders, finally worked out in a conference of all the countries involved, and then submitted to the Senate for ratification.

Connally, who will be chairman of the committee after January, said he assumed the treaty would follow the pattern of the inter-American Defense Treaty signed at Rio de Janeiro last year.

He laid down one condition for favorable action by his committee—namely, that the European countries must not expect the United States to bear the whole burden of making it effective.

"Whatever the Europeans demand in arms from us," he told a press conference, "we're going to ask 'What are you going to do?' The Europeans have got to furnish arms and munitions of their own."

This condition is laid down in the Vandenberg resolution of last May, under which the State Department has been having preliminary talks with the Europeans.

The Europeans have already set up a military planning staff, and have made the first moves toward rearming, although there is agreement on both sides of the Atlantic that rearmament shall not be allowed to disrupt western Europe's economic recovery.

In addition to the Atlantic pact, the Connally committee will have to authorize continuance of the European Recovery Program and other foreign aid until June 30, 1950, and probably will have to deal with the Havana charter setting up the International Trade Organization.

Connally told reporters who crowded into his office that he was aware of the "terrible burden" ahead. He saw the press an hour

Soviet Accepts Neutrals' New Berlin Plan

Paris, Nov. 29 (AP).—Russia accepted tonight a new formula by the neutral nations of the U. N. Security Council for mediating the Big Four deadlock on Berlin.

This was announced by Argentine Foreign Minister Juan A. Bramuglia, this month's president of the Council and a leader in the mediation efforts.

Bramuglia said Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky agreed to the plan at a meeting with him. It calls for the naming of a "neutral" commission of currency experts.

Earlier the United States, Britain and France gave approval in principle to the proposal. Bramuglia told a reporter he expects to get formal acceptance from the three Western powers tomorrow and that he hopes the new mediation effort will get under way immediately.

If no hitch develops, Bramuglia will have met his own deadline by assuring continuation of mediation efforts before he steps down as president of the Council at midnight tomorrow.

The Western powers withheld formal acceptance until their home governments had seen the draft of the plan.

Blast Rocks Portland, Ore. River Front

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 29 (AP).—An explosion on the Willamette River waterfront rocked a wide area of the city tonight but a fire that broke out in a municipal terminal building and piled lumber was soon under control.

One man was blown 200 feet into the street from the Portland Dock Commission office where the blast originated.

Firemen on the scene said Walter Kratt reported he stepped into the dock commission office, smelled gas and flipped on an electric light. The explosion followed.

Kratt was flung 200 feet by the explosion and was taken to a hospital. He is an engineer employed by the commission.

Firemen reported the center of the three-story frame building was demolished by the explosion and that windows in scores of nearby buildings were shattered.

The blast occurred about 8:15 p. m. (PST).

Four freighters tied up at the municipally owned terminal were not in danger, according to harbor patrolmen.

Large piles of lumber adjoining the office structure caught fire. Firemen said warehouse and dock units were believed out of danger.

Capt. Daniel J. McGarity, port director, said there was no gas in the building. He says that he can only assume that there was some seepage from a nearby main.

Reporters at the scene said the side of the building facing Front st. was broken into splinters.

Reds' Strides Put Nanking In New Peril

Nanking (Tuesday) Nov. 30 (AP). Official dispatches pointed up the growing peril to this capital of China today.

The government's Suchow garrison was ordered to withdraw from the besieged city and rescue an entire army group trapped by Communist troops, but gave no indication of complying.

The Central Daily News, a Kuomintang (Government Party) newspaper, reported today Communists had captured the town of Kouanchen on the north bank of the Yangtze River, only 65 miles east of Nanking, on Sunday but Nationalists recovered it the following day.

It was believed the Reds at Kouanchen were local troopers with which the area has been long infested. Except for some forays against railroad lines, it was the deepest penetration yet by Communists battling to drive the Nationalists out of Nanking.

The fate of this frightened capital may depend on the ability—or willingness—of the 250,000-man Suchow force to quit its fortress 211 miles northwest of Nanking.

Latest battlefront dispatches said the government's Twelfth Army Group—totaling about 140,000 men—was encircled by Communists 67 miles south of Suchow and 145 miles northwest of Nanking. Little defense remained on the route to Nanking.

This group, inferior to the well-equipped Suchow garrison, had marched from Hankow on the southwest to help defend Suchow, only to fall into a Red net.

The only details given were that the group, under Gen. Huang Wei, was south of the Kwei River, 12 miles south of Communist-held Suhsien. Communist Gen. Liu Po-cheng was the foe.

The Communist radio confirmed identification of the trapped group, and said it comprised 11 divisions which already had been partly destroyed.

New Auxiliary Police Planned As a Civil Defense Measure

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The District's new auxiliary police corps was adopted as a civil defense measure and not to solve the manpower shortage on the regular police force, it was stated last night.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, made the statment in a press conference. His interpretation of the action was markedly different from Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett's initial announcement on the force.

Young, clearly miffed by press criticism of the project, said the force was established at the instigation of the Office of Civil Defense Planning in the Pentagon.

"The first idea for this came from the Pentagon. They had our policemen over there talking about it long before the Commissioners even knew about it," he declared.

The Commissioner, who supervises police and fire department activities in the District government, emphasized the auxiliary policemen will not be armed with guns until an emergency is declared.

"We are definitely not going to arm the auxiliary police—not until there is an emergency. They won't patrol the city with guns," he emphasized.

When informed by a reporter that World War II auxiliary police here were not given guns, Commissioner Young stroked his chin thoughtfully and commented, "Oh, is that so? Well, maybe we bet-

Baughman to Succeed Him

Secret Service Chief Made Treasury Enforcement Head

James J. Maloney, 52, chief of the Secret Service for the past two years, was moved up yesterday to chief coordinator of the Treasury's law enforcement agencies.

U. E. Baughman, jr., 42, will succeed him as head of the Secret Service, which has the job of protecting the President and tracking down counterfeiters. For the last two years, Baughman has been supervising agent of the New York district.

[On the night of the presidential election, it was reported that Maloney was in New York prepared to throw a Secret Service guard around Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in case of the Republican nominee's election. After President Truman's victory, well-informed sources said that Maloney probably would be given a new assignment.—Editor's Note.]

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, in announcing the appointments, did not say who will succeed Baughman in the New York office.

Maloney, in his new post, will coordinate investigations of the Secret Service, the Narcotics Bureau, the customs agency service, and the Internal Revenue Bureau's alcohol tax and intelligence units.

He will take over that work from M. L. Harney, who has held the post on an acting basis since retirement of Elmer Irey, September

Doughton Expects No Action On Taxes Until After March 15

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), prospective chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, yesterday envisioned a slow, deliberate approach to tax revision without "hasty action" of any kind.

The veteran Democratic tax leader backed away from any commitment for or against Truman-proposed excess profits taxation "until we have the full revenue picture."

In effect, he ruled out any congressional action on taxes until after March 15, 1949, income tax returns are in.

"I don't see how we can write a tax bill until we know how much revenue we have to raise," he told a press conference. "Of course, we can be studying what the needs are. I believe in careful study."

Declining to speculate on any specific tax changes, Doughton said his principal purpose still is "to raise enough money to balance the budget and pay something on the National debt."

In the Eightieth Congress, the ranking Democrat on the tax-making committee refused to go along with President Truman's call for a peacetime excess profits tax linked with $40 cuts in individual income tax payment.

He supported, instead, a compromise version of the House-passed Knutson tax cut. But he told newsmen yesterday he did not know what his position will be if the peacetime excess profits tax is reoffered.

At the outset of his press con-

U. E. Baughman, New Secret Service Chief, Up From Ranks; Strictly Non-Glamorous

All work and virtually no play made U. E. Baughman jr., chief of the United States Secret Service yesterday.

It will come as a shock to movie fans, pulp-magazine devotees, and lovers of melodrama to learn that the Nation's No. 1 Secret Service agent is entirely without glamour.

True, there's a faint resemblance to Humphrey Bogart (without the bristling eyebrows) in Chief Baughman's strong face. And there's a modicum of mystery in his habitual use of the initials "U. E." instead of spelling out his full name.

Glamourless as Scrapple

But otherwise, the new Secret Service director is as glamourless as scrapple.

Now if the truth be known, glamour has no place in the real-life Secret Service. What is required are the traits which "Huey" Baughman has in generous measure: a 24-hour-a-day devotion to duty, a meticulous mastery of detail; and drive.

The duties of the Secret Service are mainly protecting the President and his family, conducting ceaseless war on counterfeiters, apprehending forgers of Government securities and checks. Successful performance of each assignment demands command of detail.

Urbanus Edmund Baughman, whose first name is unknown even to intimates and who usually is called Huey, was born in Camden, N. J., but, after a brief residence here, brought up in Philadelphia. For several years after leaving high school Huey hopped from job to job, seeking a permanent niche. He successively worked as an office boy, chicken salesman, tobacco-pipe salesman, bookkeeper, draftsman, typist, clerk.

Started as Clerk

Then in 1927—at the age of 22—Baughman took a civil service exam and landed a job at $1800 a year as clerk-stenographer in the Philly office of the Secret Service. Most of the Secret Service's 15 supervising agents started out similarly as letter-filers. Nowadays, a candidate for the Secret Service must have either a law degree or two years of high-grade experience as an investigator.

During the next 21 years Huey Baughman rose steadily through the ranks, serving in Philadelphia, Camden, Washington, and New York. He was called from New York yesterday to take over the $10,000-a-year top post; and direction of 330 agents over the country.

Spectacular Case

Most spectacular case in the new chief's career involved the City of Brotherly Love's version of "Murder, Inc." in the mid thirties. Thirty-four murders for insurance were laid to a gang led by Herman Petrillo, a notorious counterfeiter. It was while digging into the counterfeiting activities of Petrillo that the murders came to light.

Agent Huey Baughman made the pinch of Petrillo, but even this episode wasn't glamorous. Details and evidence, that's all.

"I never shot at anybody in all my service and no one ever shot at me," says Baughman. He also takes as a matter of fact his record: Conviction of every case but one he has taken to court.

The 6-foot, lean, lithe Secret Service chief married in 1936, has a 7-year-old boy. Except for an occasional game of tennis, he has (No, he does not read detective stories for relaxation.) no hobbies. Today he looks some 10 years younger than his 43 years.

Health Plan Held Truman 'Obsession'

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—National compulsory health insurance has become "an obsession" with President Truman, Dr. Poul R. Hawley today told State Medical Association of Secretaries and Editors assembled here.

At the same time, the former medical director of Veterans' Administration characterized Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing as an opportunist in discontent, "surrounded by the most radical thinkers in the field of health."

Dr. Hawley, now executive officer of Blue Cross-Blue Shield hospital and medical prepayment plans, however, took the realist's view that the only way to combat socialization of medicine is to offer something better.

He advocated wide expansion of voluntary prepayment plans on a professional directed level, and an end to "fear tactics" or "the negative attitude" of organized medicine.

Largely because of recent election results, he said, "not even the most conservative Republican Congressman dares resist the pressures exerted by his constituents if he desire to continue his political career—and what Congressman does not?"

Not Acceptable Solution

"The sorry fact is," he continued, "that not yet are the voluntary plans doing a proper job. Not yet are they offering a fully acceptable solution to the problem, and the principal reason for their failure is to be found in the attitude of organized medicine to them."

When the need for medical care arises, Dr. Hawley said, it is accompanied by "emotional factors" that tend people to resent doctors rather than "blame their own improvidence." This factor, he said, gives "friends of socialized medicine" the opportunity to strike.

Organized medicine's best way to combat this, he said, is the nonprofit prepayment plans, but these, he warned, "must be carried out to the national level."

"Their greatest weakness," Dr. Hawley declared, "is that they have no machinery for dealing with national accounts (of national employers, whose employes are scattered throughout the Nation)."

He declared that nonprofit plans operating on community and regional bases are already "losing thousands of subscribers" due to contract negotiations between employers and national labor unions.

Dr. Hawley advocated that consumers be given some representation on voluntary hospital and medical care prepayment plans, but specified that such representation be in the minority since "the consumer does not dictate the pattern of medical practice."

Speaking of President Truman and national compulsory health insurance, Dr. Hawley declared:

"The President's sincerity of purpose cannot be questioned. I am convinced that he believes in it fully, and that he honestly believes it to be a good thing for the people. But it is also clear that his belief has gone beyond the bounds of a reasoned conviction, and that it has become obsession."

A Different Thing

Federal Security Administrator Ewing's motives, Dr. Hawley added, "are a different thing."

"Sensing that the cost of medical care is a matter of dissatisfaction among the majority of our people, he (Ewing) has seized upon this discontent as the issue upon which he would climb to political heights"

"I would not question Mr. Ewing's sincerity," Dr. Hawley continued. "Surrounded as he is by the most radical thinkers in the field of health, and knowing absolutely nothing himself about the problems of medical and hospital care . . . It is not hard for him to be persuaded that what he considers best for his political future is also best for the people."

Dr. Hawley's appeal that organized medicine get 100 per cent behind non-profit hospital and medical care plans was delivered just one day ahead of consideration of such plans by the house of delegates to the American Medical Association, which convenes here Tuesday.

First order of business, however, for the delegates will be the selection of the "general practitioner of the year," from 24 candidates submitted for the honor by State medical societies. The award, created in 1947, is considered on the same level as the outstanding service medal awarded annually each year to the top physician of the country.

Mason Cites Other Needs Beside Schools

Commissioner Guy Mason said yesterday that if the District borrows money for schools, it should obtain enough to take care of all "down-at-the-heel institutions."

Commenting on the report of Dr. George D. Strayer that the District must borrow $37,901,816 for a school construction program, Mason said that the District needs new welfare buildings and health centers "as well as schools."

Two steps, meanwhile, were taken by District officials to bring the Strayer school improvement proposal up for action.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young will submit his recommendations to the full Board of Commissioners at its meeting at 10 a. m. today.

Education Board Acts

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Board of Education president, said that she will ask Superintendent Hobart M. Corning to prepare a report on Dr. Strayer's recommendations, and submit it to the board's committees on legislation, finance and buildings and grounds.

Dr. Strayer will appear before the board's buildings and grounds committee at 1:30 p. m. today to discuss his report and answer questions.

The report, a 161-page analysis of the District school plant, is the first of two to be made by Dr. Strayer under congressional authorization. The second, covering other phases of education, will be submitted early next year.

Commissioner Mason said that he had no statement at present on any of the Strayer proposals except borrowing.

Budget Officer's View

Budget Officer Walter Fowler, defending the present pay-as-you-go system for financing school construction, said that at the current rate of spending for new buildings the District can meet the Strayer recommendations in 10 years.

Fowler said he understood that the present method of calculating the capacity of a classroom on the basis of 36 students in elementary rooms and 85 per cent utilization of pupil stations in junior and senior high schools is supported by the United States Office of Education.

Dr. Strayer recommended 30-pupil classes in the elementary grades, 75 per cent utilization of pupil stations in junior high schools and 65 per cent in senior high schools.

Fowler suggested that enrollment figures cited by Dr. Strayer were excessive, pointing out that they are 3805 pupils higher than those reported by the statistical division of the public schools at the end of October.

Enrollment Figures

Dr. Strayer listed the 1948 enrollment at 93,025. The statistical office of the schools said yesterday that on October 22 there were 91,065 students enrolled locally.

Fowler also criticized Dr. Strayer's estimate of future enrollments and said that increases in District population during the past seven years were not normal and should not be considered in determining future enrollments.

He said that Dr. Strayer had not taken into consideration the migration of white families to Virginia and Maryland or the displacement of persons in slum-clearance programs and by acquisition of land by the Federal and District governments.

'Blue Baby' Tests Made On Boy, 13

Claude Sine, 13-year-old "blue baby" from the little farming community of Mountain Falls, Va., entered Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore yesterday for final tests which will determine whether he can be saved from an early death by a heart operation.

The tests, which probably will take most of this week, are the last of a series of examinations by Johns Hopkins doctors to decide whether the Blalock-Taussig "blue-baby" surgery can correct the obstruction in the pulmonary artery.

Cause of Condition

The malformation with which Claude was born—one of three general types which can cause the "blue-baby" condition—reduces the amount of blood carried from the body to the lungs for oxygen replenishment.

One of the tests that the boy must undergo is the sampling of blood directly from the heart, for a check on its oxygen content just before it goes into the lungs.

Another test involves the injection of a "radioopaque" dye into the blood stream, which allows doctors to follow and time the progress of the blood stream through the circulatory system and the heart, through rapid multiple X-rays. Physicians thus may be able to "see" the deformity which has kept Claude from playing with other children since he was four.

Tube Goes to Heart

The small tube used for taking the blood sample must be pushed through an arm vein to the heart. The patient lies on a fluoroscope table so the doctors can see the tube as it is moved up the vein.

Of more than 800 "blue baby" operations, originated by Drs. Alfred Blalock and Helen B. Taussig at Johns Hopkins, 85 per cent have been succeesful in extending the lives of the patients. The first such surgery was performed about four years ago.

If the doctors decide they can operate on Claude, the neighbors in Mountain Falls will try to help Claude's father, a farmer, to pay for the treatment by organizing bake sales and other money raising projects.

Some 5000 palate-pleasers from 21 States east of the Mississippi converged on Washington yesterday, bent on learning how to satisfy the most discriminating diner-out.

Delegates to the Southeastern Regional Restaurant Convention, meeting at the Statler Hotel, also listened to some business advice from J. W. Marriott, president of the National Restaurant Association.

"A point is reached where restaurant prices must be based on the cost of foods; and when they go up in price, his prices must go up too," he said.

He likened restaurant operators' situation to that of Henry Ford, 2d, who recently predicted an increase in wages followed by an increase in the price of automobiles.

The restaurant official, who also is president of Hot Shoppes, Inc., touched on the theme of the four-day convention—"America's Heritage: Hospitality and Good Food."

"We have developed standards of management which, if practiced, will take us far along the road to improving our business and improving the morale of those who work for us," he said.

Therein, he added, lies "the key to hospitality, for it comes only when we have happy, contented workers who like their jobs and who get enjoyment out of doing things for others."

Highlighting yesterday's exhibits of culinary proficiency was a cooking demonstration on gas equipment in the Statler's banquet kitchen.

Other exhibits included modern contrivances for quick and tasty food preparation, ranging from mechanical oyster-openers to the latest word in automatic dishwashers.

Speakers today include August H. Dressel, president of the Washington Restaurant Association and of the Old Williamsburg Restaurant; George L. Wenzel, food-cost consultant; Emerson P. Schmidt, director of economic research, United States Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Orpha Mae Thomas, assistant professor of institution management at Teachers' College, Columbia University, and Alexander F. Jones, assistant to the publisher, The Washington Post.

Tax Action To Be Slow

ference, Daughton released a prepared statement on taxes and enjoined newsmen against "using any part of it unless you print it all."

The portion of his prepared statement relating to taxes said:

"Until the budget message of the President is received, I do not propose to speculate upon what will be the program for tax legislation. Revenue estimates for the next fiscal year can be little more than a guess until the income tax returns due in the early months of 1949 have been received.

"With regards to expenditures, we must not overlook any opportunity for the most stringent economy consistent with a reasonable level of Government service in this day when the people are already groaning under the load of high taxes.

Should Ponder Effect

"If additional revenue for a balanced budget in the fiscal year 1950 appears necessary, the Committee on Ways and Means should, in my opinion, take into account the probable effect of alternative proposals on the economy of the country before reaching a decision.

"Meanwhile, I have instructed the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation to continue its study and work with the Treasury Department, so far as practicable, in the preparation of recommendations for technical changes and adjustments in the present tax law.

"I am hopeful that we can have the same close cooperation between the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation and the Secretary of the Treasury or whoever may be designated by the Secretary to represent the Administration on tax matters, that we have had in the past."

Asked if he favored an increase in corporation income tax rates, a possible alternative to profits taxation, the cautious Doughton said only, "I have to know more before I form an opinion."

Favored Modifications

In the excise, or so-called luxury, tax field, Doughton pointed out that he has long favored modifications in these levies but again avoided any new Congress commitment.

Asked if he anticipated early action on the recommendations for improvements in the social security system, he said he did not.

His statement had only this to say on social security:

"In order to give adequate attention to the legislative recommendations for improvement of the social security system, it may be necessary to create a subcommittee on social security."

Holds Extension Urgent

Doughton termed extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act, "without unnecessary restrictions on the President's authority to negotiate trade agreements with foreign countries," one of the more urgent problems before his committee.

Representative John Dingell (D., Mich.) recently proposed indefinite extension of the trade agreements act. Doughton said Dingell's proposals are "worthy of study."

A reporter asked Doughton what he would do about Southern Congressmen who "bolted" to the States Rights ticket.

"So far as I am concerned," said Doughton, "I wouldn't do anything with them."

Plan Favored To Work for D. C. Suffrage

A plan for a campaign organization to obtain suffrage in the District was approved "in principle" last night by trustees of the District Central Suffrage Conference, Inc.

Meeting at the Carnegie Endowment Building, 700 Jackson pl. nw., the 22-member board supported the following points:

1. Establishment of an Information and Research Committee to collect data "with respect to the suffrage bill, the history of the suffrage in the District of Columbia," to be used in the campaign.

2. Establishment of a Congressional Support Committee to handle and coordinate activities with Congress.

3. Establishment om a Community Support Committee, whose activities will largely be devoted to stimulating action and interest in the District."

4. A recommendation that Suffrage Conference President Wilbur S. Finch assume responsibility for the functions of the committees set up.

Finch appointed a special policy committee of seven members to act with authority to modify the report and recommend further action on it.

Falls Church Adopts $265,485 Budget, With 30-Cent Tax Rise

The Washington Post

FALLS CHURCH DISPLAY—Police of Falls Church, along with other city departments, set up exhibits to illusrtate their immediate needs in connection with the city budget hearing last night. Sergt. Lloyd Kelly explains the use of a gas gun to City Manager Roy F. Dunn. Machineguns, leg irons and a mobile public-address system are among items needed by the police

By Don Oliesen
Post Reporter

A $265,485 budget calling for a 30-cent increase in the tax rate was unanimously approved last night by the Falls Church City Council.

Before the council adopted its new budget, it heard criticism of several expenditures voiced by some of the 60 citizens who attended the public hearing on the budget in the Odd Fellows Hall.

Prime target of several critics was the budget proposal to spend $14,000 for a survey to determine whether Falls Church should annex part of adjoining Fairfax County.

Councilman Samuel Dennis pointed out that $2500 of the $14,000 would be spent initially to see whether the remaining full $11,500 annexation survey would be feasible.

Three taxpayers asked why the annexation survey could not be conducted by city officials to save the expense of hiring annexation experts.

One of them, Joel Harris of 1339 Lee highway, questioned the whole feasibility of annexation and whether the people of Falls Church "are prepared to support its costs."

In answer, City Attorney LaRue Van Meter said the survey would be so complicated that experience in legal aspects of annexation would be necessary.

He warned that there "may be another town formed" out of the proposed annexation area unless Falls Church moves first, or that Alexandria or Arlington might take over the area.

The new budget provides for an increase of $49,859 over last year's 12-month budget. The new budget covers only a 10-month period because of a change in the Falls Church fiscal year date.

The new budget calls for an increased tax levy of from $1.50 to $1.80 per $100 of assessed property valuation. This includes a 5-cent increase in the fire levy and a 25-cent increase in the real estate tax.

Police Plan Is Explained

ter give this some more thought then."

When asked what constituted an emergency, Commissioner Young read from the order establishing the force. This defines an emergency as a "riot, pestilence, invasion, insurrection, or during any day of public election, ceremony or celebration."

"I don't understand the papers' excitement. We've had the powers to do this for a long, long time. I think the people will thank us when the need for the auxiliary police arises," Young told reporters.

The police corps project was proposed by Major Barrett on October 27 in a letter to the Commissioners. At that time, he wrote:

"The Metropolitan Police Department at this time is faced with an acute shortage of personnel, despite all our efforts and those of the United States Civil Service Commission to recruit personnel up to the full authorized strength.

"Among other events that will occur in the near future will be the inauguration of a President of the United States on January 20, 1949."

Barrett said in view of this and "the many increasing demands for police service" it has been deemed "highly desirable" to form a trained reserve of special police privates without pay as an integral part of the Metropolitan Police Department.

No mention of the civil defense program was made at that time.

Last Tuesday, the Commissioners took the proposal under consideration at their usual semi-weekly closed meeting. After the session, a spokesman for the Commissioners announced they had approved the proposal, but made no mention of the civil defense aspect.

Since then editorials have appeared in The Washington Post, the Washington Evening Star and the Washington Daily News scoring the project.

Commissioner Young's colleague, Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, partially confirmed his position that the decision was made on civil defense considerations. He said the auxiliary force "is an implementation of the civil defense report and grew out of it."

General Young, who has been studying the proposed civil defense program prepared at the Pentgon, said he doubted that he would recommend "any further implementation" other than appointment of men to head up various forces such as auxiliary firemen and air-raid wardens "and get them talking about it. It would be a paper set-up," he explained.

Meanwhile, Major Barrett, nonplussed by the District Building statements, declared that Commissioner Young had not notified him of the decision on the carrying of guns by auxiliary policemen. He emphasized that planning for the entire project was in "a preliminary stage."

He announced that it was doubtful that any of the police reserves would be available for assistance at inaugural ceremonies, as he had originally proposed, because of the brief training possible by then.

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 29 (AP). Czech refugee officials said tonight Dr. Rudolph Madar, former secretary of the Czechoslovak Parliament, has fled to the United States zone of Germany.

A few hours earlier, Dr. Arnost Heidrich, secretary general of the Czechoslovak Foreign Ministry, had fled with his wife and 7-year-old son. He had served under the late Jan Massaryk and continued in the Foreign Office under Communist Vlado Clements.

Madar, a liberal member of the old National Socialist Party, resigned his parliamentary post after the Communist coup in February.

Execution Stay for Slayers Is Denied by Supreme Court

Reginald J. Wheeler and Jesse James Patton, convicted of murder in a $125 drug store holdup and shooting June 5, 1946, apparently lost their last hope yesterday of avoiding execution Friday.

Chief Justice Vinson denied a plea for a stay of execution made by James J. Laughlin, attorney for Wheeler. Curtis Mitchell, attorney for Patton, indicated that action killed all hope for his client as well.

Patton, now 23 and Wheeler, 28, had received several postponements of execution since their conviction of killing Maurice L. Bernstein, 52, in his drug and liquor store at 1786 Florida ave. nw. In confessions, which they later declared were obtained by beatings, Wheeler said he unintentionally shot the druggist as Bernstein entered the store from a cellar door to find the two bandits holding three clerks and a boy customer at bay with revolvers, and rifling the cash register.

Jail officials have begun preparations for the executions between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Friday.

Seven other electrocutions are scheduled for the near future.

January 7—John H. Hall, 33, convicted of raping an 8-year-old girl in 1946; George A. Garner, 25, and his brother, Lawrence, 23, convicted of killing two cab drivers last February 27.

January 14—Herbert Hall, 19; Joseph A. Gray, 20, and Shirley Harris, 24, convicted of killing Frank Kelly, 55, of 4004 New Hampshire ave. nw., in a holdup in March, 1947.

January 15 — Theodore M. Holmes, 23, for raping a 9-year-old girl near the National Arboretum last March 18.

Guatemala Blocks Plot to Seize Port

Guatemala, Guatemala, Nov. 29 (AP).—A government minister said tonight authorities in Puerto Barrios, chief seaport of Guatamala, had captured arms and ammunition and prevented what apparently was a plot to seize the city's military base.

The minister said two policemen were wounded but he denied there had been any shooting. Some persons were arrested, he said. The minister said constitutional guarantees will not be suspended and promised full details of the incident later.

An informant who was in Puerto Barrios Saturday night when the incident occurred said he heard firing outside the city but that the city itself remained calm.

(Unofficial reports in Mexico City last night said government troops in Guatamala had prevented an armed band from marching on and seizing Puerto Barrios. They said a band of unknown size was engaged by Guatemalan troops on the outskirts of the city Saturday night. Considerable firing was heard.

Israel Makes Formal Application for United Nations Membership

Paris, Nov. 29 (AP).—Israel formally asked for United Nations membership today on the first anniversary of the U. N. vote to partition Palestine.

Flanked by advisers and U. N. officials, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok handed his government's application to U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie shortly after noon, (EST).

Israeli sources expressed confidence the application would receive the necessary seven votes in the Security Council and the required two-thirds majority in the General Assembly.

France and Belgium appeared to hold the deciding votes in the 11-member Security Council. Both favored partition last year. French sources said the French cabinet would decide the issue. Belgian delegates also were awaiting instructions.

Other Council members, on the basis of recent declarations, probably will line up this way:

For admitting Israel: the United States, Russia, Soviet Ukraine, Canada, Colombia and Argentina—six votes.

Against admitting Israel: Syria.

Abstaining: Britain and China.

There was no immediate indication when the Security Council will take up the application. It will have to act quickly, however, if the Assembly is to vote on the application at this session, now scheduled to end by December 11.

Israel is the thirteenth on the list of countries seeking to enter the U. N. The other 12 have been barred by Russian vetoes or by failure to gain the required majority.

The ceremony in Lie's office at the Palais de Chaillot came at the same hour of the day here as the hour in New York last year when the Assembly approved the partition plan.

Both Sides Order Firing Ended in Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Nov. 29 (AP).—Jewish and Arab commanders in Jerusalem ordered their forces today to cease fire as the result of talks started Saturday under U. N. auspices.

Jerusalem was quieter than it has been for weeks as a result. Indications were that both sides thus far have adhered to the agreement.

Lieut. Col. Moshe Dayan acted for Israel and Lieut. Col. Abdullah Bey el Tel for the Arabs. The orders went to regular Jewish and Arab legion forces and to irregulars.

Stern Gang Jail Break Is Foiled by Police

Tel Aviv, Israel, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Seventy members of the Stern gang were foiled in an attempted jail break near here today when they were trapped by military police after they had set fire to their prison and made their way through the gates.

When the fire touched off panic inside the prison and threatened to burn the inmates, police opened the doors, authorities said. But when the Sternists rushed out they were stopped by a wall of armed police.

Bombing Tests To Be Held Over Dayton

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 29 (AP).—The Strategic Air Command of the United States Air Force has selected Dayton as the target for the greatest mass-bombing exercises in peacetime history, officials of Wright-Patterson Air Force base announced today.

Beginning this week, SAC bombers from every section of the Nation will converge on Dayton for the exercises.

For the next 60 days, the city's main downtown intersection, Main and Third sts., will be the target of make-believe 1000-pound bombs, Air Force officials said.

Field officers declined to announce the number of bombers to be involved in the long exercises, but said Dayton was selected as the first in a series of industrial targets.

Selection was made, they said, on the basis of long-range weather forecasts, which indicate adverse weather conditions in this area for the next two months. Air officers said they wanted "bad weather" as part of the simulated bombing attack.

Called "Operation Obliteration," the exercises are planned to correspond with actual combat conditions as much as possible, even to the adverse weather conditions.

Accuracy of radar bombing operations will be recorded by the Air Force's new radar bombing squadron—first such mobile unit of its type in the Air Force.

The scoring unit will be based at Wright-Patterson Field. Officers said it operates this way:

Effective within a 125-mile radius, it picks up approaching bombers and follows them into the target. Through special devices located within the unit, technicians are able to record the instant of release of the 1000-pound bombs from the aircraft.

Flapping Wing Flight Is Goal

Wright Field, Dayton, Nov. 29 (NYHT). — Mechanical flapping wing flight, the goal of inventors for many centuries, recently has come closer to reality as a result of experiments by Adam J. Stolzenberger, a young engineer at this Air Force research center, it was learned here today.

Since early this year, when he became interested in the problems of flapping wing flight, Stolzenberger has built as a personal project more than 250 mechanical birds of various shapes and sizes including those of eagles, swallows and humming birds.

These take off unassisted from a fixed point, climb above the point of take off and maintain level flight for considerable distances. Patents on a large size ornithopter—the scientific name for flapping wing aircraft—capable of carrying a human passenger aloft have just been taken out by Stolzenberger. He hopes to be the first person in history to make practical the ideas advanced five centuries ago by Leonardo da Vinci, who drew detailed plans for a man-carrying flying machine patterned after a bird, to be powered by the arms and legs of the pilot.

Aeronautical engineers have long believed that this method of propelling and sustaining an aircraft in the air would provide greater efficiency than any method of flight now known.

Wheat Pact in View As FAO Adjourns

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization ended its 58-nation conference at the Shoreham yesterday warning that even with this year's good crops, the world is not yet safe from hunger.

After the conference, Secretary Charles F. Brannan discussed with newsmen the steps under way for a new international wheat agreement, and long-range programs that may bring about similar agreements on other food commodities.

Brannan declared that he would be "most reluctant" to accept a price floor of lower than $1.50 a bushel in any new world arrangement. The five-year wheat agreement proposed last year, but which Congress refused to ratify, had such a floor for the first year, with a declining scale of 10 cents a bushel annually for the next four yetars. It had a ceiling of $2 a bushels, which all involved now belive will be difficult to secure from importing nations this year.

Brannan said there are "many strong arguments" for even a higher price than last year, citing higher production costs for raising wheat.

The first wheat agreement would have guaranteed American growers an export market of 185 million bushels a year for the five-year period. World wheat prices have declined sharply since that agreement was drawn.

Negotiations are under way for the new meeting of the international group that drew up the previous agreement. The chairman, Charles F. Wilson of Canada, was present for the FAO conference, and already has started talks with others who took part in the 28-nation pact.

A tentative date for the wheat meeting has been set for January 25. The place has not been decided. Several persons expressed a preference for London.

Both Russia and Argentina, large wheat producers, will be invited to the new meeting, Brannan predicted, along the line of the invitation extended to them by President Truman to join FAO last Wednesday. Argentina helped draft but did not sign the previous agreement.

The council of FAO meantime is instructed to study programs for similar world agreements on other commodities such as sugar, rice and fats and oils, and report the results of its studies to the next annual confeernce of FAO in Havana.

The United States has indicated it would favor such agreements as a means of stabilizing world production. A world rubber agreement may also be studied.

In its report on the world food situation, the conference stated:

"The great improvement in recent months, particularly in regard to cereals, may too easily engender a false sense of security.

"First of all, this year's harvest was far above what could be expected in an average year.

"Secondly, the increased dependence of the world on supplies from North America increases the element of risk, because of the extreme fluctuations of output which may occur in the United States and Canada.

"Thirdly, world stocks of food have been cut to the barest minimum, and will still be low at the end of 1948-1949 crop year, so that the world will again depend on the luck of next year's harvest.

"For all these reasons, optimism must be tempered with caution in appraising the future food outlook."

The conference predicted that the demand for American food may continue to remain far above prewar, when much of Europe's supplies came from Russia.

"The reeent changes in agricultural structure in east and southeast Europe," it reported, "may well reduce the movement of the more primary agricultural products from eastern to western Europe.

"The USSR is planning expansion mainly in respect of industrial crops. Unless the agricultural development envisaged for the eastern regions of the USSR is particularly rapid and successful, it is doubtful whether she will become a large exporter of foodstuffs in the near future, except in extremely favorable seasons."

The report then touched on a subject of great concern all through the long conference.

"The maintenance of expansion of high levels of production in North America . . . would be universally welcomed prpvided that satisfactory solutions could be found to the international trade and payment problems."

Army Probes Shooting at Arlington

MRS. IRENE COSLETT

The Army yesterday was questioning a Fort Myer, Va., soldier who admitted presence near the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier Saturday night touched off a series of circumstances leading to the wounding of a woman in her apartment about ½ mile away.

Criminal investigation agents for the Military District of Washington said the man was not placed under arrest. They declined to identify him.

Also under scrutiny was the bullet believed fired by Pvt. William O'Conner, 20, of Bedford, Mass., a sentry at the shrine. O'Conner told Army authorities he fired warning shots into the air after receiving no answer from what he thought to be a trespasser near the tomb.

Injured by a bullet was Mrs. Irene Coslett, 24, wife of First Lieut. Robert T. Coslett, in her apartment at nearby Arlington Farms. She is reported in good condition at Walter Reed Hospital after an operation to remove the bullet.

question is what further aid the United States can extend which would be proper and at the same time hold some promise of being effective. The American aid furnished this far has failed to halt the Communists. Much of the American arms supplied the Nationalist forces have been surrendered to the Communists in Manchuria and North China.

Administration leaders have indicated privately they have lost confidence in the ability of Chiang and the Nationalist regime to halt and eventually reverse the Communist advance.

Anti-Communist Bloc May Be Proposed

Nanking, China, Nov. 29 (U.P.). Madame Chiang Kai-shek, en route to Washington in a U. S. Navy plane, may urge the United States and Britain to organize an anti-Communist bloc in the Far East, the official Central Daily News hinted today.

The government organ said creation of such a bloc was "even more vital" than American aid.

The editorial reflected the prevailing official viewpoint that the Nationalists alone, even with American help, would not be able to stem the Communists forces' advance in China.

Chinese Loan Out, Says Bank Head

New Orleans, Nov. 29 (U.P.)—William McChesney Martin, president of the United States Export-Import Bank, said today the bank would not even consider a loan now to Nationalist China.

"If peace is restored, then the Bank would consider a loan," he said.

He said China had paid back 150 million dollars borrowed from the Bank and owes about 66 million dollars.

"So far China has been good business, but I do not believe we could safely take a chance today," he said.

Attic Fire Routs 200 At Children's Home

Yonkers, N. Y., Nov. 29 (U.P.)—A mysterious fire in the attic of the Leake and Watts Children's Home routed 200 youngsters into the rain in their nightclothes early today.

It was the second fire of undetermined origin at the home in seven weeks. Officials are investigating.

U. S. Moves To Send Back 84 Estonians

The Government has taken preliminary steps to return to Sweden 84 Estonians who came to this country without immigration permits. They are held at Ellis Island.

The Immigration Service, it was learned, has asked the State Department to negotiate with Swedish authorities for acceptance of the group. The Swedish Embassy said it had not heard of the plan yet.

The Estonians crossed the Atlantic last summer in small boats from Sweden and landed at Wilmington, N. C.

The first such small groups of refugees who showed up in this country after the war were allowed, under a liberal policy, to enter. But the Immigration Service is understood to feel now that it is impossible to continue such a practice indefinitely and on a large scale.

World's Wheat Crop Above 1935-39 Level

This year's estimated world wheat crop of 6,285,000,000 bushels compares with an annual avgrage of 6,010,000,000 for the 1935-39 period.

In a story Sunday night the figure for the 1935-39 average was transmitted incorreotly as 7,010,000,000.

Western Bloc Gives Draft of Pact to U. S.; Discussions Due to Open Here This Week

London, Nov. 29 (AP).—The five-nation Western European Alliance has presented to American officials its draft of a proposed defense agreement with the United States and Canada, a British government source said today.

As now drafted, the document is a "working paper" subject to revision in Washington talks expected to begin late this week, diplomatic sources said.

Representatives of the alliance countries—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—have been working on the plan for the past month in secret meetings in London.

Although exact details of the documents have not been disclosed, informants said the proposed pact is expected to call for a pledge of mutual assistance without definite committal to go to war in case of attack on any member.

Diplomatic officials said the document also would repledge adherence of the participating countries to the principles of the United Nations and establish the groundwork for close cooperation in planning common defense.

I HATE DANDRUFF!

Thousands weary of ordinary preparations that are no more effective than plain water and brushing have found that Double Danderine gives real dandruff relief!

Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF

Kills dandruff-causing germ*—on contact!

This special, refreshingly fragrant dandruff preparation has given truly remarkable results—even in some of the most stubborn cases!

If you have dandruff...and like so many people, have tried one preparation after another in a vain attempt to get effective relief...you'll be happy to know about Double Danderine. For as thousands have discovered, Double Danderine is one thing that really works.

Ordinary dandruff-combatting methods that simply remove loose dandruff don't give you the effective relief you want. For they don't destroy the germ which leading authorities explain is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff. Actually, they do no more than plain water and brushing will do! But Double Danderine is different. Because it kills this germ on contact, it provides real dandruff relief.

That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try it. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.

Ask for Double Danderine. Remember—it's not a shampoo, but a special, easy-to-use dandruff preparation you can depend upon!

*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

West German Production Gains Told

Berlin, Nov. 29 (AP).—Western Germany will be self-supporting by the time Marshall Plan aid ends in 1952, Phillips Hawkins, a Military Government economist, said today.

Hawkins, who is deputy economics adviser to the American Military Governor, said production in the three western zones is now 73 per cent of the 1936 output, which he considers normal.

This compares with a production 38 per cent of normal last summer before currency reforms were made.

Hawkins said production in the Soviet zone, on the other hand, has fallen to half what it was when the currency reforms went into effect. The Soviet slump, he said, was due partly to the Soviet blockade and partly to the counter-blockade imposed by the Western powers.

The German economic situation was outlined by Hawkins to a group of correspondents who have been covering the United Nations Assembly in Paris.

Hawkins said steel production in western Germany now is at the rate of 7 million tons a year, or twice what it was four months ago. Coal production has reached 325,000 tons daily, compared to 280,000 tons before the currency reform.

He said German exports now had increased to a rate of 670 million dollars a year. This is more than double the rats last year. The increase meant the western zones now could buy raw materials and machinery abroad to build up still more rapidly.

The counter-blockade imposed by the Western powers not only hurt the Russians but it helped industry in the western zones by giving them coal which normally would have been allocated to the East.

Atlantic Pact Backing Seen

after returning to his office from several weeks in Texas, and said he had not had a chance to discuss foreign problems with President Truman or Secretary Marshall.

He expressed the personal belief that the Berlin situation "seems to be brightening up," and that there would be a settlement "relieving us from any threat of conflict." He also thought the Administration should be thinking now of having a peace conference to settle the German and Austrian treaties.

"Certainly we don't want to start making a peace treaty until he Russians lift the blockade and start behaving themselves," the Senator said. His own version of the Berlin crisis—which by no means agreed with the State Department—was that there was a tentative agreement on the Berlin currency last summer, but that "we didn't go along."

The three Western governments have contended that the Soviet commander in Berlin made final agreement impossible after agreement in principle had been reached in Moscow.

Connally said it did not matter greatly what kind of currency circulated in Berlin and it did not justify the cost of the airlift. Whatever happens over the currency, he said, we are not going to fight over it.

Dealing with foreign problems, Connally said the so-called watchdog committee of Congress should be continued, "although I don't think they've accomplished a great deal." When he was in Europe last summer, he said, "we had more watchdogging than relief and recovery."

He thought the watchdog committee should give a hearing to Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, but declined to say whether he favored more help to China. He remarked that although Chiang was called generalissimo "he hasn't done much generaling" and might accomplish something by going out to lead an army in the field.

"I don't favor sending American combat troops to China," he said.

He thought the coming request for new foreign aid authorization "isn't so terribly urgent" because the new money would not be needed until April 1. The European countries were "doing better" in self-help, he said, especially in Italy.

The prospective chairman said his committee would continue to work "on a bipartisan plan" after the January change-over to Democratic control.

The plan would recommend a complete and final lifting of the Berlin blockade at the same time the Soviet zone mark is introduced in Berlin as the sole currency.

Navy Promotions Board Meets Here

A board of 15 Navy admirals called from the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets and shore stations convened here yesterday to pick commanders of the line for promotion to captain.

The Navy said the "promotion zone" will include all commanders down to and including Comdr. Hayes E. Irons. Others junior to him with at least five years in grade as of next July are eligible, but few of them are expected to be considered.

The board is composed as follows:

Rear Admiral Roscoe E. Schuirmann, U. S. N., President.

Rear Admiral Glenn B. Davis, U. S. N.

Rear Admiral Calvin T. Durgin, U. S. N.

Rear Admiral Allan R. McCann, U. S. N.

Rear Admiral Clifton A. F. Sprague, U. S. N.

Rear Admiral Fred D. Kirtland, U. S. N.

Rear Admirals Charles Wellborn, jr., Apollo Soucek, and Byron H. Hanlon will be additional members of the board for action in unrestricted and special duty line officers.

Rear Admirals Grover C. Klein, Frederick E. Haeberle, and David H. Clark will be board members for action on officers designated for engineering duty.

Rear Admirals Charles A. Nicholson 2d, Lucien M. Grant and Lloyd Harrison will be members of the selection board for aeronautics engineering duty.

Heart Group Maps Drive For $75,000

Members of the Washington Heart Association's campaign committee, headed by John H. Wilkens, jr., met yesterday in the Hotel Statler to organize a drive for $75,000 "to subdue and lessen the burden of heart disease."

The Washington group, which serves as a research and educational center, as well as a clearing house for heart patients, will launch its campaign on Valentine Day in February as part of the American Heart Association's Nation-wide drive for five million dollars.

Dr. Bernard J. Walsh, secretary of the Washington association, outlined its activities, which include supervision of seven hospital clinics on heart patients discharged from District hospitals and operation of an in-bed club to cheer up young victims of the disease.

Walsh termed increased community services the association's "greatest and most immediate need," and pointed out that at least three of the heart clinics here are handicapped greatly by lack of physical examining equipment.

Others who addressed the Washington association, which operates on an interracial basis, were William E. Leahy, District Director of Selective Service; Dr. A. R. Connor, medical director of the American Heart Association; William E. Cotter, AHA executive vice chairman, and J. A. Ade, national AHA fund-raising director.

This is the first public appeal for funds by the 30-year-old Washington Heart Association, which withdrew this year from the Greater Washington Community Chest Federation.

2 Condemned Japs Appeal

Two Japanese condemned to die as war criminals made an eleventh-hour appeal to the United States Supreme Court yesterday.

The high court has turned down all similar appeals by many Germans.

The Japanese were Gen. Kenji Dohihara, 64, nicknamed the "Bird of Evil Omen" by Chinese who dreaded his exploits as the Japanese army's undercover agent in China and Manchuria, and former Premier Koki Hirota, 70, who helped engineer Japan's pre-Pearl Harbor war plans.

Five others including former Premier Hideki Tojo, 63, also are awaiting execution. No appeals were filed on their behalf.

American attorneys for Dohihara and Hirota, William Logan, jr., of New York, and David F. Smith of Washington, challenged the legality of the trials. They wanted the executions stayed, with hearings to be held here.

Appeals on behalf of five others who were given only prison sentences will be filed later, the attorneys said.

Court attaches said they assumed the executions of Dohihara and Hirota, scheduled for some time this week, will be postponed pending adecision by the court.

The court will meet again December 6, but there was no indication as to when it will act.

sack. There was also a great amount of minted gold from the different countries of Europe and even a few millions of gold coins from the United States.

Crammed into suitcases and trunks and other containers was a great amount of gold and silver plate and ornaments obviously looted from private dwellings throughout Europe. All the articles had been flattened by hammer blows, obviously to save storage space, and then merely thrown into the receptacle, apparently pending an opportunity to melt them down into gold or silver bars.

It is probable, of course, that sooner or later the mine would have been carefully searched by the captors. But according to Patton, except for the instincts of human decency on the part of two Americans, we might not have discovered it until much of it had been more securely hidden away. The story was this:

In the little neighboring town the advancing Americans had established a curfew law. Any civilian in the streets after dark was instantly picked up for questioning. One evening a roving patrol in a jeep saw a German woman hurrying along the street after curfew and stopped to speak to her. She protested that she was rushing off to get a midwife for her neighbor, who was about to have a child. The American soldiers decided to check on the story, being quite ready to help if it should prove to be correct.

They took the German woman into their jeep, picked up the midwife and returned to the accouchement, which was all as described by the German woman. The soldiers, still helpful, remained long enough to return the German woman and her midwife friend to their homes. As they were going along the street they passed the mouth of one of the salt mines of that region and one of the women remarked: "That's the mine in which the gold is buried."

This remark excited the curiosity of the soldiers and they questioned the women suffigiently to learn that some weeks earlier great loads of material had been brought from the east to be put into the mine. The soldiers reported the story to their superiors, who, in turn, sought out some of the German officials of the mining corporation and the whole treasure fell into our hands.

The same day I saw my first horror camp. It was near the town of Gotha. I have never felt able to describe my emotional reactions when I first came face to face with indisputable evidence of Nazi brutality and ruthless disregard of every shred of decency. Up to that time I had known about it only generally or through secondary sources. I am certain, however, that I have never at any other time experienced an equal sense of shock.

I visited every nook and cranny of the camp because I felt it my duty to be in a position from then on to testify at first hand about these things in case there ever grew up at home the belief or assumption that "the stories of Nazi brutality were just propaganda." Some members of the visiting party were unable to go through the ordeal.

The day of April 12 ended on a note of dramatic climax. Bradley, Patton and I sat up late talking of future plans, particularly of the selection of officers and units for early redeployment to the Pacific. We went to bed just before 12 o'clock, Bradley and I in a small house at Patton's headquarters, and he in his trailer. His watch had stopped, and he turned on the radio to get the time signals from the British Broadcasting Corp. While doing so he heard the news of President Roosevelt's death. He stepped back into the house, woke up Bradley, and then the two of them came to my room to tell me the shocking news.

We pondered over the effect the President's death might have upon the future peace. We were certain that there would be no interference with the tempo of the war because we already knew something of the great measures afoot in the Pacific to accomplish the smashing of the Japanese. We were, of course, ignorant of any special or specific arrangements that President Roosevelt had made affecting the later peace. But we were doubtful that there was any other individual in America as experienced as he in the business of dealing with the other Allied political leaders.

With some of Mr. Roosevelt's political acts I could never possibly agree. But I knew him solely in his capacity as leader of a nation at war—and in that capacity he seemed to me to fulfill all that could possibly be expected of him.

Almost coincidentally with our arrival on the Elbe the Red Army launched a powerful westward drive from its positions on the Oder. The attack was on a front of more than 200 miles. The Red drive made speedy progress everywhere. Its northern flank pushed in the direction of the Danish peninsula, the center toward the Dresden area. On April 25 patrols of the Sixty-ninth Division of the V Corps met elements of the Red Army's Fifty-eighth Guards Division on the Elbe. The meeting took place at Torgau, some 75 miles south of Berlin.

Because of differences in language front-line radios were useless as a means of communication between the two converging forces. The only solution to the problem seemed to lie in timely agreements upon markings and procedures.

As early as the beginning of April the air forces of the Western Allies and the Russians had come into contact, with some unfortunate results. Shots had been exchanged between Red aircraft and our own, and the danger of major clashes continued to increase.

The task of organizing a system of recognition signals was laborious and was not fully accomplished until April 20. However, both sides had already agreed upon restraining lines for the use of their air forces, and by the exercise of care, accompanied by a considerable degree of good fortune no really serious errors took place.

The mission of Devers' Sixth Army Group during the early days of April was to protect the right flank of Bradley's advance. To carry out this mission Devers organized a methodical advance by Patch's Seventh Army on his left and the French Army on his right.

The French Army, of course, went into the attack under the orders of General Devers, who was responsible for the allocation of army boundaries, routes of supply, and all the other administrative arrangements necessary for troop maintenance throughout his army group. These boundaries placed the city of Stuttgart in Patch's Seventh Army zone, because the supply routes of the Americans would necessarily run through that place. The city was captured by the French, who afterward refused to evacuate to permit its use by Patch.

So unyielding were the French in their assertion that national prestige was involved that the argument was referred to me. I instructed Devers to stand firm and to require compliance with his plan. The French still proved obstinate and referred the matter to Paris. Not content with this, General De Gaulle continued to maintain an unyielding attitude on the governmental level in his reply to a sharply worded message from the President of the United States on the subject. The threat of a possible curtailment of equipment for the French forces proved effective, and the French finally complied.

The French position in the war was, of course, not an easy one. Once known as the foremost military power of Europe, their army as well as their pride had been shattered in the great debacle of 1940. Consequently when the Torch invasion of 1942 again gave patriotic Frenchmen an opportunity to join in the fight against the Nazis they were sensitive to all questions of national pride and honor. Nevertheless, America's investment in the French forces paid magnificent dividends.

Among the French were numbers of important individuals who never caused the slighest trouble; men whose breadth of vision and understanding of the issues at stake made them splendid allies. I personally liked General De Gaulle as I recognized in him many fine qualities.

We felt, however, that these qualities were marred by hypersensitiveness and an extraordinary stubborness in matters which appeared inconsequential to us. My own wartime contacts with him never developed the heat that seemed to be generated frequently in his meetings with many others.

When Bremen finally fell to Montgomery's force April 26, the resistance in his front became markedly weaker. He quickly transferred his main effort to the sector of the British VIII Corps, which launched an attack across the Elbe April 29. The U. S. XVIII Corps made a simultaneous crossing somewhat to the south and provided right-flank protection to the British Second Army in its further advances.

On May 1 the Eleventh Armored Division of the British 8 Corps began a brilliant dash across Schleswig-Holstein to the Baltic and entered Lubeck on the afternoon of May 2. This sealed off the enemy in Denmark and also prevented any of the defeated forces in Germany from withdrawing into that country.

Montgomery now rapidly consolidated his gains all along his front and on May 3 the United States XVIII Corps made contact with the Russians in Montgomery's sector. With Berlin in flames and the northern flank of the Red army attack sweeping in our direction across Germany, all resistance collapsed.

Swarms of Germans streaming back from the Russian front now began giving themselves up to the Anglo-American armies. American troops standing on the Elbe daily received these prisoners by the thousands.

The Wagnerian ending which Hitler had so carefully planned for his Third Reich was the disintegration of a massive army and the collapse of an entire continent. General Eisenhower held tight to a few simple rules in the confusion which swirled all around the Allied armies. They led him without major trouble, even with the Russians, to the fateful moment in the early morning of May 7 when Field Marshal Jodl signed an unconditional surrender in Eisenhower's office at Reims, saluted, and walked out. The war was over.

General Eisenhower's own account of this great climax to his "Crusade in Europe" will be published here tomorrow. It will be the twenty-fifth installment of his own personal story of the European war.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book published by Doubleday & Company. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Company, Inc.

AT GOTHA CAMP—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower looks on grimly as occupants of concentration camp at Gotha demonstrate how they were tortured by Nazi sadists operating the camp. The Allied commander in chief visited Gotha while on tour of the United States Third Army front in April, 1945. With him here are the late Gen. George S. Patton of the Third Army (left) and Gen. Omar N. Bradley (second from left), then commander of the 12th Army Group and now Army Chief of Staff. This picture was taken in April, 1945

Albanian Cabinet Shakeup Reported

London, Nov. 29 (AP).—A general shakeup of the Albanian cabinet was reported today by the Albanian Telegraph Agency. This was the second reshuffle of the cabinet within two months.

The dispatch did not explain the reason for the changes. A Yugoslav source in London, however, expressed the belief the shifts were the result of "a big fight" at a recent Congress of the Albanian Communist Party over Albania's relations with Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Death-Car Driver Held for Grand Jury

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered James Turner Gibson, jr., 32, of 5001 Sheriff rd. ne., held for action of the grand jury at an inquest in the traffic death of Victoria Jones, 65, of 350 McLean st. sw.

The woman was fatally injured Thanksgiving night in the 5200 block of Central ave. ne., when she was struck by an auto, which continued on without stopping. Gibson was identified by police as the auto driver and was charged with manslaughter, driving while drunk and leaving after colliding.

He appeared before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence for arraignment on the charges on November 25. Lawrence continued the case to December 9 and set bond at $2500.

Melvin F. Gusdorf, jr., 21, a George Washington University student, residing at 4700 Connecticut ave. nw., received a one-year probation term for the death of Mrs. Hattie Schneider, 64, of Toledo, Ohio, after pleading "no contest" at a Municipal Court hearing.

The accident occurred January 17 at Pennsylvania ave. and East Executive drive. Injured also was Mrs. Schneider's daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Kremer, 44, a department store clerk of 515 Franklin st. ne. Both women were pedestrians.

William B. King, 20, a former Marine, of 4319 44th st. nw., was released on his personnel bond after he also pleaded no contest. He was charged with the death of Miss Beverly Edwards, 19, of 4522 15th st. nw., on November 14.

According to police, King's automobile in which Miss Edwards was a passenger, hit a light pole near Klingle rd. and the Porter st. bridge. Miss Edwards was tossed from the car by the impact, it was said.

ABC Ruling Awaited Today

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is expected to hand down a decision today on 55 charges brought against Mitchell's Grill, 235 G st. nw.

The case was taken under advisement November 17, after several weeks of controversial hearings in which one policeman accusd another of "framing up" the charges.

As a result of the hearings both Pvt. Frank N. Manthos and Pvt. Samuel E. Wallace, who, Manthos charged had framed the grill owners, were transferred from their assignments as undercover men with the vice squad to duty as uniformed foot patrolmen in the precincts. Police officials said the men lost their usefulness as undercover men because of the publicity resulting from the hearings.

A third vice squad man, Pvt. Miles Richey, who was called to testify at the hearing, was also transferred to a precinct as a patrolman. Inspector George Wallrodt is investigating the frame-up charges.

Charges against the grill, the largest number ever filed in the history of the ABC Board, included sale to intoxicated persons, use of premises for unlawful purposes, such as permitting intoxicated persons to remain; use of premises for disorderly purposes, including solicitation of prostitution, and others.

$700,000 Income Looms for Mother

Binghamton, N. Y., Nov. 29 (AP). A Binghamton family of five hoped today that their hard times were ended.

Mrs. William Henry Pratt, 37, the mother of three, said she had been notified that an oil discovery in Illinois might bring her an income of $700,000 a year. Her husband is unemployed.

"I guess I am the luckiest girl in the world," she said.

An investigator located Mrs. Pratt at the request of Ross Bartness, an oil operator. Bartness estimated that, as an heir to mineral rights on a 40-acre tract at West Frankfort, Ill., Mrs. Pratt might receive as much as $700,000 a year.

The oil operator is unable to exploint his discovery until leases have been signed by heirs of Dennis H. Sweet, Mrs. Pratt's grandfather. Sweet sold the land some years ago, but retained mineral

Traffic Tickets Adjusted for 106 Drivers

A motorist, who was detained by a long distance telephone call, and another, whose watch had stopped, were among 106 persons for whom traffic tickets were adjusted last week.

Police said they granted Dr. Joseph Hasek of 2700 Porter st. nw., a warning for parking in a "no parking from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone, after he explained that he was held up by the telephone call.

Also warned was Esther S. Wise of the Wardman Park Hotel, who had reecived a ticket for parking overtime. She said her watch had stopped and she misjudged the time, according to police.

Tickets were cancelled for the following motorists because of diplomatic immunity:

Baltazar Coronel, Peruvian Embassy, parked abreast; Georges Follebouckct, Belgian Embassy, parked less than 40 feet from an intersection; Hubert Treville, French Embassy, parked less than 40 feet from an intersection; Chenk Hu Wang, Chinese Embassy, parked in a "no-parking from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m." zone; Ogalik Eshi, 1606 23d st. nw., parked less than 40 feet from an intersection; Ali Fahim, Egyptian Embassy, parked in bus stop; Charles Schlumf, Legation of Switzerland, standing in a "no-standing from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone; Rodolfo E. Barbagelata, Argentine Embassy, parked in a bus stop; Phyllis M. Turkington of 4031 Davis pl. nw., parked overtime.

Census Analysis Of Silver Spring

Where Silver Spring begins and ends, and how many persons live there will be explained Wednesday night at 7:15 by A. Ross Eckler, assistant director of the Bureau of the Census.

Eckler will discuss the 1950 census at a meeting of the Silver Spring Board of Trade at the Indian Spring Country Club. He will be assisted in his presentation by Clarence Batschelet, geographer for the bureau.

The business session will be set aside for the election of a nominating committee to prepare a slate of officers for the election in January, Blair Lee, 3d, board president, said.

$1352.40 on a trade-in to $2100 on the resale of the car.

Ourisman challenged the committee's markup figures with this explanation. He said automobiles received by his firms as trade-ins often were sold in lots of four or five cars to other dealers, for a lump sum, and on the company records the breakdown of the prices for individual cars might not reflect the facts—that one car in the lot might show too high a price and another too low.

On this point, Ourisman invited the subcommittee to make a further analysis of his company's records.

While Ourisman was on the stand, Council Reddan read into the record this subcommittee analysis of trade in operations of the two firms in the first seven months of this year: The Ourisman firm took 1396 care in trade, the average dollar profit was $321.46, and the resale price averaged 100.2 per cent over the allowance for the car; the Mandell firm took 458 cars, and the average dollar profit was $374.10, while the resale price averaged 74.5 per cent over the allowance.

One of the witnesses called to tell about trading in his car was a shop employe of the Mandell firm—George Mullican of Takoma Park, Md. He was allowed $1352.40 on his 1947 Chevrolet toward the purchase of a 1948 one. The car he traded in was resold to a dealer for $2100. Purchase price of his new car was $1621.65.

Ourisman, commenting on the Mullican transaction, said he was somewhat surprised to hear those facts disclosed. He said the company policy was not to sell a used car above the list price for a new car. He said he could account for it only by suggesting that the dealer may have bought several other cars for a lump sum at the same time—in line with his earlier suggestion that the price shown on the books might have been offset by underestimating the price on other cars in the same lot.

In the windup of the hearing, A. W. Famular, representing the Chevrolet Division of General Motors, told the subcommittee that the day's testimony would be thoroughly analyzed and evaluated by executives in his firm's Detroit home office.

At one point Reddan handed Famular a copy of a recent speech by M. E. Coyle, executive vice president of General Motors, and ordered Famular to read this sentence into the record:

"Where dealers are guilty of loading cars with unwanted accessories on a 'take it or leave it' basis, under-allowing on used cars, demanding used cars be traded in to secure new car delivery, or in price packing, they will find they are not wanted by the factories when contract renewal times comes."

Central theme of yesterday's hearing was handling of customer's waiting lists. Ourisman declared, "We have endeavored, within the frailty of human nature, to do business on a first-come, first-served basis."

But he said he had favored his friends, his relatives, the people with whom he served in the Army, doctors, veterans, customers of long standing and "other persons from whom I felt I would receive business in the days to come."

"These are matters in which, like in any human relationship, we favor those to whom we have the strongest ties of affection, relationship and economic interest. It has never been thought morally wrong by me to have done this. I am certain that it is not against the law to do so."

Ourisman won a laugh when he told the subcommittee that a member of Congress by calling him would get prompt delivery of a new car.

Representative Henry D. Larcade, jr. (D., La.), asked how many cars he had sold to Congressmen.

"So few it is not worth while mentioning," said Ourisman. "But if a Congressman would call me and want a car, I wouldn't expect him to wait."

Larcade said, "I do not want the country to believe Congressmen have been getting all the autos and the citizens haven't been able to get them. I placed an order for a new car here in 1945, and haven't received it to this day. In the meantime, fortunately, I was able to get two cars from my local dealer in my home town."

Ourisman remarked, "I am sorry you didn't call us—we would have taken care of you."

"I certainly would have called you," said Larcade, "if I had thought you would let me have one."

Ourisman told the subcommittee that in the postwar period, starting around May, 1946, the Ourisman Co. had taken 10,467 orders for new cars, had delivered 6627 new cars, had taken cancellations of 2130 orders, and now has a waiting list of 1710 orders. (Between the morning and afternoon sessions some 15 orders were canceled, he reported.) He said the firm is now delivering cars for which orders were taken in July of 1947.

He said the firm now has about $151,000 in deposits—the rule is a $100 deposit with the order for a new car—and that these are held in a separate account in two local banks. Reddan suggested that the order blank gave inadequate guarantees to the customers that they could get their deposits back. Ourisman declared that "for the past 28 years we have never withheld a deposit when the customer requested it."

Ourisman told the committee that on the face of each order blank was stamped "Delivery not before 18 months."

"We are delivering within that 18 months period," he said.

Ourisman testified that deviations from a first-come-first-served policy represented a small percentage of his business.

Reddan asked whether there was any connection between deviations from the regular order and trade-ins.

Ourisman conceded that there was a connection. He said his firms want the business of customers with cars to trade in. Such business is more profiable, he said, adding:

"But the more important reason is that the man who buys from us and trades his car in is the type of customer who constantly does it. We have done it for 28 years. We have traded cars from our customers and kept our customers. We are losing over 100 a month and we are trying to save as many of those very good customers as we can for ourselves."

Subcommittee Investigator Woods testified that his examination of Ourisman Co. sales in the first 23 days of last June showed that of 82 new cars sold, 24 were delivered without a trade-in and their buyers had waited an average of 14 months; 58 were sold with trade-ins, and their buyers waited an average of 50 days.

Woods explained he had excluded from his list truck, taxi and fleet sales, and some others.

Ourisman estimated that the overall sales for June were about 220 cars, of which 42 per cent were sales without trade-ins.

Subcommittee Investigator Perlman said his examination of Mandell sales for June showed 7 cars sold without trade-ins, and 38 with trade-ins. Five of the customers without trade-ins waited 15 months or more; two got their cars in a week or less. The average wait for customers with trade-ins was 58 days. His list, too, excluded truck, taxi, fleet and other sales.

Ourisman said he was surprised that the 14-month waiting period mentioned by Woods was shorter than his own estimate. He emphasized that the orders being canceled at the rate of 100 a month are those of customers with valuable cars to trade in. "We are trying to salvage as many of these as we can," said Ourisman. "At the same time, however, we are retaining our responsibility and living up to our obligation to our customer when he agrees to wait 18 months."

Much of the hearing centered on the car-buying experiences of those who got quick deliveries of new cars from the Ourisman and Mandell firms by trading in cars, which were then resold at big markups to other dealers. The witnesses included:

M. Sergt. Clyde E. Kesler, 1049 N. Stuart st., Arlington, va., traded in a '40 Chevrolet coupe, allowance $50, resale price $400, delivery time of new car about two months after order was placed.

Mrs. Olive B. Minyard, 2805 Erie st. se.; allowed on trade-in $400; resale price of old car, $900; delivery time of new car, about three weeks. On the new car, $282 was paid for extras—"We would have taken most of the extras," she said. "In all fairness to Mandell Chevrolet, I feel we have been treated very fairly by them."

Mrs. Margarette V. Good, 5940 Lee hgy., Arlington, Va., old car allowance, $50, resale price, $225; new car delivery time, about two months. She said she protested having to take some $300 worth salesman that she could take it or of accessories, and was told by a leave it, also that she could not get the new one unless she traded in her old car.

James Patterson, 3417 A st. se.; old car allowance, $250, resale price, $600; delivery time of new car, about two months.

Lloyd B. MacEwen, Greenbelt, Md., old car allowance, $5; resale price, $200; new car delivery time, about three days.

Miss Virginia Schade, 3025 Yost pl. ne., trade-in allowance, $450; resale price of old car, $950; waiting time for new car delivery, 18 days.

Alexander Sedgwick, 4510 3d st. se., old car allowance, $937.30; resale price, $1450; new car delivery, about two or three weeks.

Naval Chief Petty Officer John F MacElwee, 4 Deck Green sw., trade-in allowance, $50; resale price, $450; new car delivery time, nearly four months.

Mrs. Louise C. McCauley, 808 S. Arlington Mill dr., Arlington, Va., trade-in allowance, $500; resale price, $900; new car delivery time, 11 days.

Wallace E. Perry, 2030 Lawrence st. ne., trade-in allowance, $150; resale price, $450; new car delivery time, three or four months.

Mrs. Margaret Johnson, 404 Columbia rd. nw., trade-in allowance, $1277.40; resale price, $1800. She traded in a 1947 Chevrolet, and the price of the new 1948 Chevrolet, $1604, was less than the resale price of the old one.

Others who testified included Miss Mae Latchford of 4408 Western ave., who said she was told she was fifth on a salesman's list of people who did not have cars to turn in, and after waiting some months, bought a car from a different firm; Fred J. Walker, 2609 4th st. ne., who denied that he had previously told investigators that an Ourisman salesman had indicated he would get quick delivery if he had a trade-in; and Gary Powell of 5911 Livingston rd., Oxon Hill, Md.

Powell's testimony was unique. When a Mandell salesman offered him a $700 trade-in allowance for a '46 Hudson that a friend was willing to buy for $1495, "I said: 'Well, I certainly don't need a Chevrolet that bad, and that was as far as it went."

Other witnesses from the Ourisman organization included: Edwin J. Frech, office manager for the Ourisman Co.; Russell M. Bowen, office manager of Mandell Co., and Richard G. Davis, sales manager of Ourisman.

After the day's hearing ended, the Washington Automotive Association, through a spokesman, issued the following press release on the testimony:

"A majority of the witnesses expressed satisfaction with the transactions involved in the purchase of new cars.

"The witness (Ourisman) stated that a policy of setting 18 months for the delivery of new cars had been established by his firm. The testimony shows that he lived up to the policy, making deliveries in an average of 14 months.

"The policy of favoring old customers is an established policy in every line of merchandising.

"The demand for used cars for immediate delivery is responsible for the higher prices being paid in isolated instances. In other words, the customers have set the price and the dealers have met the market.

"Despite the contracts which would have permitted the dealer to keep a part of deposits, the witness emphasized that all deposits were returned on request as a matter of good business policy.

"The witness also stressed the point that while his firm seeks to sell all the accessories a purchaser will buy, it was against his policy to force the sale of accessories."

Price Charges Filed Against GM and AC

By The Associated Press

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday lodged a four-count complaint of price discrimination against General Motors Corp. and a subsidiary, AC Spark Plug Co., Flint, Mich.

FTC simultaneously dismissed similar action started in 1939. It said the old proceedings were delayed because of the war but that reexamination of the cases showed "its charges with respect to the current acts and practices of respondents should be stated in a new complaint."

The complaint specifically charges GM and its subsidiary with price discrimination in the sale of spark plugs, oil filters, fuel pumps and other automobile parts and accessories.

FTC alleges the discrimination is brought about by (1) granting different prices to different types of accounts; (2) payment of rebates to certain distributors; (3) selling products on condition that purchasers will not handle products of a competitor; (4) fixing retail sale prices of AC products in restraint of trade.

The commission said that, for the past several years, the AC company has furnished more spark plugs for new cars than any other manufacturer.

Liquor Sale Hearing Slated December 8

A public hearing on proposals for prohibition of sale of "distress" stock liquor, and for changes in the prohibition against sale of tax-free liquor, will be held December 8 in the Municipal Center by the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. The hearing, scheduled at the request of local liquor wholesalers, will begin at 10 a. m. in Room 3114.

Thomas Challenges Legality of Jury

Probers' Aide

Stripling To Resign As Counsel

By Joseph W. Paull
Post Reporter

Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) charged yesterday that the District grand jury which indicted him on "kickback" charges was illegally constituted.

The Congressman who headed the House Committee on Un-American Activities last session made the charge in challenging the indictment under which he is scheduled to be tried January 10.

Miss Helen Campbell, his former secretary and alleged coconspirator, failed to file any papers in the case.

Through his attorney, William H. Collins, Thomas charged that the District grand jury in its formation violates the "due process" clause of the Constitution. He said that there were 12 Government workers on the jury. These Federally-employed personnel receive only carfare for their jury service while the other jurymen received $5 a day during their term of service. This disparity, Thomas declared, is unconstitutional.

Thomas also charged that the Statute of Limitations voids the conspiracy charge against him. He declared that the acts alleged in this charge occurred, according to the Government, between 1940 and January, 1945. He declared that three years have elapsed since that date, and hence the charge is void.

He did not attack the three charges of fraud which stated that he set up a system of "paper employes" and applied for their salaries although the Government received no work.

Civic League Speaker

Mrs. Richard White of the Arlington County League of Women Voters will be the principal speaker at the meeting of the Jefferson Civic League tonight at 8 o'clock at the fire house at Jefferson Davis hghwy. and 23d st. s., Arlington. Mrs. White will discuss "The Power of the Citizen in Voting and Influencing Legislation."

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, said yesterday he plans to resign when the Democrats take over control of Congress in January.

He said he has "planned to resign for some time" and that his decision "has nothing to do with the work of the committee."

The New York Herald Tribune said that Louis J. Russell, assistant investigator and former member of the Secret Service, indicated he intended to leave the committee next month.

Under Republican leadership, the committee's activities have ranged from investigations of Hollywood in search of Communists to a hunt for atomic spies in the Federal Government.

Loss of three Republican members in the elections, plus Stripling's scheduled departure, is expected to give the committee a new look next year. There are several moves afoot to either outlaw the committee or at least change the scope of its work.

Representative John S. Wood (D., Ga.) is in line for the chairmanship on the basis of seniority. Ernest Adamson has been reported likely to become chief counsel of the committee again. He served in that capacity under Wood's chairmanship before the Republicans won control of Congres in 1948.

Stripling, a native of Texas, was the first employe of the committee when it was organized originally by former Representative Martin Dies (D., Tex.).

One report was that he probably will return to Texas to practice law.

Fog Paralyzes Europe; Liner Held Up Again

London, Nov. 29 (AP).—A dense blanket of fog today crippled most of western Europe's transportation for the third day in a row.

British weather forecasters said there was "no likelihood" the murk would clear in the next 24 hours. Ships were tied up and planes were grounded from the Baltic to deep into Czechoslovakia and west to the Atlantic. Trains operated late, and in England many were canceled.

The world's largest liner, the Queen Elizabeth, remained shrouded in heavy fog at Southampton. Her departure for New York was delayed for the sixth time. Between fog and the now settled dock strike on the United States East Coast, she has been held up since November 17.

The British-American airlift into Berlin halted this afternoon.

Shipping at Hamburg, Bremerhaven and most North Sea and Baltic ports continued at a standstill. Skippers of fishing vessels coming into the English port of Lowestoft from the North Sea said they could not recall a heavy fog which had lasted as long.

Trucks Roll As 2000 End Strike in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—A weeklong strike which tied up an estimated one third of the city's general trucking industry was unsnarled today when 2000 truckmen returned to work.

John J. O'Rourke, president of Local 282, AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said "all trucks are rolling" in response to yesterday's union order that drivers and helpers end their walkout.

Within a short time, the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads lifted their bans on less than carload freight deliveries into the metropolitan area.

But meanwhile the union members were in the dark about the wage settlement, because a vote on two wage proposals offered them has not been completed. The balloting on the alternate proposals ends tonight.

Members of the local are voting on whether to accept a straight 22½-cent-an-hour wage increase or a 17½-cent increase with welfare and insurance benefits. Current wages for drivers and helpers range from $53.90 to $71.40 for a 40-hour week.

Meanwhile, resumption of normal dock activities at recently strike-bound Eastern ports was delayed today by snow and rain.

Handling of grain and other foodstuffs was slowed in Philadelphia by bad weather.

Also delayed was the unloading of raw sugar consigned to two refining plants, which had laid off some 2000 workers during the East Coast tieup which ended Saturday after 18 days. The plants plan to rehire the workers.

In Baltimore and Norfolk bad weather seriously hampered dock operations. The handling of cargo which would be damaged by exposure was affected in Boston.

Elsewhere, however, docks hummed with activity.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, who has predicted a long waterfront peace, said longshoremen in the New York area were "working wherever work is available."

At the same time, the Association of American Railroads said in Washington that its embargo on railroad freight for export or coastwise movement will be lifted tomorrow.

The embargo had been imposed early in the longshoremen's strike.

The strike ended Saturday when ILA dockers voted to accept a new contract giving them a 13-cent increase in the day-shift straight-time pay to $1.88 an hour and an increase of 19 cents in the night and weekend overtime rate to $2.82 an hour.

The union's last demand had been for increases of 25 and 37½ cents.

Quill Pledges To Oust Reds From Union

Chicago, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Michael J. Quill, international president of the Transport Workers Union, promised today that Communists who seek to "rule or ruin" the union will be ousted at its biennial convention starting December 6.

"I've said it before and I say it again," Quill said as he prepared to meet at the Shoreland Hotel with the union's international executive board to make plans for the convention.

A majority of the executive board had been accused of supporting Communist influences.

Quill has charged that the executive board voted to hold the convention in Chicago rather than New York, "despite the wishes of a majority of the members." He said the trip to Chicago would cost the delegation of New York Local 100 $100,000.

Quill said 16 of the executive board's 25 members have shown "consistent tendencies" to support Communist influences.

U. S. Cafeteria Union, GSI Reach Accord

Government Services, Inc., has reached contractual agreement with the United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers Local 471, it was announced last night.

The negotiations were concluded in only four days, officials of the union and the corporation announced. Some 1400 workers are affected.

Major points in the settlement include renewal of the 1947 contract with a 7½-cent an hour wage increase in all classifications; a company-financed group hospitalization plan; seniority in lay-offs; and voluntary check-off of union dues.

The agreement had been reached last Saturday but announcement was withheld pending ratification by union membership, it was said. The corporation's board of trustees had voted to accept the terms earlier in the day, the announcement said.

The new wage scales will run from 87½ cents an hour to $1.34¼ for all workers covered by the contract. Under the old contract the scale was 80 cents to $1.27. The wage increase will become effective on January 1.

Last year the union walked out in a strike that lasted 11 weeks from January 5 to March 2. A contract granting a 6½-cent-an-hour wage rise finally brought the walkout to an end. Recently, the union severed connections with the United Public Workers of America, with which it had been affiliated at the time of the strike.

United Nations Human Rights Declaration Nears Completion

Paris, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—After two years of ideological debate, some of it bitter, on human rights ranging from politics to divorce, the United Nations is nearing completion of work on a declaration seeking to spell out the rights of man.

The U. N.'s social committee has adopted all articles of the declaration on which the human rights commission began work in 1946. After several suggested additional articles and a preamble have been approved, probably next week, the committee will vote on the declaration as a whole. It will then go to the General Assembly for approval.

The declaration covers human rights in politics, religion, work, leisure, information and marriage. It has had to reconcile the conflicting views of the Russians, Americans, Catholics, Protestants, Mohammedans and Hindus.

Even now no one is entirely satisfied.

Several delegates have said they will ask the committee to reverse its decision on controversial articles.

The declaration says that everyone is entitled to all rights and freedoms set forth in the document "without distinction of any kind, such as race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, property or other status, birth or nation of social origin."

ODT Assails Freight Car Plan

The Office of Defense Transportation accused the Commerce Department yesterday of backing a plan whereby it would take 25 years to meet current needs for new freight cars.

ODT Director J. M. Johnson released a sheaf of documents to support his complaint against the Commerce Department's Office of Industry Cooperation.

Basis of the argument is how much steel should be allocated to the construction and repair of freight cars. The point came up November 19 at a meeting of the Steel Products Advisory Committee at the Commerce Department.

Johnson argued then for a program to permit the building of 14,000 cars a month, as compared to the present goal of 10,000.

"I regret more than I can say that I was, I think, discourteously, compelled to discontinue my presentation of the appeal," he wrote steel company representatives.

Johnson added in a separate statement that the Commerce Department agrees that at least two million cars is the figure generally accepted "as being the minimum required to meet present-day needs."

The present production rate means the minimum goal could be reached in 25 years, Johnson added.

Timetable For Civil Rights

The fate of the President's civil rights program in the new Congress will depend upon strategy as well as the merits of the various measures proposed. In the past opponents of the program have had little difficulty in defeating it, and one reason has undoubtedly been the lack of any systematic plan of translating ideas into statutes. If similar results are to be avoided in 1949, a well devised scheme of action will be necessary.

Last February the President wrapped his 10 civil rights proposals into a single package and tossed it into Congress with bombshell repercussions. Nothing came of it but talk and recriminations. To be sure, Congress was not disposed at that time to accept any controversial measure that the President sent up. But, as a practical matter, it could not have enacted good legislation on all the points in this program because of its heavy schedule of work on the European recovery bill, appropriation bills and other essential legislation. The 10-point program thus gave the advocates of States' rights a handy football to kick around.

In our opinion that strategy should not be repeated. The time has arrived for serious legislative efforts in this field in place of mere talk and political maneuvering. Even if it were possible to enact the entire program in a single year, it would probably be unwise to do so. What is needed in dealing with this difficult problem is a progressive amelioration of existing conditions rather than any violent transfer of power that might intensify bitterness and postpone the evolution of tolerance. Consequently, it seems to us that a conscientious and thoughtful effort should be made to put first things first.

What measures should be given preference in the legislative timetable is likely to be a matter of controversy. But there are a number of sound rules that may be applied. It would be an obvious mistake, for example, to begin pressing the most controversial measures first. The same may be said for measures of doubtful constitutionality. In our opinion, Congress might well begin by setting up a permament commission on civil rights, with fair representation for the South as well as the North, to aid in the shaping of policies that the States as well as Congress may adopt. At the same time it could well rename its Judiciary Committees specifically to cover civil rights, and set up a full-fledged civil rights division in the Department of Justice.

Step No. 2 might well consist of strengthening the present civil rights statute. With this groundwork laid, Congress could consistently proceed with buttressing the right to vote. In our opinion, this is fundamental. The right to vote without discrimination as to race or color is unequivocally guaranteed by the Fifteenth Amendment, and the right of Congress to enforce it is likewise beyond question. If this basic right were properly underwritten by the Federal Government, the enlarged and revitalized electorates in the Southern States could solve many of their own local problems without impairing our Federal system, which contributes so much to liberty in general.

As a companion piece to legislation for the prevention of interference with voting, we should like to see Congress submit to the States a constitutional amendment forbidding poll taxes in either State or national elections. With the sentiment now built up against the poll tax, such an amendment could doubtless be promptly ratified in three fourths of the States. Use of this method would eliminate the strongest argument against the poll-tax bills that have been so often advanced in the past.

If Congress should pass these measures in a single session, it would be doing remarkably well. In the following session it could take up the antilynching bill. Lynching has virtually disappeared through the efforts of the States themselves, but in the last Congress the Senate Judiciary Committee succeeded in working out an antilynching bill that does no violence to the Constitution, and if there is any widespread demand for its enactment it ought to be given a place in the timetable. Attention must also be given to ending discrimination in interstate transportation facilities. To be sure, the Supreme Court has struck a blow at such discrimination, but its decision rests on a flimsy basis and may affect only the border States.

A fair employment practices law would naturally take last place in such a timetable because the need for it is less acute in prosperous times and because it is the most controversial of the President's civil rights proposals. A thoughtful editorial in the Raleigh News and Observer, which supports most of the civil rights measures, classifies FEPC as "by all odds the most objectionable bill proposed in the civil rights package." The Washington Post favored reasonable FEPC legislation, when the proposal was applied to establishments employing above 50, but we do not think a bill should be allowed to stand in the way of more pressing steps that can be taken with relatively little furor. The important thing is to make a firm start toward the protection of civil rights in a way that will encourage cooperative effort in the South. For in the last analysis any program of this sort can be successful only if it has overwhelming approval among the people who will live under the law as well as enforce it.

"I'd Like To Get You On A Slow Boat To China"

Vote-Grabbing Scheme

If President Truman were to lay claim to the electoral votes of any State that went for Governor Dewey in the recent election, we suspect that the whole country would rise up in protest. The President would be accused of trying to steal votes fairly won by his competitor. Yet, if Senator Ellender has correctly quoted the President, he feels that the 40 electoral votes pledged to Governor Thurmond ought to be counted for himself. Senator Ellender and various other Southern politicians who are trying to heal the breach in the Democratic Party had previously let it be known that they were ready to thwart the will of the voters in South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana. What is especially shocking is to see the President quoted as supporting their scheme.

It is true that the four States in question do not require the electors chosen by the people to vote for the presidential candidate to whom they have been pledged. But the moral obligation is so clear that we do not see how it can be questioned. In South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana the Thurmond-Wright slate won by large majorities over the Truman-Barkley slate in the popular voting. In Alabama the only slate of Democratic electoral candidates on the ballot was unmistakably pledged to the States' Rights candidates. The electoral votes of these States could not possibly be switched to the Truman-Barkley ticket, therefore, without thwarting the will of the voters and making a mockery of our obsolete electoral system.

We had hoped that the President would move toward closing up the loopholes that now make it possible for unscrupulous politicians to steal a presidential election. Indorsement of a scheme to reverse the verdict of the people in four States would scarcely be a happy prelude to such a reform proposal.

Menzies On Politics

We commend to our readers an admirable little essay on politics in a democracy which appears in the most recent issue of The New York Times Magazine. The author is Mr. R. G. Menzies, former Prime Minister of Australia and now leader of the parliamentary opposition in that country.

The true and paradoxical weakness of a democracy, Mr. Menzies observes, is the spirit of indifference to politics, and sometimes an outright contempt of politics, that it engenders among the citizens, including even those who are otherwise intelligent and well informed. This leads to singular blindness to the paramount importance of politics, and to its influence on the lives and destinies of every individual. This, he thinks, indicates "a defective sensibility and imagination," and the root of the fallacy lies in the disposition to consider democracy not as a means to an end, but as an end in itself. Thus the tendency, once democracy has been achieved, is to suppose that politics will thereafter take care of themselves, and that the best talents and energies may safely be to preoccupy themselves in other fields. This is why in politics:

> The first class mind is comparatively rare. We discourage young men of parts by confronting them with poor material rewards, precariousness of tenure, an open public cynicism about their motives, and cheap sneers about their real or supposed search for publicity.

Among the various reforms whereby Mr. Menzies would seek to correct this condition, the chief seems to be a revival of the art of political speechmaking. Mr. Menzies (who as newspapermen in this city will recall is a first-rate orator) perceives a danger in the decline of the literary quality of public speeches and the increasing ambiguities of political diction. He regrets the advent of the microphone, which he thinks has destroyed the emotional rapport between the political orator and his audience, and the habit of preparing speeches in advance of delivery. An even greater evil is the resort "to violence and exaggeration" rather than to the arts of persuasion. Worst of all, says Mr. Menzies, is the degradation of politics into mere personal gossip.

> The greater the target the more it attracts the arrows of the mean and the malicious. The more prevalent this debased view of the art of politics, the fewer people of character and sensibility we shall attract into its service.

Mr. Menzies insists that these vices of democracy are "not peculiar to any one country"; nevertheless it seems to us that our own politicians would do well to take Mr. Menzies' moralizings to heart. For it is true that public cynicism about politics and politicians has bred a cynicism among politicians about the character of public intelligence, and about the value of sincerity. Many remember, for example, Mr. Wendell Willkie's cynical repudiation of his own political speeches as "just campaign talk."

Another example might be found in one of Mr. Truman's campaign speeches delivered in Chicago shortly before the election. In this speech Mr. Truman described his opponent, Governor Dewey, as a "front man" for a small group of interests comparable to those who brought Hitler to power in Germany, Mussolini in Italy and Tojo in Japan. But a few days later, after the returns were in, Mr. Truman was prepared to admit that Governor Dewey was a real sportsman and a fine American gentleman, and Mr. Dewey's supporters were prepared to agree that Mr. Truman owed his victory to "the game and courageous uphill battle" he had waged when even his own intimates had despaired of him.

All this does not sound as if our statesmen were persuaded of what Mr. Menzies says he has discovered from his own experience: that a frank and intelligent discussion of public questions is in the long run more profitable to the politician than an appeal to passions and prejudices, or that "plain people are more likely to believe that your political opponent is a decent fellow, like themselves, but wrong on some great issue, than that he is a consummate rogue."

Greece's Foes

Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania again stand condemned before the world for aiding and abetting the Greek rebels. Inasmuch as these three Russian satellites have successfully thwarted the United Nations General Assembly before, probably it is optimistic to hope that the present Assembly vote will cause any fundamental change in policy. The censure, approved 47-6, was strictly the Soviet bloc pitted against the rest of the world. What the Assembly action did was to reaffirm findings already amply publicized by the U. N. Balkans Commission—that Greece's three northern neighbors have been supplying and shielding the Communist forces of General Markos.

Scant as are the chances for a break in at least moral aid to the rebels without a wholesale reorientation of Soviet tactics toward the West, it is encouraging that the Assembly saw fit to continue the Balkan Commission for another year. For although the commission has not stopped the outside incitement of Markos, there is good reason to believe it has held outside help to a minimum. Even a case-hardened Russian satellite cannot welcome the virtually unanimous condemnation of the United Nations. It is even possible that a crystallized world opinion will weigh increasingly heavily in determination of Yugoslav, Bulgarian and Albanian policy.

The United Nations action, plus American military aid to Greece, is about as much as can be done to counter the external threat to Greek independence. The remaining job is internal—and it is here that the most serious impediment lies. Until there is a spiritual revival—until the Greek soldier and Greek peasant can be given a faith to fight for comparable to that which the Communists preach—the erosion of Greece's integrity is likely to continue, despite all the condemnations heaped upon it.

Genocide

For two years the United Nations has been laboring to reach agreement on an international convention outlawing genocide and providing for the punishment of its perpetrators. The General Assembly on December 11, 1946, declared genocide to be a crime under international law and called for preparation of a draft treaty to be submitted at its next session. That next session came and passed without much progress, and only now has a draft agreement gotten through the slow and tortured processes of committee debate. It is expected to come up for Assembly approval this week, and Mr. Evatt of Australia, Assembly president, has broadcast an appeal for support of the convention.

Inasmuch as our own expressed interest in the subject predates the Assembly's first action by two full years, our support of the convention needs no particular reaffirmation. Indeed we called for just such a convention in December, 1944, and may perhaps be pardoned in thinking that more time than was necessary has already been allowed to pass. This is not intended to belittle the difficulties that have been put in the way of agreement in the U. N. Sometimes basic and sometimes pettifogging proposals to change this paragraph or that word have all had to be argued and reargued, voted and revoted in every stage of debate. Agreement in the U. N. is very often slow and hard won, and now that it has been achieved the result should be delayed no longer.

Approval of the convention on genocide in the Assembly's legal committee presupposes approval by the Assembly itself. We hope there will be no slip between cup and lip in this instance. And the next following step, ratification by the signatory states according to their own constitutionally prescribed methods, ought to be quick and automatic. The horror of the crime of deliberately wiping out whole peoples would make further quibbling a shameful reflection on the conscience of nations. The American delegation at Paris, we trust, will support the convention and send it to Congress with blessings and dispatch.

FROGS IN THE PATH

It makes no difference where we tramp
Over the path where moss is damp.
The frogs are here, tiny and quick,
Jumping aside on rock and stick
To miss our feet. Listening, we pause
And hear the rustle that they cause
On leaf and stem . . . so it's known
We cannot stray this wood alone.
Under the drooping leafy branch
Frogs are a pattering avalanche,
Fearful of our company
And doing more good to weeds than we.

"What Is News?"

I find logical confusion in your November 23 editorial, "What Is News?" in which you attempt to answer Morris Ernst's attack on bias in newspapers. You are correct, of course, in saying there is no ultimate yardstick for measuring the historical significance of daily events. You are right also in saying that news presentation involves subjective decisions about which people may differ.

However, I can't accept your assertion that "There is no objective standard for determining what is news any more than there is such a thing as objective truth. Facts appear to be facts only because a majority of the people accepts them as such." This must have been written by a man who has read enough philosophy to become confused, but not enough to understand the questions involved.

Such a notion is fatal to your basic assumptions as journalists. If you really believe it, you had better close shop and retire to the hills, because for you there is no ground to stand on except the opinions of other people.

I believe it reasonable to assume that events occur independently of our thinking of them. From this it follows that there are facts, and that newspapers can discover them. Reporters can tell us that a man has bitten a dog without first asking us if we believe it. They can tell us about monopolistic practices in American business without first examining our preconceptions on the matter. Whether newspaper editors will desire to do this is another question.

You see, you haven't refuted Morris Ernst at all.

The Kuomintang

The etymological buildup and present actual disintegration of the Kuomintang offer interesting food for philosophical speculation. The Chinese written language was primatively and primarily a picture language.

Sometimes in a fertile area the clan would build a sort of fort or castle and a small permanent settlement called a yu was formed. There were no walls or boundaries. It consisted of just such area as the men with their spears could defend. The picture language represented it by a line for the earth, a square for the castle, and a spear. Becoming stronger, certain boundaries were defined and marked. This became a Kuo (pronounced gwo) and the picture was that of the yu just mentioned with the boundaries represented by surrounding lines. Becoming larger, today a country, a nation is called Kuo.

There was a lowly creeping plant sometimes floating in the streams, sometimes catching and taking root, proliferating profusely. It was represented by a picture of its tangled strands. This is the picture of the proliferating mass of men, the proletariat, the common man, the forgotten man, the Min.

In all ages men have objected to oppression and exploitation. Early Chinese met in the dark and chimneyless smoked-filled huts, the smoke escaping through the window or the hole in the roof. Here discussing and planning resistance or rebellion they formed tangs, cabals, parties, clubs. The principal radical in the character for tang represents fire and the deposits of soot about the hole where the smoke escaped.

So we translate Kuomintang as the Nationalist Party. It was the revolutionary party of the common people. But, as is the rule, when the revolution against the rotten Ching dynasty was won, certain aspiring groups got control of the party, many turned traitor to the Kuo, double-crossed the Min and reverted to the dark and evil ways of the primitive Tang.

The Min, finding war lord rule no better than the empire, that the Minkuo, the republic, was a sham, revolted. The war lords' troops, having no stomach for their task, are poor fighters, will be worse, and often desert en masse to the rebels, taking their American equipment with them.

Inaugural Rates

I have been reading your report of the plans the hotels have been making to take old John Q. Sucker for a ride as a result of the inaugural festivities.

Coming right on top of the investigation of the auto racket, it makes me wonder how they will be able to get away with it. Or is there a difference between being gouged for a hotel room and an auto?

Immigration "Rights"

Your issue of November 20 includes a letter on "Displaced Germans." It criticizes one of your editorials, and is credited to an officer of the National Council for Prevention of War.

While Hitler was bemoaning lack of living space, he was urging Germans to breed without limit. Promiscuity was all right—provided it produced the fighters needed for world conquest.

There are indications that the German breeding program persists. Instead of recognizing this as a German problem, the council officer suggests emigration, and urges defining a German "right" as to entering our country.

The immigration picture has changed since the pioneer days when there was a broad welcome to all comers. If those who came then were hardy they survived and prospered. Otherwise, they left or perished. But what the country has become, is the handiwork of those who built it.

In the past, we have based immigration quotas upon the percentage "make-up" of population at some arbitrarily fixed moment. But World War II turned a spotlight upon the danger of permitting infiltrations affording fifth column possibilities. Immigration quotas—if any—should be based wholly on what we consider our capacity for assimilating particular immigration groups. No other "right" is involved.

Internationalized Ruhr

I strongly disagree with your advocacy of international management of the Ruhr mines and industry, in spite of the fact that many columnists and some statesmen are of the same opinion as The Washington Post.

After the loss of the Silesian and Lorraine mines, the Ruhr coal is the only major natural resource left to Germany. Germany will never have enough agricultural products to feed its people, timber and salt deposits are of minor importance, and there is no oil. Your recommendation would take dominion of the only major natural resource permanently away from Germany.

The worst feature of the plan is that those nations would have the deciding voice in German industry which are normally Germany's strongest competitors. It is true that they now need the Ruhr products, but if in 5 or 10 years a world depression sets in, does any one think that, for example, the French or Belgian governments would, or for that matter could, allow one French or Belgian miner to be unemployed so that a German could eat?

I do not understand why, with the acknowledged present ineptitude of the French to govern themselves, anyone should believe that these same French politicians would suddenly be able to run a complex industry in a foreign country efficiently. In an editorial of November 19, you approve De Gaulle's economic plans for the Ruhr and disapprove his chauvinism. My point is that these cannot be separated. Once France is entrenched in a dominant position in Ruhr management, a future chauvinistic government can wreck Germany by preventing the management from functioning. How easily this latter can be done we see daily through Russian practice.

We hear a lot about preventing Germany from getting economically strong. These are weasel words. Economically strong is synonymous with prosperous, and economically weak is identical with poor—except perhaps for a country agriculturally rich. Mr. Sumner Welles let the cat out of the bag in his column of November 16, when he quoted with approval the protest of some French against the rapidity of German reconstruction, and French insistence that a future Ruhr authority "place security above economic recovery."

Translated from weasel words into plain English, this means that European security would be advanced if the Germans starved a few years longer, if hopelessness and stagnation would further destroy the remnants of character. These experts on history seem to forget that Hitler would never have gotten to power without the hopelessness, hunger and despair of the depression of 1933.

The proposed plan, like many other plans for Germany's future, treats the Germans entirely as objects to be disposed of, and completely ignores psychological elements. A yardstick to judge German reaction would be to imagine how a Frenchman or an American would react under the same circumstances. In a region like the Ruhr, management-labor relations are always difficult; they will be much more so if German workers have to deal with foreign management.

There is a very simple test to show whether the proposal of international management of the Ruhr is really motivated by the wish to use the Ruhr for the good of all Europe and for European unity, or whether it is intended as a method to choke off a competitor. This test is to make a counter-proposal, namely, that all European industries which are important for Europe as a whole, including the Lorraine iron mines and Saar coal mines, the Czech and Polish mines (if Czechoslovakia and Poland are included) and the distribution of food imports, be subject to international management, so that in the long run the Germans sitting on the management board will have as much to say about the management of French mines and blast furnaces as the French will have to say under the present plan regarding the German mines and blast furnaces. Under such a plan my objections to the internationalization of the Ruhr alone would, of course, disappear. But just dare to suggest it, and see what happens.

"Cultural Heritage"

That your November 19 editorial, "Our Cultural Heritage," dealt with the National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings is enough to make me feel that we are indebted to you. But, more important still is the fact that it was an intelligent and thoughtful summarization of the current threats to our historical heritage.

Your editorialist showed fine judgment in his selection of phases of the council's program to be stressed; he managed to give the spirit of this organization in relatively few words. It was an excellent piece of writing, well conceived and equally well expressed. In thus calling attention to the problems that confront this organization and its attempts to meet them, I feel you have rendered a real public service.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Ideas Wanted

SINCE President Truman returned to Washington, a number of callers have been urging on him the necessity to bring into his Administration men with new ideas and new energies. Among them are many of the liberal Democrats who helped, as the final election returns in State after State clearly show, to achieve the Democratic victory.

Behind their urging is the fear that unless positive, creative, constructive action is taken, the Truman Administration will fail to make good on the promises of the campaign. As was demonstrated in 1946, when the President had at least a nominally Democratic Congress, it is not enough merely to send messages proposing this or that program.

One of the recent callers was Chester Bowles, who was elected Governor of Connecticut by a narrow majority although the State's electoral votes went in the Republican column. In many ways Bowles is typical of the new forces in the Democratic Party that are certain to play a more and more important role in the future.

In partnership with William Benton in a highly successful advertising firm, Bowles made a tidy fortune. When they sold their firm, both men decided to devote themselves to public service.

As head of the Office of Price Administration during the latter half of the war and in the immediate postwar aftermath, Bowles had a job that was tough and demanding with little chance, or so it seemed, to win personal popularity. Moreover, he consistently advocated a tough anti-inflationary policy and in so doing stepped on many sensitive toes.

WHEN BOWLES resigned, his relationship with the White House was not too happy. He had been critical of policies he felt were essentially inflationary in their effects.

Last spring he proposed that the party consider drafting General Eisenhower as a candidate in place of Truman. In that speech Bowles added that the Eisenhower draft should be conditioned on an expression by Eisenhower of his views on major social and economic problems confronting the country.

In view of this background, the meeting between the President and his former price controller might have been difficult. Yet it was warm and friendly. The President's attitude about past disagreements is one of forgive and forget in the light of victory.

During a vacation spent on a small yacht in Chesapeake Bay, Bowles has been in and out of Washington talking to his friends and former associates. He has expressed his concern at what seems to him lack of new ideas and a new approach to the problems of the day.

The Administration is coasting, Bowles has said, on the ideas out of the old New Deal. Thinking still prevails along the line of the Keynesian theory of spending to create purchasing power even though it is obvious that the current inflation, with its threat of a depression, calls for a different kind of appraisal with quite different measures to meet the present situation.

TO JOG ALONG in the ruts made in the recent past is to risk a stalemate like that of 1946. In that year the voters put the blame on the President for high prices and the other ills that came with the end of the war. They elected the Eightieth Congress with Republican majorities in House and Senate.

President Truman is 64 years old. After the age of 50 or 55 very few people ever change their attitudes or their ways. The likelihood for change, either in personnel or point of view, would therefore seem to be small.

But the liberal-progressive-laborites in the Democratic Party insist that the pattern must inevitably change. The President, they point out, will begin a full term of office that he won for himself and with a mandate pointing inexorably to changes.

After his victory over Wendell Willkie in 1940, President Roosevelt went away on a Caribbean vacation. Shortly after he returned he put forth the concept of lend-lease which helped to carry England through in the desperate early years of the war.

That kind of creative imagination is needed in peace as well as war if the world is to overcome the crisis between East and West. It is the pressing need both in domestic and foreign policy. But the weight of the past, the whole inertia of tradition, lies heavy on the present.

Hollywood Blacklist

A Communication

DURING the Hollywood hearings of the House Committee on Un-American Activities last year you expressed the editorial opinion that their effect was "to intimidate and coerce the industry into an even more rigid acceptance of Mr. Thomas' concepts of Americanism." In another editorial, after an abrupt termination of the hearings, The Washington Post said that "the use of these methods to pry into personal beliefs certainly has the effect of denying rights that are implicit in our constitutional philosophy."

Enlightened people with a wide range of attitudes toward communism welcomed the leadership of The Post and other distinguished newspapers in censuring a group of men and a method of procedure that violated the American tradition of political liberty. Ten of the subpenaed witnesses—seven writers, two directors and a producer—chose a course of action which, if successful, would challenge the committee's very existence. In their opinion, only a policy of active noncooperation with the inquisition would lead to a constitutional test in the courts.

I was one of those 10. Today we are apparently succeeding in our purpose of bringing the matter to a decision, though we regret the amount of time it has taken and will still take to determine whether we are to go to jail or not. Now we are primarily concerned with a corollary consequence of our indictment for contempt of Congress. It is a year now since we were denied the right to work at our chosen profession.

A MAN whose income is cut off abruptly is necessariiy a little subjective about it, but even we have to admit that the loss of 10 jobs is not, in itself, important. The reason we want others to share our anniversary is that we sincerely feel it concerns them, too. If you don't agree, drop in at your neighborhood motion picture theater for a couple of hours.

The American film diet, never noted for its subtle seasoning, is daily growing more insipid—but not because we are no longer writing and directing pictures. If the 10 most talented creators in Hollywood, which would be quite a different list from the 10 of us, were suddenly removed from the scene, the effect on the Nation's screens would be barely noticeable. What has happened to pictures is the result of what has happened to other men and women in Hollywood because of what has happened to us. The film makers have increased their customary dose of self-censorship to what may be suicidal quantities.

Books, plays and screen stories which tread even fleetingly beyond the narrow boundaries of insignificance are no longer considered safe picture material. Even Hollywood's traditional worship of success is subordinated to the new, Thomas-inspired caution. No studio has bid for the film rights of some of the leading best-sellers and most prosperous Broadway productions.

IT IS NOT my contention that the average American goes to his local movie theater with a conscious desire for films about economic justice, racial tolerance or international good will. He wants to be entertained—he wants to see something new, different, bright, funny, exciting, poignant, convincing. But it is precisely these elements which diminish inevitably with narrowing restrictions on content.

Two or three amusing comedies a year, perhaps—a couple of good musicals—one or two relatively fresh variations on the technique of murder—that is the most they can hope for within the limitations they have set for themselves. For stories must be created in men's minds, and no amount of persuasion or money can defeat the tendency of creative minds to look around them and ahead of them, and to reflect in their work the world as they see it. Even if a writer can discipline himself to the effort, it is an infinitely harder task to write a good screen play about nothing than one about something.

The Thomas Committee, its chairman in particular, has been increasingly discredited in recent months. Two of the three subcommittee members who conducted the Hollywood hearings were defeated in the election, while all but one of the Congressmen who voted against our citations for contempt were re-elected. But one of the committee's major successes, the Hollywood blacklist, remains in effect.

Dr. Freeman To Talk at Book Session

The noted Virginia historian, Dr. Douglas Freeman, will come to Washington on December 9 to be one of the four speakers at The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon.

Freeman

Though Dr. Freeman claims to be "first, last and always a newspaperman," he will take his place at the luncheon as Pulitzer Prize winning biographer of Robert E. Lee and author of what will be, when completed, the most ambitious biography of George Washington since Chief Justice John Marshall issued his in 1804-07.

The first two volumes of Dr. Freeman's latest work, "George Washington: A Biography," were published by Charles Scribner's Sons in October. He plans to complete it in six volumes by 1952.

Other speakers at the luncheon will be Betty Smith, Emily Kimbrough and Eric Johnston.

Dr. Freeman's 40-hour-a-week avocation of writing biographies is a sideline to turning out three columns of editorials daily for the Richmond News-Leader, and two radio programs a day.

Tickets for the luncheon, scheduled for 1 p.m. at the Statler Hotel on December 9, may be obtained at these bookstores: Ballantyne's, Brentano's, Community Book Shop, Better Mouse Trap, Francis Scott Key Book Shop, Sidney Kramer's, David Pearlman's, Paul Pearlman's, Pursell's, Saville Book Shop Whyte's, and the book departments of Kann's and Woodward & Lothrop's.

Poll Lullaby Defeated GOP, Roberts Says

Roy A. Roberts, president of the Kansas City Star, said yesterday Republicans lost the presidential election in the last two weeks of the campaign largely because of overconfidence brought on by the polls. He said two trends might have provided a tip-off:

1. The start, six or seven weeks before the election, of the collapse of the Henry A. Wallace campaign "which kept on collapsing right up to election day."

2. The drop in the price of corn which "raised the dickens with the farm vote."

Roberts made the assertion in a copyright interview with the "U. S. News and World Report."

"I think the whole election turned on the polls," he said. "If the Republicans hadn't believed them, they would have made a different type of campaign and they certainly would have carried enough close States to have won.

"The polls dictated the campaign strategy, and when the polls were wrong, the strategy failed.

"I don't pretend to be an expert on polls, but they certainly are wrong when they say people's minds are made up months before. (Gov. Thomas E.) Dewey would have won in a landslide 30 days earlier.

"The sheer, smug confidence of the Dewey campaign drove a lot of people to Truman out of sympathy."

Because everyone assumed that the GOP would win, he continued, newspapers, magazines and radio did not do enough digging to find out what the public was thinking. But he added:

"I think the newspapers did not suffer just because a large part of them supported Dewey editorially. I think their failure to call the turn on the election shocked many people as it did the newspapers themselves. In the long run I think it will do the newspapers more good than it will do harm from any lack of confidence.

"Both during the campaign and after the election I studied many papers and I found that with few exceptions they printed the news fairly and objectively. Press Association services, of course, were scrupulously fair. That's the function of the newspaper and the press service."

Progress In Italy

By Sumner Welles

Risk In Decision On Colonies

THE RECENT VISIT to Washington of Ivan Matteo Lombardo, Italy's Minister of Industry and Commerce, has helped our own officials measure still more accurately the amazing strides that the Italian people have made toward reconstruction.

Mr. Lombardo knows this country well. In Rome he is an understanding interpreter of American objectives and of American policy. As a brilliant economist as well as an experienced businessman, he has been peculiarly fitted to play a leading part in planning his country's share in the European Recovery Program, and the program's outstanding success in Italy is in no small degree due to him. As a right-wing Socialist leader who refused to submit to Communist control, he has been tireless in persuading Italian workers of the absurdity of the Communist charge of American "imperialism."

The technical reports which Mr. Lombardo made available in Washington represnted new evidence that there is no part of western Europe where American policy has so far been so effective as in Italy.

Promoted by a singularly capable and progressive Italian government, Italian recovery has already exceeded expectations. The government has now been able to check inflation. Production is mounting. The black market is being eliminated. Although the population is growing rapidly, and there has been as yet little emigration, unemployment is steadily decreasing.

ALL OF THE municipal elections which have been held since the national elections last April have shown a decline in the number of Communists. Activists like Longo have now taken over the control of the Communist Party even though Togliatti had entirely recovered some months ago. There is a widespread belief that his attempted assassination last summer was inspired by the activists with the double motive of inciting a rebellion and of liquidating an unsuccessful leadership.

Able as De Gaspari has proved himself to be as Prime Minister, his Christian-Democratic Party is becoming unwieldy. The great divergence between its political elements is a source of weakness. Should Christian-Democratic unity be broken up by such revolts as that which Gronchi recently headed, the Communists would represent Italy's largest political party.

The surest means of insuring the survival of democratic government in that contingency would be the reconstruction of the Socialist Party, purged of its Communist stooges like Nenni, and based on the splinter parties now led by such right-wing Socialists as Saragat, Lombardo and Romita. Plans for this amalgamation are now under way. If they succeed Italy will have her needed "third force."

The most critical problem Italy now faces is her surplus population. Emigration to South America is limited by lack of shipping. This difficulty could in part be solved if Washington permitted the Italian government to charter or to buy prewar merchant vessels in the United States. The new Congress could offer assistance that would have even greater moral significance by authorizing Italy to obtain her unused immigration quota for the years between 1941 to 1948. The total number of immigrants involved would not exceed 35,000.

IT SEEMS incredible that at this critical moment in world affairs, when Italian recovery represents one of the few encouraging developments in Europe, when Italian democracy is just becoming a reality and when Italian friendship for the United States is stronger than ever before, the Administration should deliberately risk every one of these assets. Yet that is precisely what the United States has done by announcing in the United Nations that it supports Great Britain's demand for the administration of most of Italy's former colonies.

If this demand is granted, a body blow will be struck at the political regeneration of a nation which had already proved herself willing and able to play an enlightened and constructive part in a new European federation, in a western European alliance, and in the United Nations. It would permanently deprive Italy of the chance to settle a large percentage of her surplus population in Libya and Erjtrea, as well as of the commercial advantages which she would have derived from the administration of her former colonies under the United Nations Trusteeship Council.

It is understood that this decision was dictated by the Pentagon because of strategic considerations. Yet a democratic Italy would be quite as ready to grant the United States the use of strategic bases in Libya and Eritrea as would Great Britain.

The Italian people will find no warrant of justice, of friendship or even of common sense for this decision. It is unlikely that Moscow will try to persuade them to the contrary.

By its record on Palestine, by its stand on Germany, and now by this decision on the Italian colonies, American foreign policy shows unmistakable symptoms of a virulent attack of "Bevin-pox."

Usual Glitter Attends 64th Met Opening

New York, Nov. 29 (NYHT).—The Metropolitan Opera opened its sixty-fourth season tonight with a capacity crowd of glittering society leaders and shivering standees crushing into the house for a performance of Verdi's "Otello."

For the first time in its history, the Metropolitan's performance was visible not only to the nearly 4000 persons in the hall but to thousands of others in the northeastern United States who watched the show via American Broadcasting Co. television.

As is traditional with a Metropolitan opening, the lobbies provided as great a show as the stage. So great was the crush at the main entrance of the House on Broadway and the carriage-trade entrance on 39th st., that the performance, which had originally been pushed back 15 minutes from "Otello's" customary starting time of 8 p. m., actually got under way at 8:25.

Miss Margaret Truman, a singer herself, entered the 39th st. lobby at 8:44.

Groom Heads Crippled Child Society Here

Thomas J. Groom, president of the Bank of Commerce and Savings and secretary of the Washington Board of Trade, last night was elected president of the District of Columbia Society for Crippled Children.

Groom

The election took place at a meeting of the society's newly elected board of directors.

Also elected were: First Vice president, Dr. Custis Lee Hall, physician; second vice president, Donald M. Bernard, advertising director of the Washington Post; secretary, Thomas Grant, attorney; and treasurer, James H. Flanagan, chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission.

Paul B. Cromelin was appointed general counsel and Mrs. Jewell C. Gaffney was reappointed executive secretary.

Farm Product Prices Show 11% Decline Since January

Average prices for farm products have dropped 11 per cent from the postwar peak of last January, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

A 2 per cent drop was recorded in the month ending in mid-November. Declines were listed for hogs, citrus fruits, corn, butterfat tobacco and cotton.

The mid-November index of prices stood at 271 per cent of the 1909-14 average; last January's average was 307 per cent of the 1909-14 level.

In another report, the Labor Department said its wholesale price index rose .4 per cent in the week ending November 23. Most commodities advanced slightly but foods declined a little, chiefly because of lower meat prices. The wholesale index of November 23 stood at 164.9 per cent of the 1926 average and was 3.2 per cent higher than a year ago.

Chinese Lepers Thank Wife Of U. S. Diplomat for Work

By the United Press

The State Department took time off from its diplomatic chores yesterday to reveal the story of Mrs. McGary and the Kunming lepers.

Mrs. McGary, who has been in China for years and has served as a nurse in missionary hospitals there, is the wife of Vice Consul Stanley A. McGary. McGary was transferred recently from Kunming to Chungking.

The department said the transfer brought "sadness" to 120 inmates of Kunming's municipal leper asylum.

The lepers, the department said, scraped together their few pennies to pay for an advertisement in the Kunming daily newspaper. The department learned about the ad in a letter just received from a missionary in Kunming.

The ad, which ran September 16, said in part:

". . . We have become social outcasts and are extremely painful and misserable . . . Mrs. McGary, wife of the American Cousul in Kunming . . . disregarding the nobility of her own person, has been able to get into near access with lepers who have always been considered terrible among the impression of the people of the world.

"She cures us in person. She does not keep herself away from the foul odors and strange features of the sufferers. She washes our sores and dresses our abscesses. She never comes short in the smallest detail in her care of the patients.

"We now hear that Mrs. McGary is going to leave Kunming on business. We have nothing to reward her besides our gratitude. We therefore respectfully put this advertisement in the newspapers to show our sincere thanks."

Turkey Dinner Makes 40 Ill at Blue Plains Home

Approximately 40 inmates and employes of the Blue Plains Home for the Aged and Indigent were taken ill after a Thanksgiving Day turkey dinner, but yesterday were reported fully recovered.

Herbert Thorne, assistant superintendent of the home, said the meal was served to about 500 persons. Included among those who suffered intestinal disturbance were about eight employes of the institution.

Thorne said he "had no knowledge" of any investigation into the matter. He said the birds were purchased from a Washington poultry dealer.

Sen. Taft Confers With U. S. Leaders

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 29 (AP).—United States Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) conferred today with the top United States air and ground commanders in Germany.

Taft talked with Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon, commander of United States air forces in Europe, at Wiesbaden, one of the loading bases for the Berlin airlift.

Arends Seen Choice for GOP Whip

Representative Leslie C. Arends (R., Ill.) last night was reported Speaker Joseph W. Martin's choice for House Republican whip in the new Congress.

Martin announced only that a House conference of Republican Representatives-elect will be called for Friday afternoon, December 31, for the purpose of organizing the GOP minority in the new House.

Martin, who will step down as Speaker when Democrats take over the new House under Representative Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) is expected to be named House Republican floor leader without opposition.

Arends served as House Republican whip in the Seventy-ninth Congress and was continued in that role in the present Congress. Selection of a new whip is up to the House GOP Committee on Committee, but it invariably accepts the recommendation of the Republican floor leader.

Representative Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.), House majority leader in the Republican Eightieth Congress, will not seek a formal leadership role in the Eighty-first. Halleck is expected to go back to a ranking post on the House Interstate Commerce Committee. He may return to the Rules Committee as well if a shift can be arranged with an incumbent GOP member.

Representative Arends meanwhile resigned as a member of the House Inaugural Committee. Speaker Martin filled the vacancy by appointing a Democrat, Representative Harry R. Sheppard of California. Martin said the change was made so Democrats could have a majority of the committee planning the inauguration of President Truman.

Mokil Island Natives Give Navy Canoe

The latest addition to the might of the United States Navy—an outrigger canoe hewn from breadfruit wood by natives of Mokil Island in the Carolines—will be launched on the Potomac December 1.

The canoe is a gift from Mokil Islanders to Capt. Walter Karig, USNR, special assistant to the Chief of Naval Operations for Public Relations, who visited the islands last year.

Miss Keating Karig, the captain's daughter, will christen the outrigger "Kassalalia," native dialect for "Good Luck." It will be launched at 1:30 p. m. at the Naval Ordnance Plant, Alexandria, Va., and after its maiden cruise on the Potomac will be presented to the Naval Historical Foundation.

Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, president of the Foundation, will receive the canoe from Captain Karig.

King Joel, ruler of Kokil Island, wrote Captain Karig that he hoped the canoe would be placed in a Naval museum to remind all Americans of the gratitude of the natives.

20 Million More

Ewing Maps Expanded Old-Age Plan

By The Associated Press

Broadening of the social security system to embrace members of the armed forces and perhaps 20 million additional civilians may be asked of Congress.

Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing yesterday presented to President Truman broad recommendations for legislation in the social field.

Ewing said through a spokesman that the inclusion of soldiers, sailors and airmen in the civilian old-age pension system is "definitely under consideration."

His plans, first unfolded in his annual report several months ago, would integrate the retirement systems of the armed forces and the civil service pension system with the social security program.

Civilians who entered the armed forces now lose out on the accumulation of old-age benefits during their periods of military service.

Ewing reportedly also is urging that millions of self-employed—from doctors and dentists to scissors grinders—be brought under social security protection, along with farm hands, domestic workers, sales agents and others not now covered.

Pension payments and survivors' benefits should be increased at least 50 per cent, Ewing says. He was quoted as describing the present average old-age pension, $39.90 per month for a couple, as "slow starvation."

An FSA spokesman said Ewing's recommendations to the White House yesterday are general and will be followed before December 15 by specific legislative plans.

Under consideration, it was stated, are proposals for increased direct aid for the needy aged and blind, Federal aid to education at a first-year cost of $300,000,000, the launching of a system of Federal health insurance patterned after the social security program, and a program of scholarships to increase the supply of doctors, dentists, nurses and technicians.

D. C. Missed Bad Storm by Few Degrees

You might have looked out the window and found the city blanketed with 15 to 18 inches of snow this morning.

That is, if it had only been about eight degrees colder during the persistent rains of yesterday and Sunday, the Weather Bureau explained.

As it was, with a high of 42 degrees at 3:58 p. m. yesterday and a low of 39 at 4:04 a. m., the rain remained rain.

The rain which started Sunday at 11:15 a. m. and finally let up at 3:05 p. m., tallied 1.85 inches at National Airport.

In Maryland, the weather was blamed for the drowning of a farmer; in Virginia, rain hampered resumption of waterfront activity, made possible by ending of the longshoremen's strike.

On a farm near New Windsor, Md., Leonard Bowers, 29, was pinned in two feet of water and drowned when his tractor turned over.

Airlines here reported some delays but said they had been able to keep close to most schedules despite the weather.

Floods Threaten Downstream Lands

By The Associated Press

Downstream lands in North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee yesterday were in the paths of rain-flooded rivers which have ravaged cities and farms.

Meanwhile, three Western States—Kansas, Oklahoma and Washington—had snow problems. Communication lines in the three States were under repairs. They were knocked out by a snow and sleet storm in Kansas and Oklahoma Saturday night and by a blizzard in the Cascade Mountains of Washington Sunday night.

1200 More Marines Arrive at Tsingtao

Tsingtao, China, Nov. 29 (AP).—Some 1200 more United States Marines arrived at this American naval base from Guam today on the Navy transport Bayfield.

The detachment was transferred here at the request of Admiral Oscar C. Badger, commander of United States naval forces in the western Pacific. He said reinforcements were needed to "assist the American civilian evacuation and protect American property" in the present critical period in China. A total of 3600 Marines already were in Tsingtao.

50 Years With Uncle Sam 'Always a Pleasure'

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

A summa cum laude graduate of the proverbial College of Hard Knocks, David A. Salmon yesterday reflected on his 50 years of service to Uncle Sam with contentment and satisfaction.

His reflections encompassed 27 found 50 years in it of intense interest and value to me, and my work has always been a pleasure."

Presidents and Secretaries of State have come and gone like so many top-secret messages during Salmon's tenure. Having known tight-lipped years as the State Department's communications and cryptography expert.

"Many people 'knock' Government service as having no horizons, no future," he said. "I have many of them intimately his memory is jammed with intriguing experiences—not to mention conflicts—in affairs of State.

There were 56 persons in Salmon's division of communications and records when he took over 27 years ago. Now that he's about to retire, the staff numbers more than 500.

Between 1916 and 1928—years in which international relations reached an unprecedented complexity—he personally developed the style, selection and production of five secret codes for transmitting messages.

"None was broken as far as I know," he modestly admits, "but, of course, you may never know."

Salmon hit the road in his home town of Westport, Conn., when he was 19 years old. Less than 24 hours after his arrival in Washington, he had clinched a clerical job with the War Department, which was then under Secretary Russell A. Alger.

Secretary of State Elihu Root liked the War Department system of record-keeping, which Salmon had mastered in less than eight years. He went to the State Department to streamline their then "cumbersome" filing methods, and from then on it was "gradual evolution."

Diplomatic folk in innumerable foreign countries have corresponded with Salmon, although more often than not in cryptographic language.

He took his sixth trip abroad this year, serving six months in Europe as consultant in the siryptographic section of the State Department.

School Board Asks Debt Limit Rise For Montgomery

The Montgomery County legislative delegation to the Maryland General Assembly last night was urged by the Montgomery County School Board to raise the county's bonded debt limit, which is restricted to 7 per cent under the county's new charter.

Increased State aid for school construction and for handicapped children also was requested by the board which met with the legislative delegation at the school board office in Rockville. H. Stanley Steine, board president, said.

MEET THE THIRD MEMBER OF UNITED'S MAINLINER 300 FLIGHT CREW

There are three men in the forward compartment of every United DC-6 Mainliner 300 in flight. You know that two are the pilots—the Captain and his First Officer. But who's the third?

The Second Officer—the Pilot-Engineer. Not only is he an Engineer, versed in the mechanical and operational performance of the DC-6; he is an experienced pilot as well, qualified to fly the airplane.

He supplements the experience and skill of the Captain and First Officer—assists them in monitoring the mechanical performance of the plane's engines and accessories. He is available to perform such other duties as may be assigned him by the Captain.

United's pilots are a competent group of airmen with an outstanding record of experience. The presence of a Pilot-Engineer in the flight crew of United's DC-6 Mainliner 300 makes United's high standards of airmanship even higher.

Ferris to Open Branch Office In Bethesda

By S. Oliver Goodman

Ferris & Co., Washington investment house, will open a branch office Wednesday at 7006 Wisconsin ave. in Bethesda, Md., Senior Partner George M. Ferris announced yesterday.

Raab

Neill F. Raab, associated with the Ferris firm for nearly 10 years, will be in charge of the new branch. During the war, Raab served 2½ years with the Army Engineers intelligence corps. Prior to entering the investment business, he was associated with the Hamilton National Bank. A native of Washington, he is a graduate of Eastern High School and the American Institute of Banking.

Assisting Raab in the Bethesda office will be John H. Merriam, jr., and Gordon S. Richards as registered representatives.

Ferris & Co. is the second local investment house to branch out. Robert C. Jones & Co. has opened two branches.

The Ferris firm is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and the Washington Stock Exchange. Founded in 1932, the firm has main offices in the Washington Building. In addition to Ferris, partners include Thomas C. Montgomery, Thomas N. Leef and G. Fenton Cramer.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Bernard L. Brown has resigned as executive controller of The Hecht Co., Washington and Silver Spring, General Manager Charles B. Dulcan, sr., announced yesterday. Brown indicated he will continue in the retail field after his resignation becomes effective January 31, 1949. He came to Washington seven years ago after a long and varied career with retail stores in New York, Brooklyn and Atlanta. He served as office manager of Bloomingdale's in New York, later was vice president and general merchandise manager of the Namm store in Brooklyn. In 1931 he went to Atlanta to reorganize a group of chain stores. After completing this mission, he became general manager of a chain of New York furniture stores.

Brown

WILL HEAD CHILDS: John L. Hennessy has been elected president of the Childs Co., restaurant chain which has two units in Washington. Hennessy will assume his new post on January 1, the day after the effective date of his resignation as board chairman of the Hotels Statler Co., Inc. Childs has 50 restaurants in 17 cities and plans a program of renovation and expansion.

COLLEGE FUNDS: Because of the need for greater income, endowment funds' investment in common stock has increased sharply in recent years, John F. Sullivan said here yesterday. As a result, he added, university endowment funds in general have been able to maintain an over-all rate of return in excess of 4 per cent while the return of life insurance companies and mutual savings banks has declined to slightly under 3 per cent. Sullivan is senior analyst of investment brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane. He addressed members of the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers in session at the Mayflower for their twenty-ninth annual meeting. Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, outlined some factors in postwar prosperity. Norman J. O. Makin, Australian Ambassador, talked on "Education in the Science of Peace."

RAIL EARNINGS: Pennsylvania Railroad reported net income of $26,084,689 in first 10 months this year versus net loss of $7,293,756 in same 1947 period. October net was $8,493,533, against deficit of $242,384 in like 1947 month . . . Seaboard Air Line Railroad Co. showed net income of $8,728,539 for first 10 months versus $5,284,126 in same 1947 period. October net was $658,025 against $243,969 last year.

ODD LOTS: New models of autos require an average of about 200 pounds more steel than pre-war models and up to 1000 pounds more than those in the early 1930s . . . E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. has bought 1700 acres in the Guadalupe River Valley near Victoria, Tex., for a proposed new chemical plant . . . American Airlines is negotiating the sale of its 12-story downtown Tulsa, Okla., office building . . . Gas revenues in third quarter this year will total about 283 million dollars, a gain of 9.3 per cent over same 1947 period, the American Gas Association estimated.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP).—The grain market backed and filled over a range of less than 2 cents today. It ended mostly lower, al-though December and May wheat had enough underlying strength to wind up with frac-tional gains.

Throughout the day corn displayed greater weakness than other cereals, although getting back to around its previous close at one time. Settlement of the longshoremen's strike on the North Atlantic Coast was offset as a market factor by fairly large arrivals of cash corn.

At the close wheat was ⅝ lower to ⅞ higher; Corn was ⅛ to 1 cent lower; oats were ⅛ to ¾ lower; rye was ⅜ to 1½ lower; soybeans were 1½ lower to ¼ higher, and lard was 15 to 20 cents a hundred lbs.

Civil Rights Plan Retains High Priority

By the United Press

Southern Democrats got a new warning yesterday that civil rights legislation is still high up on the Administration's list of business for the Eighty-first Congress.

Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.), who is slated to be chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said that antilynching and antipoll tax laws should be considered by that body as soon as possible after Congress con-venes in January.

Walter White, secretary of the Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told reporters after a White House conference that President Truman feels pretty much the same way.

"He expressed his determination to go right through with civil rights," White said as he left Mr. Truman's office.

Cellar said the Southern Demo-crats are hopeful of putting the poll tax question before the Na-tion as a constitutional amend-ment, in an effort to "stall the issue."

"Any Democrat who advocates it (the amendment) is forgetful of the avalanche of votes which elected President Truman," he said. "The mandate of the people demands action."

Celler said the Southerners had their chance to compromise the civil rights question at the Demo-cratic National Convention last summer.

"But they rejected all efforts to work out a peaceful, progressive solution," he said.

White said he went over a list of election figures with the Presi-dent and cited a postelection sur-vey taken by his association which, he said, showed that the Negro vote for Mr. Truman represented the balance of power in such key States as California, Illinois and Ohio.

Asked where he saw any sign that Mr. Truman might agree to water down his civil rights pro-gram to mollify Southern Demo-crats, White shook his head.

"There were no signs of any compromise," he said.

Postlude

Rare Artistry Displayed By Serkin

By Paul Hume

Rudolf Serkin played his second solo recital in Constitution Hall last night before an enthusiastic audience of gratifying size.

As is Serkin's wont, solid staples filled the evening. Bach's Italian Concerto, a Mozart Rondo, the Ap-passionata Sonata of Beethoven, and briefer bits of Mendelssohn, Chopin, Schumann, and Debussy brought shouts of approval at intervals in the playing.

Most beautifully played of the whole list were the Mozart Rondo, Mendelssohn's scherzo, and three Debussy etudes. In these Serkin's touch became a delicate, subtly tinted means of expressing some of the finest music in piano litera-ture. His agility was subjected to a disciplined conception of three widely varying styles with emi-nently satisfying results.

The opening measure of the Rondo was perfection. The whole piece continued that way. The Mendelssohn, for which Serkin is famous, was incredible in its flight. The Debussy etudes, (for chromatic scales, arpeggios, and chords) were brilliantly under-lined rhythmically, and colored with all the desired haze of tone needed in these, the last works for piano to come from Debussy. It was a revelation to hear this kind of playing from Serkin, simply be-cause he seldom programs music of the present century. We wish he would more often.

The Italian concerto and Bee-thoven sonata received musicianly readings, with elements of nobil-ity. We must be pardoned if we find the sonata wearing thin. Only its slow movement retains for us the greatness so many others at-tribute to it.

Serkin is an artist whose yearly appearance is an experience we treasure. Washington is fortunate that he is also heard locally in the Library of Congress. Musician pianists such as he are still rare.

New B-36 Bomb Group To Be Formed in Texas

Omaha, Nov. 29 (AP).—A second B-36 bomb group will be activated at Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth, Tex., on December 1, the Strategic Air Command announced today. The Eighth Air Force head-quarters is located at Carswell.

SAC said the new B-36 group will be the reactivated Eleventh Bomb Group, famed for its World War II record in the Pacific the-ater.

Eighteen of the huge six-engine, pusher-type B-36s comprise a group. Range of the B-36, largest bomber in the world, is in the 10,000-mile class, the SAC said.

Movie Men Point Finger of Guilt

By Richard L. Coe

ALICE IN WONDERLAND has nothing on the man who ploughs through the Industry dispatches, the capital I Industry being, of course, Movies.

It turns out there is a depression in Hollywood and there is not a depression in Hollywood.

The objective reporters on the scene tell their readers and radio listeners that people have been let out of the studios, that things are tough for the little guy and that for these calamities there are a number of reasons.

The movie executives, however, seem to feel that all this gloomy talk only creates the impression that the pictures coming out of Hollywood these days are "inferior," that "the whole chain of thinking must be corrected," that a lot of it is "bandwagon think-ing."

Last week's pronunciamentos came from meetings of the Motion Picture Association of America and the Theater Owners of America. You can expect to hear more this week from Allied States Exhibitors Association convention at New Orleans.

Most specific was the TOA, which explained that the Industry faces a crisis for eight specific reasons:

1. The boxoffice slump.
2. A bad press and radio.
3. The foreign market decline.
4. Legislation and taxation.
5. Costly litigation.
6. Censorship.
7. Juvenile delinquency.
8. The passive audience.

Behind all these "reasons" are some amusing reflections. When the boys speak, for instance, of a boxoffice slump, they mean a fall-ing off in receipts from the 1946-7 years, which were all-time highs.

By bad press and radio, they re-fer specifically to the "scandals" involving topnotch stars. There is a bizarre air of the unreal about all this, and one of the best laughs on radio are the programs of Louella Parsons and Jimmy Fidler, both of whom condemn publicity which puts Hollywood in a bad light and in the very next breath are off with their romantic "ex-clusives."

The foreign market decline is one of the things the boys weep most copiously about. But anyone with a memory can recall that such stars as Garbo and Dietrich used to be told that their pictures didn't make a cent because they mattered only to the Europeans and the money Europe contributed wasn't a drop in the bucket compared with the American market. Now it turns out, that was a very big drop.

Bows to "Dr. Digit"

Given that much space, one could go on through the list, feel-ing more and more like the white rabbit.

But the most curious thing about the TOA's "reasons" is the tacit assumption that the product, as the industry calls pictures, is blameless. Nowhere in the "rea-sons" is there a hint that perhaps the system of making pictures to please the common denominator (which, the other day Malvina Lindsay cleverly labeled "Dr. Digit") is lifeless or that repetition can dull an admiring enthusiasm.

The New Orleans meeting promises to be a lively one. Schemes are afoot to penalize any players who dive into juicy head-lines by either booting them out of the business or boycotting their films. This boils down to legis-lating morals, a matter which has occupied busy minds for several thousand years now. If it can be accomplished, the allied members can take a bow for starting a new historical epoch.

Most of this palaver—and I wish you could see it streaming across this desk—adds up to nothing much except that it was a very rainy Monday.

With Shirley Povich

ANY WEEK NOW, the Washington ball club will probably announce Bucky Harris' return to the payroll. Clark Griffith's scouting up some kind of a title within the organization for his erstwhile boy wonder manager who is on nobody's payroll at the moment but quite unworried about his immediate future. There always has been a job for him with the Nats.

POVICH

In a couple of weeks, Harris will accompany the Washington contingent to the annual winter trade meetings of the major leagues in Chicago. He will be making one more pitch for another big league connection, as a front office man, but with no vacancy apparent, he will doubtless land in Griffith's lap again.

The Nats' owner doesn't admit as much. His lone comment to date has been "No comment from me at this time on Harris' plans." But the "at this time" is significant. If Harris can catch on with another club, Griffith will withdraw his own claim to Bucky's services. Griffith's fondness for Harris has been demonstrated many times over a period of years. He was outspoken when Harris was released by the Yankees last October. "Raw deal," said Griffith.

HARRIS WILL PROBABLY get a job as the Nats' super-scout. Griffith especially esteems Bucky's judgment of ball players and recently declared, "I'll go along further with Harris' opinion on a young ball player than that of any other baseball man I know."

With the Nats' farm system rapidly expanding under Ossie Bluege, the Washington club now has control of nearly 300 players.

It was Harris who enabled Griffith back in 1934 to make the biggest player deal in baseball history—the $250,000 cash sale of Joe Cronin to the Boston Red Sox. Harris was the first man in the Washington organization to perceive Cronin's talents and risked insubordination to keep him in the Nats' lineup in 1928.

In that year, Grffith was partial to another rookie shortstop, Bobby Reeves. Griffith noted that Harris was benching Reeves and playing Cronin in the road games. He wired Harris, "Keep Reeves in there, he'll never make a ball player if you don't let him play." Harris wired back, "Neither will Cronin," and kept him in the lineup.

IT'S A WONDERFUL Griffith-Harris friendship. Griffith has fired Harris a couple of times, but it hasn't made any difference in their fondness for each other. At the end of the 1928 season, after Harris had brought pennants to Washington in 1924-25, Griffith released him to take the Detroit managerial job. He pointed out he was doing Harris a favor.

"The fans are beginning to boo you here in Washington," he told Bucky. "You married a Senator's daughter an dtook a trip to Europe and they think you've gone high hat. You need a change of scenery and I need a change of faces in Griffith Stadium." Harris felt the same way about it and unreluctantly got out of town.

But six years later, after Harris lost out at Boston, where he had moved, he wasn't out of a job for more than a week. Griffith called him in and handed him a contract to manage the Nats for one year. Harris stayed eight.

At the end of the 1942 season, Griffith fired him again, but there was nothing very brutal about it. "If you don't find another job," he said, "you're always useful to me. I don't like to let a man go and have him worry all winter about where he's going to work in the spring. If you don't hook up with any other club, you can stay on our payroll."

THERE'S BEEN NOTHING one-sided about the affection between the two. Harris has always claimed that the fact he managed clubs for Griffith for 13 years is the best tribute that came to him during his career.

"I'm complimented when persons say Mr. Griffith is a hard man to satisfy. He kept me around for a long time," Bucky said.

Harris is weary of working for rich club owners without a sense of baseball values. "They don't have the understanding of Mr. Griffith," he says. "He knows all a manager's problems. He knows better than you why a team wins or why it loses. He doesn't let others tout him on or off his manager. If you do a good job for Mr. Griffith, you've got the best security in the league."

Father Donnelly 'Protects' Bednarik

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—Rev. John H. Donnelly, Ph. D., Catholic chaplain at the University of Pennsylvania, today revealed a unique protective agreement he has with Chuck Bednarik, Penn's great All-American center.

In an exclusive interview with The Washington Post, Father Donnelly produced a notarized pact dated May 19, 1948, in which Bednarik, 23 year old, placed himself under Father Donnelly's exclusive management regarding any professional offers. It won't expire until January 1, 1950.

Today, both vehemently denied a widely circulated rumor that Bednarik accepted $3000 last spring for a promise to play pro football with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the All-America Football Conference. The rumor was bandied about from Washington to New York.

Bednarik, burly 233-pounder, said today: "I positively never accepted any money from the Brooklyn Dodgers or anyone else to play football. Father Donnelly's my sole counselor and I can't accept any offer without his approval."

Then Father Donnelly, 6-foot 2-inch 225-pounder who looks like a former All-American himself, explained the agreement he had drawn up for Bednarik and his reasons for it.

EXCERPTS FROM IT, with Bednarik referred to as player and Father Donnelly as agent, follows:

"Player agrees to place himself under sole and exclusive management and supervision of agent in all matters concerned with or related to player's employment as football player or coach.

"Player agrees not to take part in, negotiate, contract or agree to participate in any football contest, exhibition or performance except as directed by agent.

"Player agrees that, if, during the term of this contract he attempts to render service as a football player or makes any agreement or contract relative thereto, agent shall have the right to apply to any court having jurisdiction of an injunction restraining the performance of such, service, agreement or contract.

"Agent agrees to use his best efforts to secure appropriate and remunerative employment for player."

A consideration clause incorporated reads: "Player agrees to compensate agent by rendering his services if and when requested by Father Donnelly in carrying out his programs at St. Bede's Roman Catholic Chapel and Newman Hall."

FATHER DONNELLY, 41, has held the Penn post, which is under the supervision of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, for 10 years. New Hall is his headquarters and St. Bede's Chapel is located there. The Hall is the central point for religious and social activities of Catholic students attending Penn.

It also has a dormitory for 38 students, 18 of whom—including Bednarik—are athletes. Father Donnelly serves as counselor to all. The athletes have made it a point to go to Father Donnelly with their problems over the years.

The frank priest said, "Shortly after I came here, I had experience with a professional team seeking one of our students and I've made it a point to be watchful.

"It all stated when the New York Yankess, the baseball team, approached Frank Reagan with a check and tried to sign him when he was only a sophomore. I advised against it. You know, Reagan was an All-American halfback at Penn before he was through in 1941.

"Since then, most of the boys have come to me even after they left school, for advice before accepting professional offers. I've helped them negotiate and studied their contracts before advising them to sign.

"The fellows I've acted for include Reagan, who eventually signed with the New York football Giants; Bernie Gallagher, tackle with

Irish Placed Second in AP Poll

By Jack Hand

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—Michigan is the mythical national football champion in the final Associated Press poll of the 1948 season.

The votes of 387 sports writers and radio commentators gave the unbeaten, untied Wolverines a 123-point margin over runnerup Notre Dame, which will attempt to complete its second straight perfect season at Southern California's expense Saturday. In the matter of first place ballots, Michigan had a substantial 192-97 margin. In points it was 3448 to 3325.

Notre Dame, which won the regular season poll last season, led only once this year during the eight-week run of voting. North Carolina, which finished third, also set the pace early in the season. Michigan was No. 1 six times, the last four weeks in succession.

North Carolina Third

Well over 1000 points back of Notre Dame came the once-tied North Carolina Tar Heels who received 31 firsts. California, the host team in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, grabbed fourth place with an even 2000 points. North Carolinas had 2281.

Oklahoma, which closed the season with a rush to move into the Sugar Bowl as North Carolina's foe, was ranked fifth with 30 firsts and 1906 points.

Despite its surprising 21-21 closing tie with Navy, the unbeaten Army Cadets drew enough support to take sixth place. Then came Northwestern which will represent the Western Conference in the Rose Bowl.

Georgia Placed Eighth

Georgia was a distant eighth, some 550 points behind Northwestern, with Oregon and Southern Methodist, the Cotton Bowl contestants, following in that order to round out the first 10.

All of the first 10 teams, with the exception of Notre Dame, have finished their regular seasons. However, seven of them will be busy in bowl games on January 1.

Michigan and Notre Dame have run 1-2 in the poll since October 19, but Army had been third for the last two weeks. North Carolina, California and Oklahoma each moved up a peg, while Army dropped three points to sixth. Northwestern held its seventh-place position of last week but Georgia advanced four steps by its 21-13 decision over Georgia Tech. Oregon advanced one peg and S. M. U., which played a 7-7 tie with Texas Christian, fell from eighth to tenth.

Clemson just missed the top 10, finishing eleventh and only 53 points behind S. M. U.

How They Rank:

The final standings on a point basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 (first place votes in parentheses):

Highs in Pinch Over Where to Play Games

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

High school basketball has been caught in a new two-way pinch for adequate places to play this season and school officials last night were wondering what to do.

The two-way pinch is felt like this:

1. The National Guard Armory, where the public schools would like to play, is not available to them on Friday and Saturday nights;

2. New fire prevention regulations have drastically reduced the number of persons who will be allowed to attend games played in high school gyms.

They Met Again Today

School officials will make a renewed attempt today to obtain permission to use the Armory on Friday or Saturday nights. They will go over the problem with Armory officials.

Two weeks ago Armory officials offered the schools free use of the big hall but specified that high school games would have to be played week-days or nights. Friday and Saturday are among the better revenue-producing nights for the Armory and will be devoted to college basketball and other attractions.

But the high schools have been playing their basketball games on Friday and Saturday nights for the past 10 years. School officials are opposed to switching these games to other nights when homework might be neglected.

If the games are played in the daytime, either at the Armory or in high school gyms, attendance will suffer, resulting in financial loss to the schools.

Even Students Can't Get In

Under the new fire prevention regulations, attendance at the various high schools would be held to such a low minimum that not even the student bodies could be accommodated, let alone adult cash-paying customers.

Permissible attendance at McKinley Tech High gym, where double-headers were played before last year, when the highs tried out the Armory, has been cut from 3300 to 700. Student enrollment at Tech is over 1200.

Under the "means-of-egress" regulations, which go into effect January 1, none of the other schools will be able to accommodate their own student bodies. Capacities at Roosevelt and Eastern will be 500 each, at Coolidge 300, and Anacostia and Central 200 each.

In refusing the schools' previous request for Friday and Saturday night dates, Arthur (Dutch) Bergman, Armory manager, explained: "Those two nights are in the greatest demand by rent-paying groups. If the schools were to use the Armory free on those two nights, we'd opearte at a great loss."

School officials would not comment on where the schools will play if today's request is turned down.

And There Was Butch, Right in Middle Of Sunday Sport Page

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 29 (AP).—It came as quite a surprise to the Frank H. Grahams to discover that Butch was in big-time football.

Butch is the Graham's 5-year-old fox terrier. He has been missing from the Graham home since last Monday.

Imagine the Grahams' surprise when they opened the Sunday paper to see Butch's picture right smack in the middle of the sports page.

There Butch was right in between the Auburn and Clemson football teams trying to get the ball away from the referee. The officials had to halt the game until Butch could be shooed off the field.

Speaking of people going no place in somewhat of a hurry, I give you the six-day bike riders.

In two minutes and eight seconds last night, I saw everything they'll see at the National Guard Armory in the 102 hours they'll spend pushing bikes around the track this week.

That's the time it took me to walk around the pineboard track. I was lapped 19 times during my tour. At this rate, I'd show a minus pool of 368 days and 2974 laps in a six-day race.

The riders may have gone around the track faster than I did, but their vantage point of the Armory's scenery wasn't nearly as good.

My feet were parallel to the track. Not the riders, however. They whiz around boards banked at 25-degree angles on the straightaway and 50 degrees on the turns. They didn't miss much in the way of scenery. The only sign in the place still reads "Join the National Guard" whichever way you look at it.

The guys riding in the current Armory race are lucky. They only work a 17-hour day. The usual bike marathon is a 24-hour stint, but the riders at the Armory believe that going nowhere in 17 hours is just as much an accomplishment as

Terps Set Rifle Record

The University of Maryland varsity rifle team set a new season high on its own range, shooting 1421 to defeat the 163d M. P. Battalion which scored 1263, in the Maryland Rifle League's weekly matches.

In the other team matches, the 933 Gun Club defeated National Capital No. 1, 1369-1366, and Berwyn Gun Club defeated U. S. Aggies Gun Club, 1388-1339. Individual high scores went to Maryland varsity team members, to Arthur Cook for his 294, and to Miss Gail Feimster, for her 250.

Eagles Take Bednarik as Bonus Choice

Philadelphia, Nov. 29 (U.P.)—Chuck Bednarik, Pennsylvania's great center, was named the football player of the year by the Philadelphia Maxwell Club today and simultaneously, was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

The Eagles, exercising the bonus draft choice drawn from a hat, gained exclusive NFL bargaining rights for the Big Bethlehem, Pa., gridder, hailed as one of the top centers of recent years.

Under National League rules, the draw is held each year. Once a team wins the draw and gets a free choice of a player, it is barred from future awards until each team has a bonue selection.

The Chicago Bears, winners in 1946, chose Bob Fenimore of Oklahoma A. & M. The Washington Redskins, winner of the special last year, took Harry Gilmer of Alabama. Fenimore did not play this season, an injury keeping him on the Bears' reserve list.

The Maxwell choice of Bednarik as the Nation's outstanding college football player marked the first time a lineman was so honored by the club.

One year ago, when the Maxwellites named Southern Methodist's Doak Walker for the major honor, Bednarik was chosen as the Nation's leading lineman.

Bethea, Green Fight Draw

Art Bethea, Washington middleweight, earned a draw in the third and rubber match of his rivalry with Joe Green of Asheville, N. C., last night at Turner's Arena.

Bethea had trouble with the southpaw slugging Carolinian throughout the eight-round cofeature, but finished strongly enough to get a standoff.

The smallest crowd of the season, 332 fans, paid a net of $774.76 to watch.

A second eight-rounder went to Walter Roane, 145½, Washington, in an upset over New York's George Smith, 140.

In five-rounders Frank Ball, 149, Washington, kayoed Ray Aldridge, 154, Portsmouth, at 2:24 of the second round; Portsmouth's Don Wagner, 202, stopped Ben Harrison, 198½, Washington, at 2:44 of the first round, and Johnny Holt, 169½, Washington, knocked out Oscar Wakefield, 169, Baltimore, at 2:16 of the fourth. An opening four-rounder went by decision to Portsmouth's Bobby Lee, 141, over Cy Redmond, 137½, Washington.

Crescent Cafe Wins

Sam Dean's Crescent Cafe last night defeated Casey's Market, 45-37, in the Wilson Recreation Basketball League. High scorer for the winning team was Sleepy Thompson with 12 points.

Pitt Puts Off Naming New Athletic Director Until Today

Pittsburgh, Nov. 29 (AP).—The University of Pittsburgh tonight delayed until tomorrow its selection of an athletic director.

Pitt said its choice will be revealed immediately upon conclusion of a meeting of the executive committee of the university's board of trustees. It will meet at 1:30 p. m. (EST).

The university previously had announced it would name today the man expected to lead Pitt back to gridiron glory.

Chancellor R. H. Fitzgerald released a statement following a meeting of the athletic committee and undergraduate deans which said:

"The problems discussed included the filling of the post of director of athletics, the names of

'Nothing New,' Hamilton Says

Capt. Tom Hamilton, Navy athletic director, said last night he had "nothing new" to say in regard to the Pitt athletic directorship.

"Any announcement would have to come from Pittsburgh," Captain Hamilton said from Annapolis.

Capt. Thomas Hamilton of the United States Naval Academy and others were taken up. Final decisions by all parties on this matter have not yet come about. And there can be no announcement on this matter at this time."

The chancellor's statement said: "A long period of planning and preparation has preceded the final discussions which are now under way. The university has every hope that a program and personnel that will meet with the approval of all, inside and outside the university, and will result from the difficult task which the athletic committee and others a tthe university have almost completed."

He said the negotiations are "at a critical and important stage at this moment."

The post of athletic director has been vacant since the resignation last summer of Jimmy Hagan. In addition to Hamilton, it was reported the university had considered Jack (Spike) Harding of Miami (Fla.) University; Wes Fesler of Ohio State and Lloyd Jordan of Amherst.

Hamilton, who was twice Navy's football coach before becoming athletic director, would have to be released from the Navy before he could accept a Pitt offer.

[At the Navy Department, it was said yesterday that any request for Hamilton's release would have to be approved by the Secretary's office. No such request has been received.]

Bowl-Shunned Tulane, Vandy May Stage Game

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 29 (AP). The Nashville Banner said today Vanderbilt is studying the possibility of playing a postseason football game against Tulane in Mobile's new 36,000 capacity Ladd Stadium. The probable date would be December 30.

Tulane was defeated once, by Georgia Tech. Vanderbilt won seven straight and wound up one of the South's top teams after two losses and a tie in its first three games.

Colonials Name George Garber Temporary Basketball Coach

George Garber, Colonial basketball star of 1938 to 1940, yesterday took over as temporary head coach of George Washington University, replacing ailing Arthur (Otts) Zahn for an "idefinite" period.

Zahn is at present in George Washington Hospital for observation and treatment of internal disorders.

In announcing Garber's appointment, the university said it is following Zahn's own suggestion about his replacement. A G. W. U. ace himself in the early 30's, Zahn coached Garber as a freshman in 1936-37 and, in the opinion of the popular Otts, Garber was the man best qualified to coach his system.

Garber, as he took charge of the Colonial squad of 13 players, including nine lettermen, was stepping into the shoes of a highly successful court leader. Since becoming GW's head coach in 1942, Zahn has won over 70 per cent of his games, three times coaching the club into the Southern Conference tournament, which it won in 1942.

Last season Zahn tried his hand at baseball coaching for the first time and led the Buff and Blue to the N. C. A. A. tournament, where it lost out in the finals.

Garber has only until Friday to polish the Colonials for their opener. On that date they meet the Quantico Marines in the first game of a 23-game schedule.

Since graduating from George Washington, Garber has been employed as a salesman. In his spare time he has coached and played on sandlot teams.

Army Awarded Lambert Trophy

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—Army won the 1948 Lambert Trophy, symbolic of the Eastern football championships, in a vote of sports writers and broadcasters today. It is the fourth time in five years that the Cadets have won the award.

Army received 112 votes in today's balloting, Penn State 6 and Cornell 1.

Willoughby, Ohio, Nov. 29 (AP). How to pick football winners:

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Huntington say they asked their daughter, Janice, to repeat back one team of each game and wrote that down, then they sent her list to the Lake County News Herald weekly football contest.

The paper awarded Janice $25 today for picking 16 winners out of 20 games. She will be two years old in February.

Texas Goes to Orange Bowl

Miami, Fla., Nov. 29 (AP).—It's Georgia vs. Texas in the Orange Bowl.

The University of Texas Longhorns' faculty and team voted unanimously today to accept the Orange Bowl invitation to face Coach Wally Butts' University of Georgia Bulldogs, which accepted Saturday night.

It will be the runners-up of the Southwest Conference against the champions of the Southeastern Conference.

Both teams will receive approximately $75,000 for their part in the colorful fifteenth annual New Year Day spectacle.

R. D. Freeman, Orange Bowl committeeman, said negotiations had been under way with Texas since Saturday night. He said Texas Athletic Director Dana X. Bible and Head Coach Blair Cherry "were very pleased to receive an invitation."

Acceptance was held up, Freeman said, until team members home for the Thanksgiving holidays returned to school and could get in on the vote. When the vote was made, it was unanimous, he said.

The Longhorns won six of their 10 regular season games, tied Texas A. & M. 14-14 on Thanksgiving Day in the season closer and lost by lop-sided scores to North Carolina, Oklahoma and Southern Methodist—all of which are headed for bowl games.

The Bulldogs defeated another Texas team—T.C.U.—40-26 in the 1942 Orange Bowl.

Since Butts came to Georgia 10 years ago the Bulldogs have appeared in five bowls. They defeated U.C.L.A. 9-0 in the 1943 Rose Bowl, North Carolina 20-10 in the 1947 Sugar Bowl, Tulsa 20-6 in Houston, Tex, Oil Bowl of 1946 and tied Maryland 20-20 in this year's Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla.

The Cotton is the only major bowl in which Georgia has not played.

Navy's Sauer Given Hero's Welcome; Says 'We'll Be Better Team Next Year'

Over 150 fans, the largest Monday luncheon gathering of the season, turned out to pay their respects to the Middie coaches who guided the Tars to an amazing 21-21 tie with mighty Army Saturday.

Many more who wanted to hear Sauer & Co. were turned away.

"That game Saturday will help us in spring football and in our fall campaign," Sauer said. "There's going to be a lot of keen competition this spring. We lost 10 of our 11 starters last Saturday. We won't be as good as we want to but I think we will be better than this year."

The Middies' coach said that the Navy held the highly favored Army to a deadlock by keeping the ball away from the powerful Cadets.

"We decided that if they had the ball it would be a long afternoon," he said, "so we decided just to keep the ball and not let Army get ahold of it.

"We mixed up T-formation blocking and single-wing blocking and ground out 3 and 4 yards at a crack and held onto the ball. We ran 73 times to Army's 48 and had the ball three-fourths of the time. That had more to do with the outcome of the game than anything else.

"We would have rather won but we were quite happy over the tie, and it wasn't any fluke. I had no idea the guys would rise to the occasion as they did—but it's a treat to know that they will do that year in and year out."

In a question-and-answer session, Sauer said that the Middies voted Notre Dame as the better all-around team over Michigan, but wouldn't venture a prediction as to the outcome of a game between the two gridiron greats.

Princeton Honor Goes to Val Wagner

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 29 (UP).—Val Rathfon Wagner, 23-year-old halfback from Upper Darby, Pa., tonight was named winner of the John Prentiss Poe, jr., Memorial Cup—Princeton's highest football honor.

Wagner, a pre-medical student who just completed his third varsity season, was the Tigers' leading 1948 ground-gainer. He threw touchdown passes in five of Princeton's eight games and had a rushing average of 4.1 yards per carry.

Rams Next . . .

'Skins Now Worrying About Second

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

IT WAS AN awful comedown for a team that once had championship dreams, but the Washington Redskins yesterday were worrying about clinching second place in the National Football League's eastern section as they returned from Chicago.

Beaten by the Bears, 48-13, the 'Skins needed a victory over the Los Angeles Rams at Griffith Stadium this Sunday to save something out of the wreckage of their '48 season. Even second place in their division would earn the 'Skins approximately $200 a man in playoff money.

There was little certainty that the Redskins would beat the Rams, either. This despite their 23-10 edge in a September exhibition. The Rams have improved by great bounds, their latest triumph a convincing 24-10 smashing of Green Bay last week.

COACH TURK EDWARDS had no alibis for the 'Skins horrible showing in Chicago. Nobody was blaming him, in the first place. He had this to say:

"You have to call it a combination of bad luck and poor playing when your team fumbles three of the first four times it handles the ball, each fumble is recovered by the opposition inside your 16-yard line, and each recovery is turned into a touchdown.

"We could have beaten the Bears," Turk said. "I still think that. But you can't spot any team—certainly not the Bears—20 points and expect to whip it. Actually we gave Chicago a 34-point lead but it was those first 20, all in the first four minutes, that decided it."

After he intercepted a Sid Luckman pass and lumbered 28 yards with the ball, Center Clyde Ehrhardt was a little ashamed of himself—"I tried to get fancy, like a halfback, and gave Minini a hip when he tried to tackle me. Darned if he didn't take it."

THE REDSKINS' rookie running star, Dan Sandifer, intercepted his thirteenth pass of the season in the second quarter, adding to his National Football League record. But the surprising part of the Redskin performance was the good work of the team's "comeback corps."

Steve Bagarus caught six passes, one for a touchdown, and looked almost like the Buggsy of 1945. Jimmy Youel completed only 3 of 11 passes but ran the team smartly and managed for the 'Skins' other touchdown. Jim Castiglia carried the ball 10 times, picked up 47 of Washington's 67 yards along the ground.

The Redskins are almost unanimous in the belief that the Chicago Cardinals, to whom they lost an exhibition game in Denver, will beat out the Bears for the Western Division championship, and go ahead to down the Philadelphia Eagles for the league title.

4500 See Miss Prime 2d in Mud

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Nov. 29. G. Y. Booker's Lawless Miss, fleet daughter of Gallahadion, the upset winner of a Kentucky Derby, drove to a length victory in the fifteenth running of the Inaugural Purse, featuring the first of 18 programs at this six-furlong track.

J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime, most consistent winner during the last summer meeting, was second and a length off the winner. Four additional lengths back came G. E. Murphy's Margaret E. to be third in the field of seven.

Racing conditions were at their worst for the opening card. Heavy rain of the past two days left the track muddy. However, the newly surfaced strip proved safe and sound. Lawless Miss was clocked in 1:25 1/5 for the 6½ furlongs while under good handling by Jockey Emile Carrillo.

Winner Pays $4

A crowd of 4500, betting with a totalizator here for the first time, installed Lawless Miss as the favorite, and she returned a $4 mutuel.

Stanley set the early pace but ran out entering the back stretch. Carrillo then sent Lawless Miss to the top where she was to stay. Approaching the stretch, the mare opened what appeared to be a commanding lead.

However, Jockey Eddie Ballenger roused Miss Prime and she came to the outside to loom menacingly. She cut down Lawless Miss's lead, but CARRILLO went to work on the favorite and she was clinging to her length advantage at the end. Margaret E. closed some ground but was a beaten-off third.

Double Pays $115

The program opened on a familiar downbeat, Roman Boy, a 12-year-old and a frequent winner here in his early years, showed a return from, leading virtually all the way at a $13.80 mutuel while ridden by Jockey Webb Snyder. Those who had Roman Boy coupled with Fire High, $10.80 winner in the second race, collected a $115.40 daily double on the 2-and-5 combination.

Killed Overseas

George Oertel, Ex-GW Star, Will Be Reburied Friday

The body of Lieut. George C. Oertel, the former star of Western High and George Washington University who was killed in 1944 in the Italian campaign, has been returned to Washington and will be reburied Friday morning in Arlington Cemetery.

George Oertel

Oertel, 25 years old at the time of his death, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Oertel, of 6164 First pl. ne.

After graduating from Gordon Junior High and starring for three years as Western's centerfielder Oertel continued on in the same position for George Washington until he entered the service in 1941, his junior year. He also played baseball extensively in the Industrial League, for Heurich Brewers and Reliance Insurance.

Although he studied accounting at George Washington, Oertel planned a professional baseball career. He talked to Bucky Harris, then manager of the Nats, just before joining the Army, and according to his mother, Harris promised the young outfielder a tryout after his war service.

His baseball interest was nurtured and encouraged by his father, George C. Oertel, sr., also a baseball player in his younger days who still takes an active part in the game as an official District of Columbia umpire.

The body is at Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. nw. Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9 at Nativity Parish, 6000 Georgia ave., and will be followed by a private burial in Arlington at 10.

Lions Trade Baby to Houston

Coach Frank Beisler last night announced that the Washington Lions have traded John Baby, veteran defenseman, to the Buffalo Bisons for Paul Mundrick, a 29-year-old right winger, who is reporting here directly from the Houston Chiefs of the United States Hockey League.

Mundrick will make his debut against the Indians in Springfield, Mass., tomorrow night. The local pros return to Uline ice against the Indianapolis Capitals Friday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Justice Leads Conference Scorers Again

Richmond, Va., Nov. 29 (AP).—Charlie Justice moved out in front again today in the Southern Conference individual scoring scramble.

The North Carolina tailback had 66 points after scoring twice last week in the Tar Heels' 34-12 victory over Virginia.

Only six points behind Justice was Ray Mathews, Clemson tailback, who had shoved 10 touchdowns across. Mathews still has an opportunity to catch the Carolina Choo-Choo in the point-making derby. For Saturday, Clemson goes to The Citadel and may go on a scoring rampage against the weak Bulldogs.

In third place in the touchdown-making was Bill Gregus, Wake Forest halfback, with 54 points. Box Cox, North Carolina end, had three touchdowns and 33 extra points for 51.

Silver Spring Club Boxing Tonight

Eight amateur boxing bouts will be staged tonight at the Silver Spring Armory by the Silver Spring National Guard Athletic Club, commencing at 8 p. m. Proceeds of the show will be used by the sponsors to equip a gymn.

Highlighting the card will be the bout between Pat Thomas and Jimmy Caraway, both local champions, who will weigh in at 130. A middleweight cofeature pits Ralph Torres against Dan Merwood. Both are winners of area service tourneys. The welterweight scrap between Johnny Howard of Merrick Club, and St. Mary's Bill Sellers also looms as a crowd-pleaser.

Father Donnelly Has Giant Bednarik Well in Hand

the Los Angeles Dons; Guard Ed Grain, New York football Yanks and Baltimore Colts; Don Schneider, Buffalo Bills; George Savitsky, Philadelphia Eagles, and Francis (Chink) Crossin, basketball player with the Philadelphia Warriors."

Father Donnelly said his written agreement with Bednarik was the first he ever had with any player and he had it drawn up because he thought it was the "best way to protect Chuck."

Bednarik closed out a brilliant football career at Penn on Thanksgiving Day. He's a cinch to become everybody's choice as All-American center for the second successive year. Bednarik, a whale of a defensive player, took care of Penn's kickoff chores and pulled out of the line to do most of the punting. On occasion, he's even carried the ball.

Although the Philadelphia Eagles, of the National Football League, revealed officially today that Bednarik was their choice in the special "bonus" draft they won, Father Donnelly and Chuck won't make any commitments until he leaves school.

An exceptional baseball player, too, Bednarik plans to catch again this spring on the Penn varsity.

Bednarik did say he'd like to play for an Eastern pro team and indicated that he'd be receptive to an appropriate offer from the Eagles, Eastern Division champs.

Bednarik is from Bethlehem, Pa., and was an All-State choice at high school there. His wife, Emma, whom he married last June 5, also is a Bethlehem girl. During the war, he was a B-24 waist gunner and flew 30 combat missions over Germany.

Caps Seek 13th Tomorrow

Those unbeaten prodigies, the Washington Caps, take up the cudgel in Uline Arena tomorrow night trying to wrest victory number 13 from the Providence Steamrollers, the team that made it so hard for the Caps to win victory No. 2.

Back on November 4 in Providence, the Steamrollers came very close to ending the Caps' winning streak at one. The Caps needed three overtime periods to subdue the stubborn New Englanders, 99 to 95.

Kenny Sailors, a little man as pro courtmen go, sets the pace for the Steamrollers, having averaged 17.1 points per game.

Griff Donates Park to Metro

Consequently the football game involving Southwest Merchants and Brookland—Woodridge Merchants, 1948 Western Division champion of the Metropolitan Amateur Football League, will be played at the ball park December 12, at 2 p. m.

Jimmy Vakas, center and contact man for Southwest Merchants, approached Edward B. Eynon, jr., Secretary of the Washington Baseball Club, yesterday with a request that Griffith Stadium be made available as a site for this game which will donate its receipts to Eddie Tawneys, Southwest's triple-threat back who suffered a broken back against Brookland.

"We'll look into it, and see what we can do," Eynon promised Vakas.

Jimmy was overjoyed late yesterday to learn that Eynon and Clark C. Griffith, Washington Baseball Club president, are donating the ball park for the occasion.

Hewitt Loses on Disqualification

Tarzan Frank Hewitt made as if to strangle barrelly Abie Coleman and was promptly disqualified from their main bout at Uline Arena last night after they had performed for 10 minutes. Twelve hundred people paid to see it.

In the other acts, Angelo Savoldi defeated Steve Gob, Arno Skaaland, Sweden's gift to the orchid, defeated Rocco Columbo, Joe Ludlum defeated Geza Tako, and Frank Florentino defeated Red Kirkpatrick.

Clear Skies Forecast for Big Clash

Gonzaga and St. John's will have another chance to play their Catholic high school championship game tonight at Griffith Stadium, this time with some definite encouragement from the weatherman.

Clear weather is promised for the game which was called off last Sunday on account of rain. As one of the big schoolboy games of the year, the affair has attracted crowds of 15,000 in the past and will probably draw the same number tonight.

Gonzaga, having won five of the eight games it has played, is favored to dump the Cadets who have won only one game all season. Fr t standing out in the St. John's record are ties with Central and Georgetown Prep, considered the class of the city.

Prep school representatives will meet immediately after tonight's game to select an opponent for Central High in the city championship game on tap next Saturday at Griffith Stadium.

The Blessed Sacrament St. Anthony's junior CYO championship game, also postponed last Sunday, will precede tonight's game at the Stadium and will start at 7 p. m. Tickets go on sale at the ball park at 6:30 this evening.

Catholic Beats Towson, 65-36

Catholic University's Cardinals gave their new basketball coach, Abe Rosenfield, a nice sendoff last night, defeating Towson State Teachers, 65-36, in a Mason-Dixon Conference game at the Cardinal gym.

An opening night crowd of 1500 saw the well-drilled Cardinals jump off to a 13-9 first-period lead, build it up to 27-16 at half time, and continue on to coast in the second half. For Towson, it was the second straight conference loss, the Teachers having dropped one to American U. last week, 67-32.

Guard Jack Walsh was high scorer for the Cardinals with 15 points, followed by Fred Connor who added five free throws to four field goals for 13 points. Charles Kimmett led the losers with 9 points.

going nowhere in 24 hours. The other seven hours they just rest.

There are a couple of ringers in the field—Americans. Americans are about as common in the six-day bike riding business as they are in the bull-fighting business.

Roy Barnes, 19-year-old Jamaica rider, withdrew from the race at 11:30 last night because of illness. The young rider was involved in four of the five spills on Sunday night's opening races.

His partner, Roger Godeau of Paris, had four hours in which to find another partner or he, too, would have to retire from the grind. The Barnes-Godeau team was in last place when Barnes dropped out.

The pair, George Shipman and his American partner, Howard Rupprecht of Maplewood, N. J., picked u pthree laps in three hours last night.

The Shipman-Rupprecht tandem pedaled their way from seventh place to tie Jean Goujon and Roger Le Nizerhy, of France, for the lead:

Bill Drafted To License Psychologists

A bill to license clinical psychologists in the District has been drafted by the District of Columbia Psychological Association to eliminate unqualified persons now advertising services as "personal counselors."

The proposed legislation, which the association hopes to hand the Eighty-first Congress, will be submitted to Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, for discussion in mid-December. It stems from Dr. Ruhland's desire to curb persons whose advertisements "claim to cure everything from hives to divorce."

That is what Dr. Isabelle Kendig, psychologist at St. Elizabeths Hospital and retiring president of the association, told the group last night in presenting the tentative draft of the legislation at a meeting at George Washington University.

The bill, drawn up by a committee headed by Dr. Kendig, would set up a five-man "Board of Clinical Psychology" which is to establish license standards, determine qualifications of applicants, give and evaluate examinations and issue licenses.

Under the license act, a successful applicant for license as a clinical psychologist must be a United States citizen, hold a Ph. D. in psychology, and have had four years of preprofessional training.

In addition, the applicant must pass examinations in general, experimental, clinical and abnormal psychology, physiological psychology, and others.

Applicants who qualify would be licensed to practice, for fee, ". . . counseling, interviewing, administering and interpreting tests of mental abilities and personality characteristics for the purpose of psychological diagnosis and therapy, including reeducation, guidance and readjustment."

Dr. Kendig, who termed the proposed bill "a very important, very significant step forward," said it grew out of a meeting with Dr. Ruhland and other District officials early in July.

At that time, she said, Dr. Ruhland suggested she form a committee to figure out an answer to the problem arising from unqualified persons currently performing psychological functions. "The committee agreed," she said, "that only a licensing bill would meet the challenge."

The association did not vote on the bill last night but expressed "hearty approval of what has been done by the committee." Dr. Kendig asked members to study the bill and mail criticisms and suggestions in time for the next committee meeting December 9.

Makin Urges Education in Peace Science

Education in the "science of peace" with special emphasis on the spiritual basis of human relationships was advocated last night by Australian Ambassador Norman J. O. Makin.

The diplomat spoke at a banquet in the Mayflower marking the second day of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers.

Asserting the "this is the era of the common man" and that private citizens today hold the power, in large measure, to determine the destiny of the world, the speaker urged greater study of the United Nations and training in the understanding of world problems.

Speaking of the United Nations organization, Makin asked: "What do we know of this organization . . .? We may know that we have a Charter and three Articles but do we know how those Articles work? Do we know, for instance, that the United Nations was not set up to make peace settlements with the enemy countries . . .? Do we realize that peace settlements as to Germany, Japan and the finalisation about the Italian colonies have not yet been reached . . .?"

Earlier in the day, John F. Sullivan, brokerage analyst, told the gathering that investment of endowment funds in common stocks has increased sharply with the result that funds have been able to maintain an over-all rate of return "in excess of 4 per cent."

Another speaker was Ewan Clague, United States commissioner of labor statistics, who saw an economic collapse similar to that following World War I as unlikely.

As bulwarks he cited the Marshall Plan, increased armament spending, farm price supports, high level of domestic industrial demand and free spending by consumers.

The meeting, which opened Sunday, will be concluded today with additional talks, committee reports and election of officers.

Pan Am Planes To Play Postman For Santa Claus

Parents battling to restore the younger generation's faith in Santa Claus received reinforcements from the air yesterday.

Pan American Airlines, throwing its weight behind old St. Nick, outlined a plan which will enable any youngster to receive a note from Santa with a North Pole—or nearby—postmarked. Here's how the scheme works:

Parents should enclose ghost-written letters from "Santa" in a stamped air mail envelope, complete with their small fry's name and address.

The letter should then be placed in another envelope market "Attn. Santa Claus" and mailed or delivered to Pan American Airways, at 1109 Connecticut ave. nw., before December 11.

The airline will stamp the letter from "Santa" with a large picture of the old gentleman, fly it to Alaska and mail it back to the doubting youngster just in time for Christmas.

Alexandria Salesman Kills Self With Pistol in His Car

The pistol death Sunday night of R. Leslie Arnold, 30, Alexandria coal and lumber salesman, was ruled suicide yesterday by Dr. John A. Sims, Alexandria coroner.

Arnold's body was found by police shortly after midnight yesterday slumped in the front seat of his parked car in the 100 block of Duke st.

Inspector Russell A. Hawes said a .32 caliber automatic pistol was found clenched in Arnold's hand with his finger on the trigger.

The bullet, fired from inside his mouth, had traveled through the skull and lodged in the roof of the car, Hawes said.

Lying on the seat, Hawes said, was Igor I. Sikorsky's book, "The Invisible Encounter," opened to a chapter titled "The Tragic Discord."

A native of Alexandria and a graduate of the George Washington High School there, Arnold served in the European war theater during a three-year stint in the Army Air Forces. He had been employed by the W. A. Smoot Co. since 1941.

He is survived by his wife, Mae R. Arnold, 808 South Washington st., Alexandria, and by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Raymond Arnold, also of Alexandria.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 12:30 p. m. at Demaine's funeral Home, 526 South Washington st., Alexandria, with burial at Arlington National Cemetery.

2 Brothers Win $13,500 Damages

Two brothers were awarded a total of $13,500 damages yesterday in District Court for injuries they suffered while riding in a taxicab here.

John J. Chapman, 30, of 666 E st. ne., received $10,000, and William Chapman, 32, of the same address, received $3500.

The judgments were by default against Victor A. Samulick, cab driver, of 629 4th st. nw., and Donald G. Dimmick, a farmer, of Parkersburg, W. Va. The collision occurred January 24, 1946, at 6th and F sts. ne., when the cab and Dimmick's automobile collided, according to the suit.

The trial was before Judge Matthew F. McGuire. The Chapmans were represented by Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer, jr.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Government Workers To Get Half Holiday On Christmas Eve

You can depend on this—a half holiday for Government workers will be ordered on Friday, December 24. An official White House memo on this to Federal agencies will go out sometime this week.

The request for an all-day holiday on the day before Christmas was rejected. It was explained that it was the custom in recent years to give employes the afternoon off before Christmas. Employes who want to travel on that day may take it off at the cost of only four hours of annual leave. The agencies will be liberal in granting annual leave during the holiday season.

Another half holiday will be ordered for Friday, December 31, New Year's Eve. However, there's nothing definite about it.

With both Christmas and New Year's falling on Saturday this year, Government employes will will have the minimum of time off from their offices. Saturday isn't a work day for most Federal people.

COMMERCE: It doesn't pay for some people to have gray hairs in this department. It has just fired five employes who were all over 55 because they wouldn't have had 15 years of Government service and therefore be eligible for retirement when they would be 70.

Furthermore, the ax is swinging over the heads of all other Commerce employes in similar circumstances. The department has a new policy which provides for the retirement of any and all employes as they reach 70. Unless an employe has had at least 15 years of service he can't be retired on anything approaching a livable pension. Therefore, its officials believe, all employes who won't have 15 years by the time they are 70 should be fired.

Among those who have been ousted recently because they were over 55 are Evart Stevens, William Wilding, Katherine Sellers and Tom Coyle.

FCC: A reorganization of the Federal Communications Commission, one which would lop off activities, is reported to be under study by its top command.

Like several other independent agencies, FCC must drop some of its functions if it's to live within the proposed 1950 budget as approved by the Budget Bureau. It's reported that the Budget Bureau cut FCC's proposed budget by upward of $1,500,000 which would mean the dropping of some employes. FCC would have to absorb every dime of the $330 pay raise to its employes and then some.

UPWA: Additional locals have withdrawn from the Communist-line United Public Workers. The Federal prison locals at Atlanta, Leavenworth, Kans.; Chillicothe, Ohio, and Milan, Mich., have all left the UPWA and they have affiliated with the right-wing and sensible Government Workers Union, also a CIO affiliate.

The coming crack-down by CIO President Murray on UPWA is certain to be a boon to GWU which is slated to get CIO jurisdiction over the Federal worker field—with a big name as its leader. Incidentally, several of UPWA's Moscow apologists are reported to be pulling every available string in an effort to keep their jobs—even to the extent of saying they weren't really sympathetic to UPWA's left-wing leaders. Oh yeah?

CIVIL SERVICE Commissioner James M. Mitchell will speak Thursday at a dinner meeting of the National Federation of Federal Employes in the YWCA. He'll speak again Monday at a dinner meeting of the Society for Personnel Administration in the Agriculture cafeteria.

REA: An unusual tribute will be paid to a public servant who is to be retired by her agency, the Rural Electrification Administration. The entire REA staff is being called together at 2 p. m. Thursday to honor the lady, Mrs. Dora B. Haines. REA Administrator Claude R. Wickard had this to say of Mrs. Haines:

"The breadth of vision and the unfailing spirit of devotion which Mrs. Haines brought to this program have enabled her to make an outstanding contribution to the welfare of rural America."

EXAMS: Civil Service has exams open for storekeeper, $2086 to $3727 to start, and for student aid trainee, $2498 to $2724. College sophomores and juniors are eligible to complete in the latter test.

HOOVER COMMISSION: Dean Acheson is slated to write the main over-all report on the work of the Hoover Commission. It's now a safe bet that the commission will confine itself to problems of Government organization and management; that it won't get itself involved in policies such as whether there should be a farm subsidy program, etc.

AGRICULTURE'S Red Cross unit hopes to raise enough money to buy television sets, public address systems, and possibly a piano for patients in local Federal hospitals. It is giving a children's Christmas show at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, December 11, and two musical programs on the evenings of December 16 and 17. Tickets are available in Room 1011 at South Agriculture.

Alexandria's Health Body Gives Advice To Hospital

Committee Report Proposes Methods Of Reducing Costs And Raising Income

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

A plain-speaking committee report suggesting ways to balance the Alexandria Hospital's budget was sent to the hospital's board of directors last night by the Alexandria Health Council.

The council itself, after a heated discussion, requested the hospital board to study the report and submit its comments.

The committee, headed by Dr. Arthur J. Maurot, president of the Alexandria Medical Society, recommended that the hospital should cut expenses and increase its income. Two weeks ago, officials announced the hospital had no money with which to operate after the first of the year.

To decrease expenses the committee suggested the hospital cut its number of employes in all departments except nursing. The report stated the hospital employs about 1.7 persons per patient against a nation-wide average of less than 1.5.

Methods Suggested

The report suggested the following methods of increasing income:

1. More careful screening of patients and collection of bills.

2. The major cost of running the emergency room should be assured by the city.

3. The city to guarantee all emergency cases where the patient can't pay.

4. Acceptance by the city of a broader definition of medically indigent.

5. Payment by the city to the hospital for service rendered by its radiologist to the city Health Department.

Hospitalization Costs

6. Cost of hospitalization for ambulatory patients referred by Community Health Clinic to be assumed by the city.

7. Expense of indigent patients from surrounding counties to be borne by them.

The committee called the board of directors' confession of financial grief "ill-advised and extremely poor public relations." It strongly recommended that suggestions in the Clemmons survey report made more than a year ago, concerning charter changes and increasing the size of the board of directors, be adopted immediately.

A special meeting of the hospital corporation to make these changes was requested.

Delay in Action Asked

George Spaeth, hospital publicity director, urged that the council take no action on the report until the audit and investigation agreed to by the City Council has been completed.

Earlier in the evening, the newly formed health council adopted a constitution stating as its purposes the coordination of health work in the city, informing and advising the public on health problems, and improving health facilities in the city.

The council originated last month with a group of doctors who hoped to follow up recommendations made in a State Health Department survey of the city Health Department. It expects to expand to include members from all civic and social agencies in the city as well as private members.

Georgetown Prep Resumes Classes

Classes were resumed yesterday at Georgetown Preparatory School Garrett Park, Md., which shut down "indefinitely" November 15 after two of its students were stricken with infantile paralysis.

Officials said it had become apparent there was no danger of an epidemic. The stricken students, Henry O'Brien, 17, of Pittsburgh, and Lawrence Kennedy, 16, Mount Kisco, N. Y., were both reported in "good" condition at Georgetown Hospital.

Mrs. Gizycka Quizzed in Will Fight

MRS. FELICIA GIZYCKA

Mrs. Felicia Gizycka was subjected to a six-hour barrage of questioning yesterday in her challenge of her mother's will, and the pretrial examination will continue today.

Only child of the late Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, Mrs. Gizycka made her first public appearance yesterday in her suit to break the $16,586,57 Patterson will when she arrived here to give a deposition in the case.

The deposition is being taken behind closed doors by attorneys for the executors named in the will. Bulk of yesterday's questioning was conducted by Attorney Louis G. Caldwell.

With Three Attorneys

Mrs. Gizycka, 43, a tall brunette who strongly resembles her mother—owner-publisher of the Washington Times-Herald—arrived at the 1760 Pennsylvania ave. nw., offices of Ward & Paul, court reporters, accompanied by three attorneys, William A. Roberts and Harold A. Kurtz of Washington, and Lloyd K. Garrison of New York.

Although discharged last Thursday from a New York hospital after what were described as strenuous tests to determine whether she required an operation for a pancreatic tumor, she told reporters in answer to questions: "I feel all right. I'm fine."

She posed for photographs, and when reporters pressed her with questions, she countered: "I'll see you later. I'll leave everything to my lawyers. It's up to them."

The questioning, broken by an hour out for lunch and several recesses "when she seemed to be tiring," was recessed at 4 p. m., having already run into 150 pages of stenographic record, and is expected to continue most of today.

The record is believed to include her reasons for challenging her mother's will. In the suit, filed in September, Mrs. Gizycka alleged her mother was "of unsound mind" when she made the will and was subjected to "coercion."

The contested will gives Mrs. Gizycka $25,000 a year and certain real estate, with no share in the Times-Herald. Should she break the will, she would be her mother's sole legal heir.

Mrs. Gizycka, born of Mrs. Patterson's tempestuous marriage to a Polish count, is twice married and divorced, and the former wife of Drew Pearson, columnist. One daughter, Ellen, now Mrs. George Arnold, was born of that union. Mrs. Gizycka is the author of two books, and also has written many magazine articles.

Depositions are generally comparable to proceedings in open court, with questions limited only by the case, and either side enabled to "discover" as much of the other side's information as answers under oath permit. Both sides are represented by counsel at these sessions, and the depositions become public once filed in court—unless "sealed" by court order.

Three Employes Of VA to Enter Retirement Today

Three employes of the Veterans' Administration Central Office, with a combined total of 57 years of Government service, will be retired today.

They are Bernardin J. Eckloff, 59, 4 I st. nw., premium account clerk in the insurance accounts office; Paul Meldrum, 56, 890 N. Frederick st., Arlington, review clerk in insurance accounts service, and Harry E. Ratcliffe, 70, 5051 New Hampshire ave. nw., assistant to the chief of specifications in construction service. Eckloff and Meldrum, both Army veterans of World War I, are retiring because of disability, while Ratcliffe, a Spanish-American War veteran, is retiring because of age.

Eckloff, a native Washingtonian with 25 years' service in various Government agencies, has been with VA since 1936. Meldrum, with 17 years of Federal employment, also has been with the agency since 1936, while Ratcliffe, who has had 15 years of Government service, has been a VA employe since 1935.

Charter Suit Is Outdated, Court Told

Commissioners Lost Right to Protest Council Election, Demurrer States

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

In waiting 18 months before questioning the legality of the scheduled Montgomery County charter council election, the county commissioners forfeited their legal right to challenge, it was charged yesterday.

This allegation was one of six points in a formal answer to a suit filed Friday by four Republican commissioners.

The suit was instituted to prevent an election, set for January 6, to name seven county council members under provisions of the county's new charter.

Would Delay Election

If the four commissioners are upheld in their contention that the scheduled election conflicts with a provision of the State constitution requiring quadrennial elections, a charter council election would be delayed until 1950, and the present commissioners would remain in office until then.

In a demurrer filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court, lawyers for the charter board and charter committee yesterday said the Commissioners were presented with the charter proposal on May 1, 1947, and by their failure to question legality of the January elections until now, should be barred from bringing legal action.

Points in Demurrer

Other points in the demurrer: Charter drafters were legally responsible under the State constitution to provide for an elected legislative body, and such a body is "lawfully provided for" in the charter.

If the Commissioners are upheld, there will be no elective body empowered to enact public local laws for Montgomery County until May, 1951. Such powers are transferred from the General Assembly only to an elected charter council, not the Commissioners sitting as interim councilmen.

Courts have "a duty to construe constitutional provisions so as not to produce absurd results" and make the county voters wait until 1950 for a charter council election.

The nomination of council candidates by petition, instead of by party primary as is required by the Lindsay Act is valid, because the law does not provide a "timely or available" primary.

Commissioners' Removal

Removal of the five commissioners whose offices are provided for in the constitution is not invalid under charter because the State law does not continue in existence the commissioners' posts where a charter has been adopted.

In another development yesterday, the County Charter Committee and the Charter Board which drafted the charter, received court permission to intervene as co-defendants in the suit. Originally named defendant by F. Barnard Welsh, legal adviser to the commissioners was the county board of elections supervisors.

Judges Charles W. Woodward and Stedman Prescott set December 9 as the date for argument on the demurrer filed yesterday, and each side was limited to 45 minutes.

$720 Stolen From Store, Postoffice

Thieves early yesterday sawed through three iron bars and cracked open two safes to steal more than $720 from a general store and postoffice in Dickerson, Md.

Police said the thieves spread new clothing from the store's shelves on the ground outside the postoffice window to avoid leaving footprints.

The store operated by C. W. Barton and the postoffice under Roy W. Swank, were broken into once before, last September 3, police said, and $700 was stolen. Thieves at that time employed similar methods.

Detective Corpl. Jesse B. Day of Montgomery County police, said $224 in cash and stamps was missing from the postoffice office safe and over $500 from the store safe in yesterday's theft. An electric drill was used to open one safe and a crowbar for the other, he said.

Federal agents and county police were investigating.

Conference Held On School Aide For Arlington

Members of the Arlington School Board met last night with State Superintendent of Public Instruction G. Tyler Miller to discuss the legality of the appointment of an associate superintendent by the board.

At a late hour last night Board Chairman Barnard Joy said, during a lull in the conference at the Courthouse, that no statement would be made until today.

The board appointed Dr. Edward J. Braun, consultant to the board, as associate superintendent at its November 10 meeting. The appointment has been under fire since that date.

Old Age Finds Cheer in Youthful Company

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

WELCOME GUESTS—Children in the neighborhood of St. Anna's Episcopal Home, institution for Negro women, at 2224 N st. nw., often drop in to chat with the residents there and to bring them little gifts. Here Mrs. Eva Hood Watson, 83, admires a doll being shown her by Mary Joy, 4. Mary's sister, Antoinette, 8, offers her aged friend an apple. St. Anna's Home, like many other charitable agencies here, must put drastic economies in force and slash its worthy program to the bone if the current Community Chest campaign fails to reach its goal, which represents the absolute minimum of financial support they require

Drunk Driving Case Speedup Is Advocated

Committee Would End Medical Testimony On Alcohol Tests

The D. C. Traffic Court Conference Committee yesterday called for enactment of legislation which would speed up trials of persons charged with driving while intoxicated.

The legislation, drafted by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, eliminates testimony by physicians when evidence is introduced showing the individual charged had .15 of 1 per cent or more of alcohol in his blood following his arrest.

Although an alcohol content of .15 per cent is generally regarded as prima facie evidence of intoxication, present laws require medical testimony to supplement it. The committee yesterday voted that testimony by the chemist who made the tests is sufficient—that medical testimony is a waste of the physicians' time.

In backing West's bill for congressional approval, the committee went along with a provision in it whic hmakes alcohol content tests voluntary, rather than mandatory, with persons suspected of drunken driving.

The committee also decided to obtain "a full accounting" of all traffic tickets issued by police to determine if "fixing" of tickets can be tightened and if "loopholes" exist.

It also commended published weekly lists of traffic ticket adjustments. The Washington Post prints a ticket "fix" story weekly.

The Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board, Metropolitan Police Department and the Department of Vehicles and Traffic also drew praise for establishment of the traffic school for violators. A recommendation will be sent the Commissioners that the school, which expires January 9, be made permanent.

In other action, the committee, which met in Keneipp's office at the Municipal Building, voted:

1. That the Commissioners provide hearings be given persons before revocation or suspension of their driver's permits, rather than continuing the present system, which allows a "review" of the case after the revocation or suspension.

2. That the fourth annual D. C. Traffic Court Conference be held April 20, 1949, or during that week. Exact date and length of the conference will be set following conferences with judges and other officials.

6 Are Fined For Driving While Drunk

Six persons who pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence of intoxicants were each fined $50 yesterday by Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court.

Those fined included:

Clarence E. Blackwell, 40, official chauffeur for Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder. Blackwell was arrested in the Treasury limousine November 12 and charged with three counts of hit-and-run in sideswiping parked cars and a bus stop sign, as well as drunken-driving. The hit-and-run cases were nolle prossed after Blackwell pleaded guilty to the other charge.

Rex L. Saunders, 35, an upholsterer, 2111 18th st. nw., was arrested at 16th and Park rd. nw., on September 5.

Raymond T. Craun, 31, of 4257 Wilson blvd., Arlington, a construction worker, was arrested on September 22 at M and South Capitol sts.

Walter A. Dunnigan, jr., 27, of 2239 39th pl. nw., was charged October 26 after an accident in the 3000 block of 90th st. nw.

Robert J. Eisel, 27, of 100 19th st. se., a truck driver, was arrested after an accident November 15 at Bladensburg rd. and L sts. ne.

Mrs. Nettie F. B. Toye, 39, a restaurant operator of 1130 12th st. nw., was arrested November 5 after a collision at 2d st. and Maryland ave. sw.

Operators of 2 Clubs Pay $800 Liquor Fines

Operators of two night clubs in Prince Georges County, Md., yesterday pleaded guilty to charges of permitting sale of alcoholic beverages to minors and paid fines totaling $800 in Prince Georges Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro.

Connie B. Gay, well-known radio figure; Percy W. Carrick and Jane E. Trimmer, officers of the Club Hillbilly, Central ave. near Seat Pleasant, a corporation, were fined $150 for an incident October 2 and $450 for a second incident October 4 in which youths under 21 were sold beer.

Vernon D. Biedler, operator of the Campus Club, Marlboro Pike at Hillside, Md., paid a fine of $200 for a sale October 2.

The actual sales in both cases were made by bartenders or waitresses, but Judge Charles C. Marbury, who heard the cases, said the law makes the operator liable regardless of whether he is present or has any knowledge of the sale.

The tavern operators face additional hearings before the Prince Georges County Board of License Commissioners, which has the power to revoke or suspend their licenses following conviction of sales to minors. A hearing will be held sometime in January, board members said.

Grand Jury Indicts 3 in Yoke Death

Says Blunt Instrument Used to Kill Man, 55, In $10 Robbery

Three men were jointly indicted yesterday as thug-slayers of John H. Gant, a 55-year-old car cleaner, on September 15.

The District grand jury charged first-degree murder in the case, stating that Gant was slain with a "blunt instrument" when he was robbed of $10. Indicted for murder were Edward J. Blake, 21, of 611 2nd ave., Fairmont Hgts., Md.; John B. Greenleaf, 37, 701 60th pl., Fairmont Hgts., Md., and Leroy L. Smith, 25, of 7501 White House rd., Landover, Md.

The robbery-slaying occurred near an alley in the 6200 block of Dix st. ne., late at night.

Police, after the arrests, claimed that they had thus broken up a gang of yoke robbers who had terrorized the Dix st. neighborhood and fled into Maryland after their depredations.

Jared A. Patterson, 19, of 2916 16th st. ne., was charged with the housebreaking of the dwelling of Police Inspector Oscar J. Letterman, 2040 F st. nw. Patterson, who police said was arrested before he could steal from the dwelling told police that he was looking for "money for Christmas."

Charged with pandering was Aurelius Thorn, 22, a bellhop at the Harris Hotel. According to police, he arranged to get women for undercover agents for $10 each.

Hospital Prepares Burned Boy, 4, For Skin Grafting

At Casualty Hospital they removed well over half the dead tissue on his burns, which cover 70 per cent of his body. Wednesday they'll see if his body is ready to take the skin to be grafted from his father, Everett Rector of 613 Elliott st, ne.

Latest difficulty his doctor encountered was with the child's blood transfusions. Type A blood on hand proved incompatible with Michael's. They may decide today to give him Type O, with special solution to neutralize the agglutinins—the factor which causes blood to clot.

Michael was burned from chest to ankles 11 days ago by a match-started fire. He was not expected to live 24 hours.

Truman Calls For Simple, Inexpensive Inaugural

President Approves Plans for Reviewing Stands, Requests Low Prices on Tickets

President Truman yesterday approved plans for reviewing stands to be erected in front of the White House for the inaugural parade and asked that the ceremonies be kept as simple and inexpensive as possible.

The President gave his views to Melvin D. Hildreth, chairman of the Inaugural Committee, who brought sketches and diagrams to the White House.

Hildreth was accompanied by District Commissioners John Russell Young and Gordon R. Young; William Boyle, the committee's White House liaison man, and Branch D. Elam, Washington architect, who designed the stands.

The special stands from which President Truman and guests will review the four-hour Inauguration Day parade on January 20 will be erected along both sides of Pennsylvania ave. at the White House.

Hildreth told reporters after leaving the Executive Mansion that Mr. Truman wants it to be a "real democratic inaugural." Hildreth stressed that the President used the word "democratic" with the "small d" connotation.

Wants Ticket Prices Held Low

The chairman said Mr. Truman was especially interested in keeping the cost of grandstand seats and tickets to other inaugural festivities within the price range of all.

Reserved seats tentatively range from $2 to $10, but the cheaper seats have already been oversubscribed. More than $16,000 has already been received in advance deposits.

The final price for grandstand seats will be determined two weeks from now, a spokesman for the inaugural budget committee said yesterday after a meeting.

Elam, who designed the stands, was winner of a competition for the design conducted by the Metropolitan Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. A member of the architectural firm of Justement, Elam & Darby, Elam will receive a $100 prize.

Hildreth said the committee expects approximately 750,000 visitors to the Capital for the inaugural week which will begin January 16 with special religious services.

Officials to be With Truman

Mr. Truman and his family will occupy the center section with about 150 other persons including the Vice President, the Governors of the states, cabinet and White House officials and the diplomatic corps.

From two large supporting columns will fly the American and Presidential flags. The banners will flank a large presidential seal.

Four smaller stands, two on each side of the prime structure, will seat about 1400 persons, it was said, while a block-long stand will stretch across Pennsylvania ave. from Madison pl. to Jackson pl.

Hildreth said that in all, about 40,000 seats along the line of march will be available with "at least" 5000 seats in the $2 bracket. Final price of seats will depend on the bids received for the stand construction.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin announced yesterday the resignation of Representative Leslie C. Arends (R., Ill.), as a member of the Inaugural committee from the House. Representative Harry R. Sheppard (D., Calif.) was appointed in his place.

Martin said the change was made to give Democrats a majority on the committee.

'Locker-Bootlegger' Fined, Given Year

David Douglas Davenport, 32, admitted "locker-bootlegger" at Union Station, was sentenced yesterday to serve a year in jail and pay a $1000 fine for illegally keeping and selling whisky.

Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court set $500 bond for Davenport pending appeal, but late yesterday, the bootlegger remained in the lockup while his attorney sought a bondsman.

It was Davenport's 123d appearence in the court in little more then a year. He now has two other cases in appeal courts here, he said, and the total bond amounts to about $4000.

Metropolitan policemen, terminal guards and Army intelligence agents all testified Davenport sold them whisky at $5 a pint, hiding his wares in the station's luggage lockers and delivering the keys to his customers.

Defense Attorney Saul G. Lichtenberg urged a new trial, claiming Army men had been used as "stool pigeons" to trap Davenport. Lichtenberg also sought mercy for his client, claiming "Davenport has never added perjury to his other offenses."

Jailed for Carrying Gun

Willie Williams, 30, of 1376 F st. ne., was given six months in jail yesterday for carrying a .22-caliber pistol. Commented Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn in imposing sentence: "People are not going to carry loaded guns around town without a permit."

Pinned Under Bed

A 43-year-old woman was found unconscious yesterday, pinned under a Murphy bed in the living room of her apartment at 1349 Kenyon st. nw.

Mrs. Hettie Marie Smith, who was found by her sister, Mrs. Anne Towson, 2773 Woodley rd. nw., and a son-in-law, Paul Bright, 303 Shirley st., Falls Church, Va., was admitted to Garfield Hospital. Officials reported she suffered head bruises and listed her condition as undetermined.

Bright told reporters his mother-in-law was found in the apartment after attempts to reach her by telephone had failed. He said Mrs. Smith had recently completed a series of major operations and was too weak to free herself.

Assault Fine Appealed

The upshot was that John Gerrity, senior editor of Pathfinder magazine, appealed a $25 fine on assault and battery charges growing out of a quarrel with Gus E. Elefteris, a cab driver of 636 F st. ne.

Gerrity, who lives at 8516 Park Hill dr., Locust Hills, Bethesda, testified that Elefteris objected to bringing him out to his home from downtown Washington. The argument occurred after Gerrity paid Elefteris $2.75 for the ride, including a 25-cent tip. Gerrity denied on the stand that he struck Elefteris.

The appeal will be heard in the Montgomery County Circuit Court. Attorney Joseph M. Mathias represented Gerrity.

The Teachers Voice

Prince Georges County teachers now have their own publication, The Teachers Voice, published quarterly for members of the teaching staff of the county.

The four-page tabloid contains articles by the teachers on school problems and professional training aids, as well as personal items. Miss Eleanor Moore, physical education teacher at Oxon Hill High School, is editor.

The first issue is in themails today.

Group to Discuss Zoning

A proposed zoning amendment to permit additional exceptions in residential areas will be discussed by the Woodside Civic Association Wednesday at 8 p. m. in Grace Church Hall, Georgia ave., Silver Spring.

The exceptions concern locating of private schools, greenhouses, kennels, tea houses, stables and the like in residential sections, according to Charles Weigel, president of the group.

Rainfall Floods School

About 130 students at Arlington's James Monroe School got an unexpected holiday from classes yesterday when school officials found four basement classrooms flooded by Sunday's heavy rainfall.

Assistant School Superintendent Charles Walsh said roughly 2 inches of water was found on the basement floor when the school opened yesterday morning. Probable cause, he said, was a defective downspout.

Children in the third, fourth and fifth grades who use the four rooms will get another day's furlough today, Walsh said, until the rooms can be thoroughly dried out.

Trainman Falls Off Car

Henry F. Boley, 48, of 2328 2d st. ne., a car inspector at Potomac Yards in Alexandria, suffered cuts, bruises and muscular strain early yesterday when he fell from a box car in the yards. His condition was reported good at Alexandria Hospital where he was admitted for observation.

Bridge Event Slated

The Connecticut Avenue Bridge Club, 2605 Connecticut ave. nw., will conduct a duplicate contract bridge game for beginners and intermediates at 7:45 p. m. today. A party bridge game will be conducted Wednesday, same time and place.

Max Lehrman, Grocery Chain Official, Dies

Max Lehrman, 46, treasurer of the Giant Food Shopping Center, Inc., here, died early yesterday in Harrisburg, Pa., after a long illness.

Mr. Lehrman

He was a son of Samuel Lehrman, president and cofounder of the Giant concern, and a brother of Jac J. Lehrman, secretary of the firm. Both live at 2839 Chesterfield pl. nw. Although he made his home in Harrisburg, Mr. Lehrman was a frequent visitor to Washington.

Born in Harrisburg, he attended public schools there and after graduating from the Harrisburg High School, went into the grocery business with his father, who also is president of the Harrisburg Grocery Co. He continued in association with his father when the Giant firm was established here in 1936 as one of the pioneer self-service grocery chains in the Washington area.

At the time of his death, he also was treasurer of the Harrisburg company, of which his brother, Jac, serves as secretary.

Survivors, besides his father and brother here, include his stepmother, Mrs. Bessie Lehrman of the Chesterfield pl. address; his wife, Mrs. Gladys Lehrman of Harrisburg; a daughter by a former marriage, Audrey Lehrman of Hazelton, Pa.; another brother, Albert Lehrman of Harrisburg, and three sisters, Mrs. Ivy Friedman, 1660 Lanier pl. nw.; Mrs. Ethel Barash of New York City, and Mrs. Anne Katzman of Harrisburg.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at Kesher Israel Congregation Cemetery in Harrisburg, with Rabbi David L. Silver officiating.

CARE to Get 10 Pct. of Benefit Ball Receipts

Officials of the food relief organization, CARE, said yesterday they were to receive 10 per cent of net proceeds from the United Nations Club's benefit ball and pageant to be given Friday night at the Statler Hotel.

They first learned of the benefit through the newspapers, CARE officials said, but were later personally informed by Mrs. Richard F. Harless, the former Miss Meredith Howard, who is president of the United Nations Club and general chairman of the ball.

Mrs. Harless said she discussed CARE'S participation in the benefit with its New York office and had been assured no other authority was needed. Only recently, she said, was she referred to the Washington office.

The remaining 90 per cent of the net proceeds of the ball, Mrs. Harless said, will be used to promote the activities of the United Nations Club.

Pace Would Hold Peanut Acreage Cut to 10 Pct.

A request that peanut acreage next year be cut no more than 10 per cent was presented today to Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan by Representative Pace (D., Ga.).

Pace said after a conference with Brannan that department officials had suggested a cut of "as much as 35 per cent."

"A 35 per cent cut in one year," Pace said, "would seriously endanger the economy of the peanut-producing areas. It would not give the peanut producers an opportunity to divert the acreage taken out to other crops."

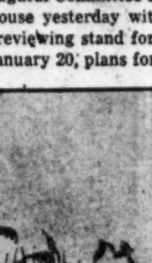
Ivan Dalstrom Dies; 23 Years On Fire Dept.

Ivan J. Dalstrom, 48, superintendent of machinery for the District Fire Department, died yesterday at the Washington Sanitarium, where he had been a patient since Sunday morning.



Mr. Dalstrom

Mr. Dalstrom, who had been on sick leave since November 22, lived at 5317 Greenway dr., Springbrook ter., Hyattsville Md. He was appointed to the Fire Department as a private on January 2, 1925, and became superintendent of machinery on August 1, 1947. He was also chairman of the Fire Department accident investigating board.

Only 11 days after he first joined the Fire Department, on January 13, 1925, his outstanding work at a fire in Kann's department store warehouse won him the commendation of the District Commissioners.

Born in Kendallville, Iowa, on December 25, 1899, Mr. Dalstrom attended automotive schools in St. Louis and Austin, Minn. He enlisted in the Army, and served a year as an aircraft mechanic in Texas during World War I.

He then enlisted in the Navy, serving almost four years, also as an aircraft mechanic.

Mr. Dalstrom was designated second assistant superintendent of machinery for the Fire Department in May, 1929, and was promoted to assistant superintendent in December, 1931.

As superintendent for the past 16 months, he was the chief engineering assistant to Chief Clement J. Murphy. He had charge of the fire apparatus and all tools and equipment, from specifications for its purchase to testing, repair, maintenance and instruction for its use.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Harriett Edna Dalstrom; a brother, Elmer L. Dalstrom, 5314 R st., Coral Hills, Md., a detective sergeant in the Police Department, and a half brother, Rudolph Eggen of McDonough, N. Y.

Bruce Haldeman, Courier-Journal Ex-Official, Dies

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 29 (AP).—Bruce Haldeman, 87, former president of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, died today at his home in Glenview, Ky., after a brief illness.

Haldeman was born in Knoxville Tenn. He was the son of the late Walter N. Haldeman, who founded the Daily Courier before the Civil War, and was forced to leave Louisville because of his strong Southern sympathies.

Haldeman started his career in 1885 as a reporter for the Louisville Courier-Journal, formed in 1868 after his family's return to Louisville. In succeeding years he served as city editor, night editor, Sunday editor and managing editor.

Haldeman became president of the Courier-Journal Co. following the death of his father in 1902. He remained head of the firm until 1918 when the papers were bought by the late Robert Worth Bingham.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Annie F. Milton Haldeman, three daughters and one son.

William Allen Dies on Train En Route Here

William Allen, 74, of 120 C st. ne., Washington manager for the Mississippi Valley Association, 345 Munsey Building, died Sunday night on a train while returning home from New Orleans.

Mr. Allen's body was in an undertaker's establishment in Sardis, Miss., last night awaiting completion of funeral arrangements. His wife, Demma, said at their home here her husband had not been in robust health, and apparently died following a heart attack. He had been in New Orleans on business for the MVA.

Mr. Allen, a native of Missouri, had been with the valley organization more than 15 years. Before that he was with the United States Lines in Chicago.

Besides his wife, Mr. Allen leaves two daughters, Mrs. William Goldberg of New York City and Mrs. Blase Sibella of Montana.

Sewing Machines Are Lost and Found

A $30,000 truckload or sewing machines provided plenty of consternation yesterday after disappearing in Washington at 1 a. m. and turning up 12 hours later 115 miles away near Upright, Essex County, Va.

E. B. Henry, manager for W. T. Cowan, transportation, 2001 Fairview ave. ne., reported to police a big tractor trailer truck loaded with 156 new Singer sewing machines, consigned to a store in Arlington from a plant in New Jersey, was taken from the Cowan parking lot. Police broadcast a lookout.

About 1 p. m. Henry reported he had received a telephone call from one of his employes, saying he was mired in the mud with the truck near Upright. Henry then explained he had given the man permission to borrow a smaller truck to move some furniture, but could not understand what the man was doing with the big truck. A tow-truck was hurriedly dispatched after the sewing machines.

In the meantime, the Federal Bureau of Investigation had been asked to investigate the unauthorized moving of the truck over State lines. No one, it seemed, was sure exactly why it all happened.

A 300-pound safe containing $1500 in cash was stolen from J. O. Hartman, meats, 413 Morse st. ne., sometime Sunday night, Hartman's son, Milton, reported to police yesterday. Glass in a rear door had been broken and the safe wheeled out to a truck. Hartman said $400 of the money came from sale of tickets for an East Gate Lions Club benefit, and $100 belonged to the Academy of the Holy Name.

Surgical instruments and hospital equipment valued at $4000, stolen from an automobile parked at the Wardman Park Hotel early Saturday, were found yesterday in the duck pond near the Park rd. entrance to Soldiers Home.

A guard on patrol noticed papers floating on the surface. Investigation showed, at the bottom of the 6-foot pond, models of a fracture orthopedic and X-ray table, a fracture frame for a bed, a collapsible bed and mattress and other salesman's samples stolen from Zack Rogers.

Rogers, who lives at the Wardman Park, is Eastern sales manager for Gilbert Hyde Chick Co., Berkeley, Calif. The thief, who had forced a ventilator window in his car and carried away the travel cases, apparently decided the equipment would be too difficult to sell without revealing it had been stolen. The pond was being drained yesterday.

Rogers said that 250 checks with his name printed on them, and numerous canceled checks bearing his signature are still missing, and the thief may try to forge his name and cash some of the checks, which are on a Berkeley bank.

Thieves stole 12 lamps and a chair, with a total value of $225, over the weekend from the Albert Manlon Co., office equipment, 1742 K st. nw., after breaking a window, police were informed.

'Buyer' Takes Camera At Point of Pistol

Mrs. Robert J. Green, 24, of 1622 Q st. se., advertised a camera for sale in a newspaper.

A prospective buyer kept a taxi waiting while he talked about cameras for a few minutes and infant Martha Ann played with one of his gloves.

Then the visitor arose, produced a blue steel automatic and told Mrs. Green to "sit on the couch." He would take the camera with him, he said, adding that he didn't want to hurt her or the baby.

The robber was described by Mrs. Green as a gray-eyed, dark-haired white man, about 26 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing 145 pounds. He was dressed in a brown suit, maroon sweater and grayish overcoat.

Hearing Is Waived On Robbery Charge

Pvt. John C. McCabe, 18, a soldier stationed at Fort Myer, yesterday waived preliminary hearing in Bethesda Police Court on charges of robbing and severely beating a cab driver and was ordered held for the grand jury.

Another soldier, Pvt. Michael C. Burchio, 19, also of Fort Myer, will face similar hearing Friday on charges growing out of the same incident. A third man has not been apprehended.

The victim was Louis F. Grasso, 29, of 1274 Meigs pl. ne., who was treated at Suburban Hospital after the incident last July 30 for a fractured skull and fractured ribs.

Grocer Is Threatened By Orange-Lifter

The 48-year-old owner of a grocery yesterday was struck on the head and threatened with a knife by a man who attempted to take some oranges without paying, police reported.

Dorfman

Louis Dorfman, whose store is at 601 2d st. sw., said he was waiting on another customer about 11 a. m., when the man took the oranges from the counter and started to leave.

Dorfman said the man drew a knife and threatened to kill him and take his money. The man then struck him on the back of the head and fled, he said.

Dorfman's quick call to police brought a Fourth Precinct scout car, and the two officers picked up the man several blocks from Dorfman's store. Identified as William H. Howard, 27, of 433 Delaware ave. sw., he was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and robbery.

Forum Will Discuss Elementary Schools

Arlington's School Board will sponsor a forum on what constitutes a good elementary school at 8 p. m. today at Stonewall Jackson School, 855 N. Edison st.

The board now is buying elementary school sites and drawing up new school plans, using funds from a recent $1,776,000 bond issue.

Speakers tonight will be Donald Patterson and Dr. Mary D. Davis, both of the elementary school division of the United States Office of Education.

At Prince Georges Real Estate Board Dinner

The Washington Post

REALTORS NOW—Holding the Prince Georges County Real Estate Board's certificate of membership in the National Association of Real Estate Boards are (from left) Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.), T. Raymond Burch, president of the county organization, and Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland. Presentation took place at the Prince Georges County board's annual fall dinner last night

Federal rent control was termed "the underlying cause of the current housing shortage" last night by Calvin K. Snyder, secretary of the Realtors' Washington Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Speaking at the annual fall dinner of the Prince Georges County Real Estate Board at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, Snyder described rent control as "a glaring abuse of and threat to property rights."

He charged the current control program eventually will lead to "a destruction of property rights, followed shortly by the elimination of human rights."

Snyder's attack on the Federal program came after he had presented the Prince Georges Board a certificate of membership in the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The presentation was the high spot of the dinner meeting, attended by more than 200 real estate board members and guests, including most of the county's official and civic leaders.

The Prince Georges group's affiliation with the national organizaton means that all Prince Georges members may be called "realtors" instead of real estate brokers or agents.

Other speakers at the dinner were Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer and Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, both of whom congratulated the Prince Georges board on the progress which enabled it to qualify for membership in the national group.

'Home Rule' Called Wide U. S. Problem

This point was made by Carl H. Chatters, executive director of the American Municipal Association which will meet here December 12 to 15 to consider problems now facing American cities.

However, "home rule" in the AMA lexicon does not mean the right of citizens to vote for their city officials. Other cities already have that right. It means, according to a statement by the AMA executive board released yesterday, the right of "the people of an incorporated city to handle their own municipal affairs," free from arbitrary restrictions by State authority.

Municipal home rule is important, Chatters explained at a Statler Hotel press conference, because it is tied in with the money problem. This problem, the finding of ways and means to finance city projects, "overshadows everything else" in municipal affairs, he said.

Chatters explained that the absence of home rule in most States prevents cities from working out their own salvation. To remedy this situation, he told the news conference, the AMA's executive board has approved a program which declares in part:

"Municipalities should be permitted by statute to widen their tax base.

"Sources of revenue should be allocated among the Federal, State and local governments in such a way that unreasonable duplication is eliminated."

Chatters indicated he thought borrowing was an appropriate way to finance a 38-million-dollar school building program for Washington just sent to Congress.

"Obviously, it would be unwise to attempt to finance a 38-million-dollar program from a 100-million-dollar budget," he said. "The public would not stand for it."

He did not comment on specific phases of the plan submitted by Dr. George D. Strayer.

LOOK OUT FOR PIN-WORMS

Recent medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children, (and grown-ups too) may be victims of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting what is wrong! And these pests, living inside the human body, can cause real distress.

So watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms—especially the aggravating rectal itch. Get JAYNE'S P-W and follow the directions.

P-W is the Pin-Worm treatment developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, after years of patient research. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms.

Ask your druggist: P-W for Pin-Worms!

Fitting by Fancy Salves Vanity But Sacrifices Your Poor Feet

By Ida Jean Kain

THE average woman's weakest spot is her feet . . . and authorities imply it's often due to vanity. Women buy shoes to fit their fancy —not their feet.

A common mistake is to go into a shoe store and buy shoes without having both feet measured. It's not at all unusual for one foot to be slightly larger than the other, in which case the larger foot must be fitted. Another foot troublemaker is to insist blithely on, say, a size 5 triple A—measurements to the contrary. Because a size was once a perfect fit is no guarantee it always will be. Poorly fitted shoes cause untold—and unnecessary—harm and discomfort.

Too short stockings are almost as bad as too short shoes. Stockings must be one half inch longer than toes when standing, otherwise they restrict and cramp the foot.

Planned exercise is highly important to foot health, too. The bony structure of the foot is made up of two arches—the longitudinal arch which runs the length of the foot, and the metatarsal arch which extends under the bones of the soles of the foot. Muscles and ligaments help support the foot in proper position. The entire structure is often weakened or strained through abuse.

A corrective exercise for strengthening the arches—particularly the longitudinal arch—is to rise on the balls of the feet and, holding onto something to maintain balance, do a partial deep-knee bend. Up and down again, and again. The bend need not be deep . . . the value is in exercising on the balls of the feet with the weight of the body on the arches. Holding onto something for balance makes this a double-duty exercise —the bend can be made with back straight, abdominal muscles up and in, pelvic girdle pulled into line.

Of course, the best foot exercise is correct walking—heel placed down squarely, weight shifted down the foot more toward the outer than the inner border, toes gripping and shoving off.

For feet that are weary from prolonged standing—which incidentally is much harder on feet than walking—a circulation stimulator is helpful. One plan is to splash hot and cold water over feet and legs. Sitting on the edge of the bathtub, let the waetr flow at full force, alternating hot and cold, finishing with cold, and rubbing briskly with a rough towel.

Young Man, 23, Poor But Ambitious, With His Own Way to Make, Thinks Twice About Marrying Girl Who Is Disrespectful to Her Good Father

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man, 23, a poor boy, still in college, and I will have to work my way to the top when I finish school. So the right choice of wife is something to think about.

Recently I have given some thought to marrying Jennie, who is 22; but there is one thing about her that bothers me, namely, her disrespectful treatment of her father. He is an elderly man, a leader in his community and people go to him for all kinds of advice.

He provides his wife and daughter with a nice home, a smart car, good clothes and other things that any girl would be delighted to have; but Jennie isn't content with that. She wants to come and go, and do as she pleases, without regard for her father's wishes.

Says Girl's Mother Is Foul-Mouthed, Too

SHE THINKS she shouldn't be corrected by her father in anything, and when she cannot have her way, she is very disagreeable to him and also says disrespectful things about him, that I don't think should be said of anyone's parents. I think her mother is back of it all, for she, too, wants her way in everything, and speaks slightingly of her husband, even to virtual strangers, in language that shouldn't foul a woman's mouth.

I want a wife who will be a good mother and teach our children respect for parents; but can Jennie fill this bill? She can be very nice when things are going to suit her, but if our life didn't always run smoothly, would I be cursed and scorned in later years, as her father is? Should I forget Jennie and find another that I don't feel doubtful about? Please advise me. A. C.

Emotional Quirks Are Contagious

DEAR A. C.: Scripture says that the sins of the fathers (meaning parents) are visited upon children unto the second and third generations; and the findings of modern psychiatry attest to the literal truth of this pronouncement.

In the field of character formation, no single factor is more dynamic, none has more influential far-reaching results, than a child's "reservoir" of blind feelings and emotional reflexes towards his parents, but especially towards the parent of opposite sex; and psychiatry uncovers the fact that parents themselves are prime instigators of what the child feels in that respect.

It isn't the parents' "reasoned attempts" to guide or mold a child which dynamically affect his emotional patterns. Rather, he reacts involuntarily, beginning at birth, to what he feels to be the inside story of emotional influences surrounding him. And because of an infant's dependency upon the mother, insecurity tensions in family relationship cause him to cling tenaciously to her, reflecting her attitudes chameleon-like, in the early years of life when emotional habits are being formed.

Man-Hating Bias Animates Mother

HENCE the paramount importance, to a child's fortunate character development, of a good interpersonal relationship between his parents. If their dealings are animated by sympathetic mutual helpfulness, by self-restraint and generosity in composing differences, the child will automatically imbibe two life-lasting benefits.

Firstly, he will "identify" himself with the parent of his own sex, and nourish self-respect by behaving in letter and spirit more or less as this parent behaves. Secondly, he will confidently "accept" the other parent as a trustworthy, loveworthy representative of the opposite sex and thus be fortified, unconsciously, to deal surely and selectively with all manner of folk, in a spirit free of hostile complexes.

As for Jennie, it appears that she has "identified" herself with an infantile neurotic man-hating mother, who "feels" that men are enemies to be exploited and scorned; and if the father is a fine man, it may be that Jennie's mother acquired her bias from maternal sources, or perhaps her father was an intolerable tyrant whose indirect influence warped her nature. In any event, my advice is to give Jennie a wide berth, in your quest for a wholesome helpmeet. M. H.

'Mischief' Often Child's Way Of Gaining Parental Attention

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is satisfying to every individual to have a distinctive personality. No one wants to be a nonentity. Children early show this disposition to act in ways which bring them notoriety and publicity.

Being good is too often a barren pastime, while being naughty provides excitement, inspires parental notice and gives them the personality of "mischievous."

Mrs. M. writes, "My 5-year-old grandson is a healthy, ambitious child and very smart for his age. But you just can't teach him obedience. We have tried every punishment, we have showered him with affection, but he is often sassy and willful.

"If he takes a notion, he will not come home after school until it is dark and when he is reprimanded he says, 'The dogs made him go out of the way.' He promises to come home the next day but never quite makes it.

"Once he took money lying on a table and said he found it. What a little mischief he is. He has a brother 15 months older who is just the opposite, almost too timid. But you never know what to expect of this one.

"He has a nice home, good parents and while he was not a 'wanted' baby he has been loved as much as the older boy since he was born."

Naturally, he has to be different from his brother, who, no doubt, is held up as a model. Children resent this and go to any lengths to be different.

At 5 he is not temptation-proof and money should not be left lying around. He should have his own money for his own needs.

His mother should meet him at school and walk home with him, explaining that when he is old enough to come home and report first, before going visiting, she will not have to do this.

Try praising him for everything good and right he does and being blind as is possible to his obvious misbehavior. No one expects perfect obedience of a child but it is a mistake to make his misconduct the most important facet of his personality.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

An Adjustable Meal

Most parents like the idea of the family sitting down together at meals. Now and then it may be desirable to make an exception. An adjustable meal Saturday noon, for instance, is much more likely to meet family needs.

Johnny is attending a Scout troop meeting and may be late.

Dad would like to have something to eat a little early, for he has plans for bowling or golf. Mary Ann doesn't want to eat too much since she and the girls are having a party in the early afternoon and there is the promise of lots of "eats."

Whether this is the picture or not, many families have found that to have soup on the stove or hot chocolate, some cold food, tasty leftovers, a simple salad, makes it easy for each member of the family to get his own lunch at the time most convenient for him.

Finger Marks

A few drops of ammonia will remove finger marks from mirrors, windows, locks and latches without having to clean the entire surface. Use on a soft cloth. This is a great help in the family of several children as then little fingerprints are apt to be found everywhere.

Well-Written Books

Well prepared books and pamphlets should supplement father's talk to his son on the subject of the maturing of the child's body. Then after the talk, the boy can read the books and ask further questions that will make life natural to him and not a mystery that could be readily misunderstood.

Yugoslav Reception Draws 1,000

By Elizabeth Maguire

OVER a thousand guests attended the reception held yesterday at the Embassy of Yugoslavia. At times it was impossible to move an inch in 5 minutes, so crowded were the drawing rooms and hallway. Members of diplomatic and residential society attended as well as hundreds of others.

"There were 1200 acceptances," remarked Mme. Mica Trbojevic, who received with the Ambassador. "And of course they brought friends with them," she added. "That's good," laughed the Ambassador, Sava N. Kosanovic. The two received their guests standing at the head of the staircase. Bars were set up in the living room and hallway, and in the dining room a buffet centered with red roses offered various hors d'oeuvres and delicacies.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of France, Henri Bonnet; Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador; the Ambassador of Australia, Norman Makin the Ambassador of New Zealand and Lady Berendsen; the Ambassador of Egypt, Mohamed Kamil Abdul Rahim; the Ambassador of Pakistan, M. A. H. Ispahani; the Canadian Ambassador, Hume Wrong; the Ambassador of Czechoslovakia, Vladimir Outrata; the Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau, the Ambassador of Norway, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne; the Ambassador of Poland and Mme. Winiewicz, the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais, and the Minister of Liberia and Mrs. King.

Still others included Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, the French Minister and Mme. Berard, Admiral and Mrs. Emory Scott Land, Mr. and Mrs. Rene Lehmann, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. J. J. Mack, Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward, Mrs. Eldon P. King, Mme. Jean Pierre-Gabriel, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Benjamin Hill, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Mrs. McCeney Werlich and her son, Robert Werlich, Gen. and Mrs. John Greeley, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mr. and Mrs. Effingham Townsend, Miss Emily Davis and Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould.

"See that mass of humanity," remarked one guest looking down the hallway into the dining room, "all looking for food." As usual, at a large function, the dining room was the most crowded place. Everyone was well cared for, however, as platters were constantly replenished.

Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris were at the party with their new daughter-in-law, Mrs. Norris, jr., who looks like the pretty Norris girls, Marian and Laura Mae. Miss Marian Norris was there squired by John Merkel. Another guest was Mme. Vladimir Rybar, widow of the former Yugoslavian Ambassador to Norway. She was accompanied by Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Robert Geauque and Mrs. Rose Saltsman.

In November Bridal Procession

The marriage of Miss Regina Singer, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Singer, to Reuben K. Greenspon, son of Mrs. Fannie Greenspoon of Flushing, N. Y., took place on November 28 at the Hamilton Hotel, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld officiating.

Gowned in a royal blue dress with blue hat and orchid corsage, the bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Harry Bloom. Mrs. Sam Rogers was matron of honor and Daniel Platt was best man. A reception followed. The couple will be at home in Washington.

Ricks—Gibson

Miss Helen V. Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Gibson of Elsberry, Mo., was married on November 28 at Wesley Methodist Church to Nathan A. Ricks, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ricks of Winfield, Mo. The Rev. J. Stanley Lowell officiated.

The bride was costumed in a spice brown satin suit with matching accessories. She carried a brown orchid surrounded with yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. George F. Tudor was the bride's only attendant. Orval Ricks was his brother's best man and the ushers included Robert O. Smith and Cyrus G. Finley.

Following their honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains, the newlyweds will be at home in Winfield. Mrs. Ricks attended Eureka College, Eureka, Ill., and has been a member of Beta Sigma Phi sorority. For the past several years she was employed in Washington by the Civil Service Commission. Her husband is an Army veteran and an alumnus of Missouri University.

Describes Campaign Technique

Housewives Ask Price Control, Housing Program, Club Told

The American housewife favors legislation to hold prices in line, a low-cost housing program and an adequate rent control program, Mrs. Paul S. Roller said yesterday. Mrs. Roller, who spoke at the Woman's National Democratic Club membership luncheeon, said the housewife also seeks increased social security, Federal aid to education, repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and an improved program for farmers.

Mrs. Roller said that President Truman would probably get a workable anti-inflation program from the Eighty-first Congress. Since the new Eighty-first Congress would need continued support from the people back home, Mrs. Roller suggested that women study legislation as it came up in Congress and let their Congressmen know that they supported the progressive measures called for in the Democratic platform.

Mrs. Roller described the "Housewives for Truman" program in operation before the campaign. This project dramatized the issue of prices by use of a caravan, consisting of trailers and automobiles manned by housewives, stopping in the main streets of towns and cities; the housewives talked about high prices, blamed the Eightieth Congress, and urged women to vote the straight Democratic ticket.

As a sample of the technique used, Mrs. Roller showed club members garments bought in a local department store, and contrasted the 1948 prices with the 1946 prices given to her by the store. For example, a pair of children's oxfords were $5 in 1946, $6.95 today, a 39 per cent increase; a child's cotton slip, 98 cents in 1946, $1.39 today, a 42 per cent increase; a pair of men's work shoes, $3.95 in 1946, $5.95 today, a 56 per cent increase.

Mrs. Roller emphasized that the 1946 prices were those of a Democratic Congress and a Democratic President, while today's prices were those of a Republican Congress. She said that although the increases in articles might be pennies, it would take a worker who was making $4000 in 1946 $5000 to take care of that kind of an increase. And, she added, all workers' salaries have not increased that much.

China's Special Pleader

Washington Remembers Mme. Chiang for Charm, Brains—and Silken Sheets

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

FOR CHINA'S sake let's hope when Mme. Chiang Kai-shek arrives to explain her husband's desperate need for assistance, she'll be smarter than on previous visits, cut out some of the luxurious folderol which, leaking out, made a sour impression on our almost maudlinly sympathetic American public.

Here's what Henrietta Nesbitt, the Franklin Delano Roosevelt's housekeeper, says about Madame Chiang in her recently published "White House Diary."

"She stayed 10 days—but I never saw her close. She wasn't democratic like Queen Wilhelmina or Mrs. Churchill . . . She wasn't well and spent a lot of time in bed, and every time she got out, even for a short time, both sheets, the two pillow slips, and the blanket spread, silk with lace insertings and lace edges, had to be changed fresh. Even the sheets were soft, and she'd brought them with her. The fresh spread had to be sewn back on, so no touch of blanket could harm Madame Chiang, as it seemed she was allergic to wool.

"I couldn't help wondering how she managed, as a girl in that Wesleyan Methodist School in the South, or while she was campaigning with the general in China. I forget how much it cost to clean the sheets and spreads, but it was very fussy and expensive, her getting in and out. . . . Two nurses sat on duty in the room next to Madame Chiang's night and day, and I set Maggie to wait on the nurses . . ."

Charming Portrait

IN NEW YORK during her visit almost a decade ago, a youngish, definitely naive female reporter was assigned to interview Madame Chiang. After considerable wait in a hotel sitting room, the sob sister was admitted to The Presence. Madame Chiang did not shake hands—she met too many people, her handshake was reserved for top echelons only.

Inserted in a silk covered bed, the charming lady talked graphically of her starving China. During the brief conversation a trained nurse fluttered, from time to time offering a sustaining cup of consomme. The reporter, terribly impressed, wrote the story straight—describing in detail the satin dressing gown, silk covers, nurses —and sandwiching in starving China rather casually.

The story was set up but just in time "pulled." Later treated as a classic, it was passed about editor-hosted dinner parties, received many a refined Bronx cheer.

Remark to Remember

AFTER MADAME CHIANG'S superb speech to the Senate, President Roosevelt congratulated her, commenting on his amazement at hearing such mastery of a subject, such distinguished language spoken by so femininely small and pretty a woman. Madame replied crisply, "Brains have no sex!"

Not a bad remark for Madame Chiang to remember. Around Washington, guessing is fifty-fifty that old China hand, William Christian Bullitt, now Luce-ing in the Far East, impresarioed Madame Chiang's trip!

Royal Romances

UPPER MOSLEM CIRCLES have been in a tizzy since the King of Egypt divorced his beautiful Queen. Moslems have the right to marry a number of wives and heretofore in cases of royal incompatibility Egyptian rulers have merely set up first wives in another palace, and quite legally, taken on a substitute without divorce. So no one knows what is really behind King Farouk's action.

However, the lady he has admired for some time is the beautiful Princess Fatma Toussoun, sister-in-law of Washington's handsome Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, the former Princess Amina Toussoun.

Princess Fatma is the widow of Prince Hassan who was killed in an accident several years ago. She has a small daughter, aged 5 or 6, and inherited a cozy income from her husband which runs to about a hundred thousand pounds (some $400,000) annually—so King or no King, Princess Fatma is fixed as nicely as any pretty woman could desire.

The former Queen has been living in a separate palace these past four years and except for money given her by King Farouk, is without fortune.

Group Makes Inaugural Plans

The Hospitality and Housing Committee of the Inaugural Committee outlined plans yesterday for welcoming three quarters of a million visitors during inauguration weekend.

With hotels almost completely reserved, the people of Washington and the 50-mile radius around the city which is considered within driving distance, will be asked to open their homes. Even rooms without beds will be considered by the committee which will try to provide cots. Dormitory-type accomodations also will be welcome since there will be groups of college students attending what Melvin Hildreth, chairman of the Inauguration Committee, calls "the greatest spectacle ever held in Washington."

Mrs. Ernest Lindley, chairman of the hospitality and Housing Committee, said a Housing Bureau will be set up on the second floor over Whelan's Drugstore at 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. Rooms to be made available to visitors may be registered there when the bureau opens later this week.

A branch of this bureau will be set up in Union Station shortly before the inauguration, to help travelers find lodging.

The committee will handle no money and will be unable to set ceiling prices on the accommodations, but every room listed with them will have been inspected before it is offered to visitors, said Mrs. Lindley.

On Friday, January 21, which has been designated as Hospitality Day, teas will be given at embassies and legations and other places of interest around town. Museums will be kept open at night, tours of Government buildings will be arranged and special opportunities for children to enjoy Washington will be provided.

Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, heads the subcommittee in charge of children's activities. Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of Supreme Court Justice Douglas, will be in charge of hospitality subcommittee, with Mrs. Richard Harless, wife of Representative Harless, assisting her.

The Housing Subcommittee, which will meet Thursday at 10 a. m. in the Tariff Commission Building, where yesterday's meeting was also held, is under the direction of Mrs. John McClintock.

Other members of the Hospitality and Housing Committee include: Judge Marion Harron, Mrs. James Bennett, Mrs. Wayne Coy and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg. Further information on the committee's activities is available at the committee's headquarters in the Tariff Building, or by calling ST. 1555, ext. 3420.

Maraschino Coconut Cake

½ cup shortening	1 cup maraschino cherry juice and water, mixed
1½ cups sugar	½ cup coconut
3 cups sifted cake flour	½ cup chopped nuts
3 tsp. Double Acting Rumford Baking Powder	18 maraschino cherries, cut fine
¼ tsp. salt	4 egg whites

Cream shortening, gradually add 1 cup sugar, creaming until fluffy. Sift 2½ cups flour, Rumford Baking Powder (no alum) and salt together; add alternately with cherry juice. Rumford means easier, quicker beating batter . . . cake that stays fresh longer. Mix coconut, nuts and cherries with ½ cup flour, fold into batter. Add ½ cup sugar to stiffly beaten egg whites, fold into batter. Pour into two greased 8-inch layer pans; bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) for 25 minutes. Ice with 7-minute frosting colored with 1 tsp. maraschino cherry juice.

How to Make a Coffee Cream Pie

HERE'S an easy-to-fix coffee cream pie, made with vanilla pudding and instant coffee. Exact directions follow:

COFFEE CREAM PIE

1 baked 8-inch pie shell
1 package prepared vanilla pudding
2½ to 3 teaspoons instant coffee
1½ cups cream, whipped
¼ cup chopped nut meats

Combine pudding powder and instant coffee in small saucepan. Add milk and cook as directed on pudding package. Cool. Fold in whipped cream. Fill pie shell and chill. Sprinkle with chopped nut meats or decorate with whipped cream.

Could you advise me concerning the purchase of cocktail utensils? I have finally arranged to buy some good kitchen ware and would like to be reasonably sure I will have a good-looking, durable, and, especially, "cookable" ware. Would you have any particular vote for either aluminum or stainless steel? M. S.

I do not recommend specific kinds of utensils, but the following are some of the factors which should be kept in mind when selecting cooking utensils:

(1) Buy pans which have flat bottoms, completely covering the heating unit, thus using all of the available heat.

(2) Be sure the handles on the pans are heat resistent, securely fastened so they cannot loosen and twist, and correctly balanced so that, when empty or partially filled, the weight of the handle doesn't tip the pan. Also, choose handles which are easy and comfortable to grasp.

(3) The pan should be made of a material which is heavy enough to hold heat and absorb the heat evenly, thus preventing scorching.

I plan on having approximately 30 guests in during the holidays for an eggnog party and would appreciate knowing what to serve with the eggnog. I've considered the sandwich-type canape (say, tuna, chopped egg, creamed cheese, etc.) and a baked ham with bread and butter sandwiches. I wonder if you could offer any further suggestions and/or comment on those ideas? R. N.

Your idea of using canape-type sandwiches with eggnog is fine, for many people enjoy a nonsweet, salty type of sandwich with it. The ham could either be served as you suggest or in tiny, already made, sandwiches to avoid confusion. Fruit cake is traditionally served with eggnog and would be a nice addition to the sandwiches. Salted nuts would also be good.

Can you suggest some method of removing the musty taste from maple sirup? I sealed it in jars but there was some mold on it when it was opened. J. M. B.

Bringing the sirup to a boil and allowing it to boil for a minute or so should remove the musty taste.

We are almost ready to move in our new home, but are puzzled about this: Would it be all right to use a venetian blind on our large picture window and not elsewhere in the house? E. L. B.

To give a more uniform appearance to the windows in the room with the picture window, it would seem that venetian blinds should be used in all of the windows in that one room. Also, if the large window is on the street side of the house, and there are other downstairs windows on the same side, these other windows should probably be hung with venetian blinds, too.

Hadassah Hears Israel Experiences

On the first anniversary of the United Nations resolution providing for the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine, Dr. Ruth Gruber told members of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah of her experiences in Israel.

The author of "Destination Palestine" spoke at the "Chai" luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel yesterday. Since "Chai" is the Hebrew word meaning both "life" and "18," those attending the luncheon were asked to contribute $18 to assure life for the people of Israel through the work of the Hadassah Medical Organization.

Dr. Gruber told Hadassah members that the Jewish people had only three weapons when the Jewish state was declared. They were (1) no other alternative since they had nowhere else to go, (2) the Molotov cocktail, a soda bottle filled with gasoline to be used for defense measures, and (3) the help that the Jewish women, with emphasis on Hadassah, were giving them.

Dr. Gruber likened the Count Folke Bernadotte Report of 1948 on Palestine to the "Rape of Czechoslovakia." She denounced the report for suggesting that the Jews give the Negev to the Arabs. The Jews will never give up the Negev, she said.

The luncheon was opened by the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the "Hatikvah," the Hebrew hymn of hope which is now the Israeli national anthem.

The guests of honor included Mrs. Felix Frankfurter; wife of the Supreme Court Justice; Madame Bonnet, wife of the Ambassador from France; Mrs. Agnes Meyer, Madame Outrata, wife of the Ambassador from Czechoslovakia; Madame Winiewicz, wife of the Ambassador from Poland, and Madame Mesa, sister of the Ambassador from Yugoslavia.

Chanukah Dance

Mrs. Abraham Kaufman, chairman of the Chanukah dance for the Southeast Hebrew Congregation, will entertain at her home tomorrow evening for members of the planning committee, to discuss final arrangements.

Doings of the Day . . .

Countess Eleanor Palffy will be guest speaker for the WOMEN'S NATIONAL PRESS CLUB luncheon meeting, 12:30 p. m., at the Willard Hotel. The countess, who was born in Boston and married a Hungarian count, will speak on "Boston to Budpest; and Glad to Be Back" . . . THE SISTERHOOD OF THE NORTHWEST HEBREW CONGREGATION will have an open membership meeting and musical program today. Arrangements for the affair have been made by Mrs. Harriet Sterman . . . "Fundamentals of Glass and Ceramics" will be discussed by V. V. Kelsey, chemical engineer, at the WASHINGTON CLUB meeting this morning.

St. John's Mothers' Club Plans Skit

A two-act Christmas skit, directed by Mrs. Dale M. Henry, will be presented by the St. John's Mothers' Club at its first evening meeting of the year, 8:30 p. m., December 3, in the school auditorium, 1225 Vermont ave. nw.

Members of the club taking part in the play are Mrs. G. W. Kelly, Mrs. John Leahy, Mrs. W. R. McLister, Mrs. Andrew Neal, Mrs. Frank Wall, Mrs. Laurence Wilson, Mrs. Frank Poch, Mrs. Gene Castleberry, Mrs. John Crown, Mrs. Francis Fannon, Mrs. John Gilligan, Mrs. Frederick Simms and Mrs. Robert Silk.

Costumes are by Mrs. Aloysius Burns and Mrs. Mark Sullivan. Mrs. John McLindon will be stage manager. Other mothers assisting are Mrs. Fred De Groot, Mrs. A. C. Waller, Mrs. Carmon DeMarco, Mrs. Bernard Grant, Mrs. Laurence Fitzgerald, Mrs. Norman Drake, Mrs. Joseph Amato, Mrs. Harry Caputo, Mrs. Charles Downham. Mrs. Gerald Stilwell, Mrs. Edward Quill, Mrs. William Mark, Mrs. Joseph Neale, Mrs. Paul Fenton and Mrs. Ralph Vitale.

Mrs. Frank Wall, president, and Mrs. Frederick Simms, program chairman of the club, are in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Paul Clifford, hospitality chairman, will provide for the social following the play.

Netherlands Envoy To Fete Visitors

The Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. van Kleffens will have as house guests at the embassy this weekend Sir Kenneth and Lady Lee of Ewhurst, Surrey, England. A dinner will be given at the embassy in their honor on Saturday evening and Monday evening.

Sir Kenneth and Lady Lee were friends of the Ambassador and Mme. van Kleffens in London, when the Netherlands government in exile was in London during the war. Sir Kenneth was then Director General of the British Ministry of Information.

Mrs. Schiff to Talk To Mt. Pleasant Group

Mrs. Elisabeth Schiff of The Hague has been visiting her son, the Second Secretary of the Netherlands Embassy, E. L. C. Schiff.

This evening Mrs. Schiff will make a talk to the Young Women's Circle of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. In Holland Mrs. Schiff has done a great deal of social welfare work among the church groups, and during the war she was imprisoned by the Germans for underground activities. She is sailing for Holland on December 10.

De Weldons Entertain For Mrs. Moroney

MR. AND MRS. FELIX DE WELDON of 2500 Q st. entertained last evening at a "6 to 8" party for Mrs. James Moroney of Dallas, Tex. Mrs. Moroney is the daughter of the late George B. Dealey, of whom Mr. de Weldon just finished a 12-foot statue for the City of Dallas. Mr. Dealey was the founder of the Dallas News.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Intimate Picture of a 'Hard Boiled Cop'

The auto hadn't been moving very rapidly, so the puppy was more frightened than hurt when the front wheel struck him.

From the curb, 11-year-old Marilyn Browne of 4711 Albemarle st. nw. shrilled:

The driver winced and carried the wriggling pup into the house. When it was obvious that the animal was all right, the driver continued on his way.

But an hour or so later, he was back. "I couldn't eat my dinner for worrying," he told Mrs. Myra K. Browne when she answered the door. "Are you sure the dog wasn't hurt?"

"I'm positive," assured Mrs. Browne. "And we do appriciate your taking the trouble to inquire, Mr. . . . Mr. . . . ?"

"Milton Smith," replied the assistant superintendent of Metropolitan Police. "I'm certainly glad he's all right—because I just couldn't eat my dinner until I made sure."

MISCELLANY

Here's another helping hand for the Dorothy Kilmer Fund—and a chance to enjoy an evening of dancing: Phillips-Kleiner Post No. 5627 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold a dance this Saturday night at Club Wayson (Wayson's Corner, Routes 4 and 416, Drury, Md.—just beyond Upper Marlboro). The boys in the VFW ask that you "Dance So That This Girl Can Walk Again," and tickets may be obtained at the club or from John R. Read, 4805 Somerset rd., Riverdale (Warfield 1986). The tickets are $2 each and all proceeds go to the Dorothy Kilmer Fund . . . The folks in the 800 and 900 blocks of 17th st. nw. go in for clever firm names. Like the "Ex-speed-ite Secretarial Service Co." and the "Good Neighbor Language School" . . . Hardly a week goes by that some District Liner doesn't get a guffaw out of the Zoo's signs which proclaim that "Lost Children Will Be Taken to the Lion House" . . . Latest to discover the signs are Sportscaster Bob Wolff, whose recently acquired son wouldn't make a good mouthful for a hungry lion yet, and Mrs. John M. Vaughan of Riverdale, Md. . . . R. W. L. of 1711 N. Edgewood st., Arlington, Va., tells me that his sister went to southern California for the winter back in October, but after two months of it writes him: "I couldn't stand the cold, foggy climate so I've moved to Minnesota for the winter" . . . There's no point in waxing indignant with me, you California boosters. I don't make these things up; I just report them . . . Dr. Hanna Colm, clinical psychologist at Children's Hospital, will speak at 7:45 tonight (Fairfax Cooperative Nursery School, 2202 38th st. se.) on the subject of "Discipline." Admission is free, and it sounds like a subject many of us should know more about . . . First Christmas card of the season to reach this desk is from Herb, Helen and Nancy Gardner, who will soon be moving into 5603 Roosevelt st., Bethesda, Md., and know in advance that they won't have time to send cards later, while they're moving. Clever, eh?

TIMES CHANGE

Pa used to fear the wolf at the door
With righteous indignation.
But now he knows the wolf is there
At daughter's invitation.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Please do a great favor for those of us who live in southeast Washington.

Ask Traffic Director Keneipp if he has ever tried to get across the 11th st. bridge during the morning rush hour.

And please don't let him answer you by telling you about the new bridge—if we don't get some relief before that's ready we'll all be in St. Elizabeth's.

Norma Wilkerson
4306 S. Capitol St.

Dear Norma:

Keneipp sighed and said yep, he's been stuck in the same jams—but there's no solution except more bridges.

As usual, he cites figures. Traffic in Washington is now 13 per cent heavier than it was in 1941, the previous peak year.

The sections that have been built up fastest have developed traffic loads even heavier than the city-wide average. Benning rd. is the hardest hit—up 50 per cent from the '41 peak. The Highway Bridge is the second-worst bottleneck—up 37 per cent. And the 11th st. bridge has the dubious honor of ranking third—up 23.4 per cent.

Keneipp says whatever can be done with officers and traffic control devices is already being done. In another 12 months you'll have your new bridge, and that will undoubtedly help.

And another span is already in the "thinking" stage, because we might need still a third bridge—possibly near Massachusetts ave.

But as Keneipp sadly puts it: "I don't have a magic wand, and bridges cost money."

Bill

When you think you know just how many typewritten lines of copy make a minute of radio time,

Isn't it inevitable that somebody should come along to borrow your typewriter for a few minutes—and change all the margin stops?

ADD DEFINITIONS

Having recently discovered what kind of work is done at the Carnegie Institution's Department of Terrestrial Magnetism, this column also made a friend there.

He's W. J. "Bill" Rooney, who reports that his brother-in-law has a new definition of "pedestrian."

A pedestrian is a man who has a wife and two grown daughters, and only three cars.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Sam Wanamaker, who directed and plays a leading role in Fay Kanin's new hit, "Goodbye, My Fancy," tried a realistic approach in indoctrinating the cast. At their first meeting he asked all of them—Madeleine Carroll, Conrad Nagel, Shirley Booth and all the extras—to write a biographic sketch of the character each was portraying. These sketches were complete with details of early environment, education, business experience, intellectual background, romances, etc.—so that each actor would thoroughly understand the character he was portraying . . . And to show them how, Wanamaker wrote the longest sketch.

Abe Feder, who has done the lighting for many Broadway shows, will do the lighting for the United Nations Building. His other recent assignments have been the lighting of St. Patrick's Cathedral and for the new Aquarium . . . Howard Hawks, the movie director, telephoned to Hollywood from Germany, where he is directing "I Married a Male War Bride," to ask for a pair of suspenders which a French officer would use.

When Jim Farley met General Franco, the meeting was scheduled to last 30 minutes. Franco kept Farley there longer, and then indicated to him that the session was over in exactly the same way Mussolini had ended his conference with Farley—by rising slowly from his chair and asking "And when are you leaving our country?" . . . Ethel Barrymore will get $50,000 for five days' work in "The Great Sinner," the movie which will star Gregory Peck.

Garry Davis, the expatriate, says that his work in Paris to help organize a world government, is something which must be done before he can achieve his peacetime dream—which is "to be featured in a small, intimate revue with music by Irving Berlin" . . . Albert Camus, author of "The Plague," was one of the 50 men to make a speech about "World Government" . . . The French security police rushed Davis out. The police inspector who led him away was sympathetic. "By the way," he asked Davis, "how much money would a world policeman make?"

Betty MacDonald, author of "The Egg and I," is studying Pan-American timetables and National League baseball schedules—because one of her daughters will marry a man in Peru, and her other daughter will marry a ballplayer who has a contract with the Dodgers.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

New Democratic Leaders Emerge

By Drew Pearson

Washington. — Whether the old bosses like it or not, a new generation of Democratic leaders has emerged as a result of the Truman triumph. They include Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Gov.-elect Chester Bowles of Connecticut and Illinois' Gov. Adlai Stevenson — plus one unpublicized gentleman who has inherited the leadership of the California Democratic Party.

Pearson

He is State Senator George Luckey of California.

The Luckey political story is a fabulous one. A year ago, Luckey was a successful cattleman living quietly outside Los Angeles. Today, as vice chairman of the Democratic Party for southern California, he has succeeded Jimmy Roosevelt as a Democratic potentate and kingmaker.

When the Democrats went to Philadelphia for their convention last July, Luckey was merely an alternate — though a fiery supporter of Harry Truman. He fell into the job of bossing California Democrats chiefly because everyone else thought Truman was licked.

But Luckey rolled up his sleeves and agreed to underwrite any deficit incurred by the party. And election day found him the most important Democrat in California.

Last week George Luckey came to Washington. He wore cowboy boots. The minute he hit the town, the White House was on the phone inviting him to visit the President. Treasury Secretary Snyder, Agriculture Secretary Brannan, Howard McGrath, Louis Johnson and other high Democratic potentates sought out Mr. Luckey.

The Luckey story spelled victory for the Democrats in several other ways. In 1932, Luckey was a New Mexico rancher, virtually broke. Roosevelt's election gave him a chance to borrow enough money from the Agriculture Department to market his cattle in California, and his subsequent financial recovery paralleled that of the country. Today he markets in the neighborhood of 12,000 head of cattle a year from ranches sprawled over Utah, California and Texas.

Asked why he plunged so heavily on the Democratic Party, Luckey says:

"The Democrats have been good to the Luckey family. You don't shoot your banker where I come from."

The Luckey-Truman friendship had an unusual origin. About a year ago, Luckey heard Truman speak on the radio. He wrote the President a congratulatory note. Truman answered personally. The correspondence built a personal friendship.

Asked if he had ever corresponded with Roosevelt, Luckey replied:

"I wouldn't ever have written to Roosevelt. He was sort of like God. You prayed to him, but you never wrote. Truman's just a regular feller—the kind anyone can understand."

Luckey wore cowboy boots to the White House and when Truman saw him he chuckled:

"George, I'm sure glad you're still wearing those boots. They're just right for booting a few of the guys around here who need a real kick in the pants."

Best evidence that the President hasn't changed his mind about firing Secretary of Defense Forrestal is the inside story of what happened at Key West. Forrestal's visit was built up by his newspaper friends as a sure sign he had wiggled back into Truman's good graces. But here are some facts:

First, Forrestal flew to Key West at his own request, but expecting a private, intimate chat with the President. Instead he found the house full of guests and little chance to be alone with Truman. Though the President walked to the door to greet other important guests as they entered, he waited until Forrestal was halfway across the living room before acknowledging him. When Truman really likes anyone he goes all-out to meet them.

At luncheon, Forrestal was seated at the President's right, according to protocol, but he was left out of the conversation.

When the drinks were passed, Forrestal took orange juice. The others didn't. But on the second round, the unhappy Defense Chief blurted that he would join in something stronger. It sounded like a strained effort to become one of the boys, though he continued to sit stiffly at the President's elbow, smiling wanly and saying little.

The press made a big to-do over a statement by Press Secretary Charlie Ross that the President had conferred 45 minutes with Forrestal. The truth was, Truman and Forrestal stood together on the lawn chatting briefly while the other guests milled about.

Southern and Northern Democrats are sending each other cryptic messages over the Capitol grapevine, regarding the hottest question in Washington—who will boss the committees of Congress for the next two years?

When Northern Democrats hinted that a reshuffling of committee assignments might be tried, dealing the Southerners to the bottom of the deck, whispers came back from the Southern bloc that this might force them into a coalition with the Republicans.

Southerners control enough votes to throw both bodies of Congress to the GOP.

So now the Northerners are suggesting that maybe only a few out-and-out Dixiecrats should be punished. They have especially in mind Senators James Eastland of Mississippi, John McClellan of Arkansas, Representative Mendel Rivers of South Carolina, John Rankin of Mississippi and Gene Cox of Georgia.
